Borrowed Furniture Adds Flavor to "Dorm"

Why would SA's Dean of Students steal furniture from the Student Center? And where is Orange Hall's new south annex?

Both questions have a common solution--the "Greenhouse," a college residence established this year to provide housing for six male students. Since there were more on-campus students than dormitory beds, the Student Affairs Office was faced with the problem of finding rooms for the overflow.

Most of the students who were living temporarily in suite lounges or in the visiting-team room of the gym were gradually assigned to rooms that had been reserved for non-returning students, but there were still six male students who needed rooms.

They were transferred to the Greenhouse, a light green, campus-owned structure that is located near the main south entrance to the campus on highway US 15.

Four of the Greenhouse residents are transfers. They are Andy Rose, Blaire Turner, Paul Szumelda, and Richard Coyle. Two returning students, Harry Hagan and Tom James, round out the roster of this six-man suite. Rose has been designated suite leader.

The lack of furniture in the Greenhouse prompted Dean Decker's Student Center maneuvers. There are beds, dressers, desks, and some chairs in the three bedrooms of the Greenhouse now, but the kitchen and living room are almost bare.

In an effort to assimilate the Greenhouse residents into campus activities, the residents of Orange Hall have socially "adopted" them into dorm activities. The Orange desk also serves as a temporary answering service for them until a telephone is installed in the Greenhouse.

Blaire Turner, a transfer from Roanoke College, said the Greenhouse residents are pretty happy with their living situation, but "not having a phone is the real disadvantage."

Pictured in St. Andrews new swimming pool are Marcia Hill, Carol Williamson, and Sharon Brown. The girls are taking part in the Senior Lifesaving Program offered to train more people for jobs.

Dedication and Races Course Clicks with Probing Flicks

Headline Parents Day

Saturday, September 30th, is a big day at St. Andrews. The annual Parent's Day get under way at 9:00 a.m., with registration in the new Physical Education Plant. At 10:00 a.m. the dedication ceremonies for the new gym will take place in the basketball court area. After an academic processional with Professor John Williams as organist, President Ansley C. Moore will have an opening welcome, then will introduce the honored guests for the day.

The "Key Ceremony" follows. The keys to the new gymnasium will be formally turned over to Mr. Holbert M. Jones, a trustee and chairman of the building committee, and to Thomas M. Belk, chairman of the Board of Trustees. The presentation will be made by Mr. William Boyle, builder, and Mr. A. G. Odell, architect.

After the faculty has been introduced, President Moore will introduce the guest speaker, Mr. William C. Friday,

President of the University of North Carolina. After Friday's address, President Moore will lead a dedicatory litany. Dr. Harold Dudley will offer the prayer of Praise and Consecration.

The choir will then lead the audience in the singing of "Hail St. Andrews," and The Rev. Albert N. Wells of the Laurinburg Presbyterian Church, will close official ceremonies with the Benediction.

From 11:30 to 12:30 Lettermen and P. E. staff members will guide visitors to various places in the gym. Following a luncheon on the south lawn of the Student Center, the annual Dean's Cup Races will take place. These promise to be very exciting, with the usual overturned boats and stubborn oars. Dean Davidson will present the trophies to the winners of the races at 4:00 p.m.

From the close of the races to 8:30 there is nothing planned. Glenn Yarborough will appear in concert in the gym at 8:30.

Mr. F. Badger Johnson, head of Alumni Affairs for the college, said that he is expecting 1200-1500 off-campus visitors for the weekend. If this proves to be true, it will be the largest number that has ever attended a Parent's Day. Last year, 900 visitors were on campus and the year before that there were 600.

Bills Pass By 9:1

The student body passed two amendments to the Constitution on Tuesday, Sept. 19. The first amendment provides that no student who is on academic or social probation shall run for or hold an office. The amendment was passed 601 to 74.

The second amendment provides for three senators from each dorm regardless of the class each represents. This one passed 605 to 68.

The Sophomore C&C course for this year has promised to be very exciting and rewarding in the aesthetic learning experience, because of the top films being shown both here on campus and downtown. Through a broader experience in cinematics they give the student an opportunity to show his reaction to these films through discussions and papers.

The first of the films in the series is "The Seventh Seal" to be shown Wednesday and Thursday, the 20-21st of this week. It offers a challenge to the viewer along with seeing a great example of film production. Coming Sept. 27-28, to be shown on campus, is "Charters". This film deals with the Cathedral, the biography and the aesthetic productions of Michaelangelo. The "Titan", to be shown October 11-12 also promises to be an exciting flick. Both of these films will have multiple showings on campus, with times to be announced later. "Man for All Seasons", which relates to the cultural renaissance and the course theme: spiritual vs. temporal society, will be shown for a full week on October 5-11. On Nov. 1-2 "Falstaff" from Henry IV by Orsen Wells will be shown downtown and fits into the reading material from the Shakespearean play "King Lear".

Movie guides for each film will be handed out before each showing. In an interview with Dr. Fulcher, he said that "the Spring semester was also going to be fascinating;" with "Marat Sade" a story related to the French Revolution and the "Pawnbroker" showing alienation in the 20th century.

Each of these films offer the student an extra experience outside of the classroom which in turn relates to the subject matter in the course. The C&C Team has put a great deal of work into the presentation of these flicks so let's enjoy them and let them summon a response from us.

Fly Guys Aim High

Approximately 15 persons attended the first meeting of a newly formed flying club. Acting-President Jim Tilford stated that the aim and purpose was to provide instruction for those interested in flying.

Presently the club, with the help of Mr. Gross, Mr. Babcock, Dr. Wetmore, and Mr. Singleton, are checking the possibility of acquiring a plane. If all goes well, some St. Andrews students will add the Laurinburg-Maxton Airport as part of campus.

Announcements

Jim Bennett, Attorney General for the SA Judiciary Board, has announced the appointment of 3 members to the committee. Appointed as investigators are: Susan Bowen, Sr., Ginny Dwyer, Jr., and Dwight Clay, Soph.

Sign ups for the ICC hayride are now being held downstairs in the Student Center. The hayride will be on Sept. 23 at 8:00 at 50¢ per couple. The first 30 couples to sign up will be the only students eligible to go.

Four-state Tour Planned For SA Singers in 1968

The St. Andrews choir represents 48 of the finest singers in the school even though half of this choir is made up of non-music majors.

Next semester, from January 5-15, the SA choir will sing in the Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and Washington, D. C. The members of the choir will stay in the homes of the members of the churches in which they are singing.

The choir will perform a major choral by Aaron Copeland while on tour. Held in the Presbyterian churches of the area, the performances are usually sung at night.

An informal program, given to high schools and clubs during the day, will include selections from Mame, the current Broadway hit, several folk songs and conclude with Norman Luboff's arrangement of "Dixie."

Faculty and students are invited to attend the choir's home concert which will be Tuesday night, January 16, 1968.

On Parents' Day, the choir will sing at the dedication of the new gym. The choir will sing "Early American Hymn," by Robert Shaw and Mr. Somerville's arrangement of the Alma Mater.

Big audience hoped for at Yarborough concert next Saturday.
