Overman On God's Existence

Dr. Ralph T. Overman, scientific consultant for the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, is the first of eight distinguished scientists participating in St. Andrews' first visiting scientist program. His lecture Monday was the first public event held in the college's new health and physical education building.
 Speaking to several hundred persons on the subject, "Human Values in an Age of Science," Dr. Overman declared that, contrary to common thought, scientists do believe--they believe in "the consistency of nature."
 "We do not prove theories,"

he continued, "in fact we do not prove anything in science."
 Dr. Overman illustrated the scientist's awareness of nature by comparing it with a child's growing awareness of the world about him and his increasing questions about it. He described the scientific process as starting with data, from which the scientist develops theoretical ideas, which he then attempts to validate in the laboratory.

The two basic strengths of the scientific approach are in themselves basic limitations, he said. These are: data are limited to those data which can be accepted by one of our five senses and the objective nature of scientific work.

It is because the scientist must work with objects with these strengths-limitations that man must find another means of experiencing human relationships.

"This is what we Christians are offering," he asserted. "The being of you is the image of God--with capacity for reciprocal relationships."

While God cannot be validated in the laboratory, "God is available as a personal being to solve problems," he said.

"There is no meaning in life outside this relationship," he continued, "I am sure I can validate God through relationships of my life. . . What we know about God we can see in Christ Jesus. We can see what God is like in our everyday life."

Calendar Improves ESP

After a year of trial, with partial success and failure, with both student approval and disapproval, the early semester plan has drawn some 900 students back into the classroom for an early start in another phase of progressive education.

While the early semester plan is not a St. Andrews original, it is a new program of class attendance and holiday planning for a good many students here at St. Andrews. The program as it existed last year was most uncomfortable in the first semester scheduling with long weeks of unbroken study extending from late August through mid December with only a three day vacation in late October. Students attended classes on both Labor Day and Thanksgiving Day and for most students there were Saturday classes.

Now because of extensive planning by the calendar committee, a few of these problems have been ironed out of the early semester plan, a program which serves as a transition between the old semester plan and the up-and-coming 4-1-4.

Although St. Andrews has again eliminated a potential 900 holiday highway victims from the Labor Day toll, a week's Thanksgiving vacation has been provided and the spring semester vacation now includes Easter, never before included in the SA calendar. Fewer classes will meet on Saturday this year than in the past.

Christmas vacation is again a long period of time in which the students certainly will cooperate from both mental and physical strain, but again this vacation is to be spent doing nothing with no one because of the vacation scheduling in other colleges and universities.

Much credit goes to the committee whose calendar proposals have alleviated much of the tension that accompanies the long and tedious work schedule of the first semester under the early semester plan.

Lance Welcomes Suggestions Interested In Informing You

This year, as was projected last semester, THE LANCE will publish a weekly paper. It is hopeful that the extra time and effort put into each edition will be beneficial to student needs. The publication will appear in its regular four page edition each and every Friday morning by 9:00 a.m.

Students interested in news, feature, and sports writing, typing ad copy and layout, business promotions and proof-reading, contact either Margaret Parrish at ext. 256, Linda Susong in Wilmington dorm, or Ed Butterworth at 2766139. Come in and talk to staff members next Tuesday evening at 8:00 p.m. in THE LANCE office (downstairs in the student center) or come to the club fair in the student center on Thursday evening, September 14.

THE LANCE asks that students submit their expressed opinions on campus activities for publication. Letters will be accepted and printed weekly. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR MUST BE IN THE LANCE OFFICE OR IN P.O. BOX 757 NO LATER THAN TUESDAY OF THE PUBLICATION WEEK. IT IS REQUIRED THAT LETTERS BE TYPED DOUBLE SPACE ON A 60 FIGURE LINE, AND BE NO LONGER THAN 10 INCHES IN LENGTH. 35 TYPEWRITTEN LINES ALL LETTERS MUST BE SIGNED OR INITIALED.

Complainers! Look For Good

Contrary to most SA editorials, this first edition of the LANCE is dedicated to all those who have found the tolerance to hold their tongues in response to all the complaints circulating around campus.

Having been back to classes for only two weeks, some grippers have found cause enough to complain about just about everything. Mr. Griper finds that the food is just awful, it always rains, the profs are out of their minds and school started too early.

Of course, these constant complainers are to be expected at any college, but it seems that this fall, we here at SA have the best set up yet. The addition of the new gym should be enough to halt almost anyone's over-anxious tongue; to say nothing of the excellent faculty, new dorm hours for the girls and the calibre of the new Freshman class.

There couldn't be a better time, here at the beginning of classes, to pause and look at the good things that are happening.

"I'M AFRAID STUDENTS NO LONGER FIND THIS COURSE USEFUL & INTERESTING - WE'LL MAKE IT A 'REQUIRED'."

Dance Liberates Serfs

THE Inman Ltd., top attraction of the Jokers Three Production, will be on campus Saturday, September 9, 1967. Having played in colleges and universities all along the eastern coast, these Burlington, N.C. natives are famous for their Soul and Rock and Roll music. This big sound band has backed up such groups as the Platters, Temptations, Mary Wells, and Little Anthony and the Imperials.

There will be no charge for St. Andrews students and their dates, but for non members of our community there is a charge of $3.00 per couple. The informal dance will be in the cafeteria from 8-12:00 p.m.

To end the Serf Week activities Mr. and Miss Serf will be announced. These will be the two freshman who have shown the best spirit and good sportsmanship.

Yarbrough Concert Heads SCB Fall Entertainment

A concert by Glen Yarbrough on Sept. 30, at 8:30 p.m. in the gym, will end parents day and will be given for both students and parents.

Yarbrough has had successful appearances in the past year at Carnegie Hall, The University of North Carolina, The University of Florida and the University of Tennessee. He has been asked to come back for repeat performances at all of these places and is considered one of the most popular concert attractions in the country today.

He will bring the Fred Ramirez trio to back him up, and a team of comedians, Moffitt and Davies, to round off the entire show.

Price of advance tickets will be $1.50 and $2.00 at the gate.

The concert will be the first Student Center Board entertainment activity of the year and will be the kick off for almost $10,000 worth of Fall entertainment on the St. Andrews campus.

Also scheduled by the SCB for this fall are three top movies, Caine Mutiny, The Americanization of Emily, and Viridiana.

Fall Fling will be the big weekend for the semester with an informal dance on Friday, November 3. It will feature The Embers from North Carolina, and then a Saturday night concert with pop singing stars, Chad and Jeremy. The cost for the whole weekend will be $5.00 a couple for SA students.

The last activity of the fall will be the Christmas Formal on December 2.
