

Barbara Lewis To Rock Fall Fling; St. James, Thomas, Impacts Likewise

October 28-29 is BWOC—a big weekend on campus: Fall Fling weekend.

Friday night will find "The Impacts," Rufus Thomas and Barbara Lewis, in a big show and dance in the LAA. Rufus Thomas is the performer who got his start with such big hits as "The Dog," "Walking the Dog," and others. A great performer, his show will be one you won't want to miss.

Barbara Lewis made her fame with the hit "Hello, Stranger." Since then she has climbed the road to success with follow-up hits such as "Puppy Love," "Baby, I'm Yours," and "Think a Little, Sugar." Her current big hit is "Make Me Belong to You," which has appeared in many Top Tens across the nation.

"The Impacts" hail from Greensboro, N.C. They will keep the dancers swinging between shows. Admission for the Friday night show and dance will be $1.00 per person. It starts at 8:00 p. m. School clothes will be the dress.

Martin St. James, "The Mental Continental," will be on campus Saturday night. His performance of ESP, hypnotism, and the science of memory, promises to hold and captivate his audience.

The show will be held in the LA auditorium at 8:00 p. m. Admission is $1.00 per person and casual clothes will be appropriate, since viewers will sit in the floor.

The first part of his act will be devoted to E. S. P. St. James is one of the few men today who can identify an object when he and his assistant are blind-folded.

The second part of his act will be centered on hypnosis. He will be putting some of your fellow knights and ladies, and maybe even you, into one of his remarkable trances.

At the "Cellar Door" in D.C., he had young ladies dancing to certain types of music and men marching up the aisles calling out drill formations. One boy whom some of you may know, rushed out thinking he'd forgotten his pants.

Cybernetics Trio To Hold Panel And Meet Classes

A trio of cybernetics experts will continue the Concert Lecture Series on contemporary issues Tuesday night, October 25, in the Armory at 8 p. m.

Composed of an IBM executive, a chemical engineering professor, and a professor of information science, the panel will relate the effects of computers on education, business and science, and "the man on the street," according to Professor Forrest Altman, who is the campus coordinator for this event.

The three speakers are Frederick P. Brooks, Jr., who is Professor and Chairman of Information Science at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; J. K. Ferrell, formerly President of the Triangle Universities Computation Center and presently Chairman of the Department of Chemical Engineering at N. C. State; and J. W. Holsinger, who is on leave from International Business Machines in Charlotte while taking further graduate studies at UNC-CH.

The cybernetics experts will speak by turn Tuesday night and follow the usual pattern of answering questions from the audience after debating among themselves immediately after the delivery of their prepared remarks. This was done during the recent visit of socio-economist Robert Theobald when Professors Robert Gustafson, Kenneth Jones, and David Hawk of the St. Andrews faculty debated the visiting speaker after his lecture.

Professor Gentry Wade of the St. Andrews Department of Business Administration will moderate the discussion.

The three great speakers will also stay in Laurinburg Tuesday night, after which they will speak to various classes on Wednesday. All three men will speak to Dr. Gier's class Wednesday at 8 a. m., while Dr. Ferrell will speak to Mrs. Gustafson's ten and eleven o'clock math classes and then to the basic science class at noon.

Professor Brooks will address the Senior C&C group at 11 a. m. All three men will be available to talk with faculty and students throughout their visit.

Cabinet Communicates With Administration

In the joint Cabinet-Administration meeting of October 11, the problems of communicating with our day students was brought up by the students. The possibilities of having mail boxes for them and fixing up the lounge in the L. A. building were discussed.

The Inter-Dormitory Council, the Student Christian Council, the Judiciary Board and the Student Center Board reported to the Administration on their activities and plans.

The idea of a young men's club with social objectives was presented to the administration.

President Moore said that he had nothing to report about a new Dean of Students and pointed out the difficulty of getting someone during the middle of a school year.

Dean Davidson told the Cabinet of the new mid-semester grading policy recently adopted by the Faculty Executive Committee. Only D's, F's and Incompletes will be reported. A student failing nine hours or more will be put on Academic Probation. No one will be taken off Academic Probation at mid-semester.

The possibility of reduced rates for faculty members to eat in the cafeteria to converse with students was discussed.

The possibility of having a R. O. T. C. unit on campus was brought up. There was some question as to whether or not a school as small as St. Andrews could have it on a voluntary basis. The matter is now being investigated.

Dean Davidson gave the Cabinet some insight into the development of the plans for the new Science-Mathematics Program.

Student Association President Bob Anderson announced that the 225 books of stamps saved by the Student Association had been given to the physical education department to purchase more boats for the lake.

Members of the group express confidence that future meetings will be productive for the good of St. Andrews.

Prof. Bohigas Continues Study At Chapel Hill

Professor Jose M. Bohigas has left the faculty of St. Andrews to continue work on his doctorate at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Before leaving, he was commuting from Chapel Hill to St. Andrews three times a week.

Miss Marion Anderson will take Professor Bohigas' place in the Spanish department.

Professor Bohigas joined the St. Andrews faculty in 1963, and holds the doctor of education degree from Havana University in his native Cuba.

Manager To Discuss Marketing

Plant Manager Larry Greene will speak to the American Marketing Association Wednesday at J-M executive Larry Greene speaks to local civic organization.

7 p. m. in the Small Lounge of the Student Center.

Greene, head of the Johns-Manville Corporation's plant at the Maxton airport, will address the student organization on the subject of marketing as it relates to his plant and to the production, sales, and distribution of brake linings and the related products produced at the plant.

The meeting will be the club's second of the semester, and the first in a series of talks by leaders of business and industry which will complement courses in business and economics.

Interested students who are not members of the club, faculty members, and Laurinburg area residents are being invited to attend.

Greene will also discuss career opportunities with Johns-Manville Corporation, for the benefit of upperclassmen and others who are about to enter the job market.

New Programs

Members of the administrative staff and faculty have been mutually engaged recently in several projects aimed at producing support for improved academic programs.

Progress on these will be reported to the Board of Trustees at their fall meeting on campus Thursday, October 27.

Largest of the new programs is a radically new science proposal, and six major foundations have expressed an interest in aiding this project.

In Memoriam

Death is always with us and is usually tragic. The death of any young person is always tragic because it eliminates possibilities.

The death of Edward Lee King is very tragic because it faces us with a several-faceted sense of unfulfilled potential. Eddie was a very gifted student whose mind showed promise of great potentiality—he was, in fact, the most gifted of a gifted group of students, the Vardell Scholars of the Class of 1970.

In this respect, and other respects, Eddie was a witness to all of us who have suffered little, that a man can suffer much and still emerge a productive person.

"In the blest kingdoms, meek of joy and love,
There entertain him all the Saints above,
In solemn troops, and sweet societies,
That sing, and singing in their glory move,
And wipe the tears for ever from his eyes."

--from John Milton's "Lycidas," dedicated to his friend Edward King
