nica "Yearbook" and took part in two NBC programs that won Emmy awards--"White Paper on U.S. Foreign Policy" and "Hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee".

Before his association with NBC, Goralski worked extensively in Asia with the Voice of America, Radio Free Asia and the Asia Foundation.

Robert Goralski, Washington correspondent for NBC news, will speak here tonight at 7:30 in the Avinger Auditorium to climax the Parent's Day events.

Goralski, a specialist in State Department, Pentagon and White House affairs, has been associated with NBC since 1961, covering the administrations of Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon. As well, among his overseas assignments have been coverage of the 1967 Middle East war from the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, the war in Vietnam, the revolution in the Dominican Republic, the war in Laos and the dispatch of U.S. troops to Thailand in 1962.

Parents Occupy Campus For Annual Festivities

Welcome-for the first time or not-to St. Andrews, the land of the free and the home of the brave. There is much offered today to acquaint you with parts of the campus. Perhaps your son or daughter will attempt to tell you about the other parts--the social life, the day-to-day life on a college campus, the quantity and quality of academic assignments, dorm life. The community of St. Andrews offers you a chance to see college life as it is, and can be. Listen and watch and feel for a glimpse into the undercurrents which combine into the essence which is S. A.

Coming up first for visitors to the campus this morning is registration--the necessary shuffling and categorizing of friends of St. Andrews. From 9:00 to 10:00 students and families are meeting and re-evaluating each other.

The general session at 10:00 in the Avinger Auditorium is chaired by Mr. Ralph Nesbit of Richmond who with his wife, Margaret, is chairman for Parents Day. Their son Ralph is a senior. Mr. Nesbit will introduce the four speakers for the plenary session: Robert F. Davenport, College Pastor, who will offer the invocation; Dr. Donald J. Hart, President of the College; Wilburn Hayden, President for the Student Association; and Charles Parrish, Alumni Director.

From 11:00 until 12:45 there will be two sessions on How Colleges are Run and "The Arts At St. Andrews". Also during this time span, tours will be conducted over the new Science Center.

Dr. Douglas Hix, Director of the Christianity and Culture Program, will moderate a panel discussion on "How Colleges Are Run". Members of the panel will be Eddie Porter, student, Professor Ron Crossley, and Dean Robert Davidson. Each will respond to an opening statement by Dr. Hix on how this college is being run at this time.

Professor Art McDonald will speak and present a demonstration on the Arts at St. Andrews. Student actors will show the developing skills of an actor-- the techniques and methods used as an actor gains proficiency in the medium.

Faculty and visitors will be guests for lunch at 1:00 followed by the Dean's Cup Races right outside the cafeteria. These traditional displays of prowess in the water by the boating advocates on campus are always humorous and sometimes even exciting.

S.A.'s renowned soccer team will face Lynchburg College at 3:00 p.m. on the field behind Kings Mountain dormitory. Lynchburg is traditionally a rival, and the two teams should provide an interesting contest.

And, to cap the day, Robert Goralski will address the campus at 7:30 p.m., once again in Avinger auditorium. Planned for Sunday morning is a contemporary worship service in the College Union building at 9:30.

During the weekend there will be exhibits from the College's clubs, publications and organizations on display in the Main Lounge in the College Union. And the Springs' Traveling Art Show is housed in the Vardell building for your viewing pleasure.

Parent's Day will, hopefully, provide parents and visitors with real insights into the operation of St. Andrews. And we wish students good luck in getting that monthly check increased or augmented. Have a beautiful time!

Ollis Appointed To Southern Public Education Committee

JIM OLLIS

By Charlie Pratt

Jim Ollis, Director of Student Activities at St. Andrews and Vice President of the United States Jaycees, was recently appointed by President Nixon to a twenty-eight member advisory council on public education in North Carolina. The immediate objective of this council is to work for an orderly transition from the dual system to a unitary system while preserving public education of the highest quality of all children.

In an interview, Mr. Ollis rationalized the existence of such a committee. It is an attempt by the Nixon administration to obtain grassroots communication between it and the Southern leadership. The council may make recommendations for money distribution, totalling 75 million for the South and border states. Although the council has no ultimate power in this area, so far none of its recommendations have been refused.

In addition, the council works with local leadership to organized desegregation plans. Asked about the bussing of students to achieve desegregation, Ollis commented that he was not opposed to bussing as such but that he did object to bussing which placed students in bad environment. The bussing of ghetto students to a better school was necessary. Relating to this, he said that the concept of exact percentages for integration of schools was unreasonable, because it is impossible to do it. What he favors is a maximum and minimum percentage breakdown by race. "Bringing youngsters together is the whole point." In regard to the Charlotte-Mecklenburg case pending in the Supreme Court, he doesn't feel that the court will make any drastic changes in the policies now practiced.

The problem of desegregation, as Ollis sees it, is that most people uptight about the issue refuse to make sacrifices for the welfare of the community. "The community is the average of all its citizens, and people must begin to realize this." Just as Mr. Nixon puts it, "I and this administration are dedicated to enforcing the laws (on desegregation) passed by Congress and interpreted by the Courts."

Another problem which the council must face is what Nixon calls the "white flight" to pri-

State-Wide Meeting Women's Liberation

Seven women students from St. Andrews attended a state-wide Women's Liberation conference in Fayetteville last Saturday. Approximately seventy-five women from Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill, High Point, Charlotte, Wilson, Fayetteville and Greensboro met for the all-day conference held at the Haymarket Square Coffee House.

A plenary session in the morning was spent in discussing the various projects being carried on throughout the state. Women from Durham are working on "Lollipop Power", publishing children's books themselves which are non-sexist, and non racist. Several areas were involved in running day-care centers for working mothers while others were organizing working women for higher wages and more awareness of the implications of their being women. Graduate students were organizing within their departments; a psychologist will be organizing throughout the state as she travels.

Discussion groups in the afternoon considered the various problems which women face--from birth control to abortion, male-female relationships and roles, the plight of women workers, racism, male chauvinism (the notion that the male is superior to the female of the species and thus that women must play a submissive role within society).

All ages, all classes were represented. The majority of women present for the conference were not students but wives, mothers, workers who have felt societal pressures as women and who are reacting to them. High school sophomores to grandmothers knitting: there was a wide diversity in political and social views, in backgrounds, in attitudes--and yet they are "sisters". The state organization looks to be a very good and real thing in the future.

YOUR OWN THING, the Highland Players' first production of the season opens next Wednesday, Oct. 7 at 8 p.m. at the Liberal Arts Auditorium. It is the story of twins, a male and a female, who are identical. During a shipwreck they become separated and end up in the same city, although neither knows the other is around. To confuse the plot even more, they are hired for the same job. Arthur McDonald, director of the production, announced the cast recently. Playing the twins are Sally Carlson as Viola, and Steve Wilson, Sebastian; Bill Forrest, Orson; Yvette Smith, Olivia; Danny Mizell, Danny; John Biba, John; Lavis Bowden, Michael; Linda Logan, Nurse; and Jeff Albertson, STAGE MANAGER and Purser. This picture was taken during rehearsal earlier this week. Members of the Highland Players will be selling season tickets through October 6 for $3.00.
