VOL. 6, NO. 10

An accomplished trumpeter turned vocalist, mezzosoprano Beverly Wolff will open the 1967 Concert-Lecture Series on Monday, January 30 at 8 PM in the Liberal Arts Auditorium.

A frequent soloist with the New York Philharmonic, Miss Wolff has starred with many opera theatres in the East.

Her program will include arias from Gluck, Mozart and Tchaikovsky, five German leider by Hugo Wolf, compositions by Samuel Barber and Jacques Offenbach. The performance will conclude with selections from the works of Paul Nordoff, Norman Dell-Joio and Granville Bantock.

John McIntyre, SA History Major, Studies Federal Government At A.U.

John McIntyre, ordinarily a student at St. Andrews, is currently one of 98 persons enrolled at American University in Washington, D.C., for a special study of the federal government.

As a Washington Semester student, John attends classes and seminars at American University and will write a research paper on a subject of his choice. He will receive credit at St. Andrews for participation in this program.

The students in the Washington Semester program make an intensive study of the federal government in action. They meet with congressmen, labor and management leaders, lobbists, journalists, and nationally-known personalities from every walk of

A history and political science major at St. Andrews, John comments, "Studying the American governmental process by actual observation and first-hand experience is much more rewarding than studying solely from textbooks. The Washington Semester program has a very definite value for the student interested in the workings of the American government."

ATTENTION STUDENTS! Important Student Body Meeting Thursday, February 2, 7 p.m. in the cafeteria.

This is the twentieth year that the University's School of Government and Public Administration has sponsored the Washington Semester program in the nation's capital. St. Andrews is among 55 colleges and universities in the nation represented in the program which will end this month.

Bevy Of Beauties Vie Tonight In LAA For "Miss Lamp And Shield" Pageant Title

Ву

MARGARET PARRISH

Good morning, Sun! Goodness, I do not have time to lie here. Tonight is the night of the "Miss and Shield Pageant." There is so much to do before 8 p.m. when the curtain rises.

Let me see, all of that competition is rough. Can I name all the girls? I think so. The girls representing Orange are Sherry Clay from Lenoir, N.C.; Jo Ellen Schild from Denver, Colorado; Martha Sue Henley from Whiteville, N. C.; and Ellen Connelly from Lynchburg, Virginia.

Brewbaker To Be Tried By Judi Board

Sophomore Bobby Brewbaker, a member of the Student Judiciary Board, will be tried Tuesday February 7, at 7:00 p.m. before his own committee. The trial will be open to the public and will take place in the small lounge of the Student Center.

Brewbaker's case has not been revealed to the press because of the investigation precedures which have not been finalized. Board members have told The Lance that no confidential information will be revealed prior to the actual trial.

Mr. Brewbaker stated to his fellow board members that he would prefer his "mock" case to be open so that students would have the opportunity to view an actual Judiciary Board trial.

Brewbaker stated to The Lance this would be an excellent opportunity for students to understand the seriousness the Board takes in its procedures and to examine the deep investigation that goes into every Judiciary Board case.

Becky Suddreth from Lenoir, N. C.; Carol Bragunier from Tenafly, N.J.; and Katie Cody from York, S. C., are the belles from Concord. Votes in Mecklenburg elected Shannon Hershberger from Myrtle Beach, S.C.; Alice Ragland from Jacksonville, Fla.; and Eloise Ristau from Arlington, Virginia.

The girls in Albemarle chose Carol Hovis from Boone, N.C.; Karen Feagin from Atlanta, Ga.; and Lynn Wagner from Richmond, Va., to represent them. Competition heightens as Betts Hunter from Aiken, S.C.; Janice Wells from Charlotte, N.C.; and Todd White from Lenoir, N.C., come from Granville. Donna Southers from Mount Holly, N.C.; Mary Lou Kruthoffer from Huntington, W. Va.; and Alice Spratt from Hickory, N.C. will proudly sponsor Wilmington Hall.

Linda Monroe from Macon, Ga., is representing Winston-Salem. The "family" of Pine Acres is represented by Stasia McGriff from Charlotte, N.C.; and Connie Schneider from Roseland, New Jersey.

That's a grand total of 7 freshmen, 6 sophomores, 2 juniors, and 7 seniors. What a bevy of beautiful

Our tea, Thursday afternoon at 5 p.m., was a big success, although we all were a host of nerves. Everyone looked so nice in her "Sunday best." Thank goodness that ordeal is behind us. The only mountain left to climb is the pageant.

It is 7:30 p.m. The doors have opened, and the music is playing. There is so much excitement backstage--giggles, sighs, and just plain excitement. There is a stir in the audience as the judges come in at 7:55.

After all the introductions are made, it is time for us contestants to enter the auditorium. "Walk like a lady, smile, don't trip up the steps, hold your head high." How in the world will I remember

Safe and sound on the stage at least. It seems we just got here, and now we must leave again. It is time for the entertainment. Seniors Sue Scarborough and Mary Field are singing a duetabout "the free Woman." Now Lynn Corbett and Scott McCrea are singing folk

After this relaxing entertainment, the tension again mounts as the ten finalists are being announ-

Chinese Art Display In LA

By KAREN BAIRD

The beautiful Chinese art display which St. Andrews' students are currently enjoying in the Liberal Arts building was loaned to the college by Mrs. Halbert Jones of Laurinburg, N.C. Mrs. Jones has lived abroad off and on for the last 60 years. In her travels, she has bought many items for her Asian art collection, some of which are on display at the present time. Many of these items could not be imported today, since the Communists have taken over

One of the most valuable pieces in the collection is a peach amber horse and two vases. Mrs. Jones says that she has never seen peach amber the color of these items. Although the work is not outstanding and is carved with a minimum of lines, it is typically Chinese.

Fine amber (which is actually pe resin) is the color of honey, but some is peach and redcolored, such as displayed in the glass cabinet across from Dr. Moore's office.

A most unusual item in the collection is a bronze dragon. This dragon is common to China, Korea, and Japan. It is often used as a ten foot long fountain piece in temple gardens, but is more generally seen in paintings.

On February 15, Mrs. Jones will put part of her Japanese art collection on display in the LA. In Mrs. Jones' opinion, the Japanese have far superior taste than the Chinese. She says, "Although China was ahead of Japan for almost 300 years, the Japanese finally started to assert themselves and develop their own art and poetry, based on an economy of scarcity."
