Schweitzer To Speak On Crisis And Imperatives

"Imperatives for a Planet in Crisis" is the title of a lecture to be given Monday night, March 15, by Dr. George K. Schweitzer. In his 7 p.m. lecture in Avenger Auditorium Dr. Schweitzer will discuss population, poverty, pollution, power, and politics. This lecture, is the last of the year in the Visiting Scholars series sponsored by the Piedmont University Center.

Dr. Schweitzer, professor of chemistry at the University of Tennessee, will give an earlier talk, speaking at 4 p.m. primarily to science students and faculty, on "Photoelectron Spectroscopy."

A versatile and frequent author, Schweitzer is the author of two books, "Radioactive Tracer Techniques" and "The Doctorate." He has published 70 research papers in organic and radiochemistry and 12 papers in the philosophy of religion and the philosophy of science. His distinguished academic record includes the winning of two master's degrees and two doctoral degrees. He received the Ph. D. from the University of Illinois in 1948 in inorganic chemistry and in 1964, the Ph.D. in philosophy of religion from NYU. He also has an honorary Sc. D. from Central College where he did his undergraduate work.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the American Chemical Society, the American Philosophical Association, Sigma Xi, and a number of other professional and honorary societies.

Local arrangement for Dr. Schweitzer's visit are being made by Dr. James Stephens, assistant professor of chemistry, who earned his Ph. D. under Dr. Schweitzer's direction at the University of Tennessee.

IN BRIEF

Self-nominations for Student Association officers will end tomorrow at noon. Campaigning will begin Monday with elections the following Monday, March 22.

Ten graduate students from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill who are in the field of science education will visit the SA science facilities tomorrow. The group under the supervision of Dr. Norman Anderson will be given a tour of the science building by Dr. Pedigo.

To SHARE-IT With The Students Of Laurinburg

Share-It means to give a breakfast to a child who does not otherwise get a full meal a day. Share-It means that a student at the elementary or junior high level gets tutoring service at a sufficiently early age. Some enthusiastic students from Laurinburg Institute have become involved in the program Share-It, with short-term goals of setting up a breakfast program and tutorial offerings for both elementary and junior high students in the Laurinburg area. Their enthusiasm stems from their openness to outside help and to sharing the responsibility of running the program.

Fifteen St. Andrews students are working with the LI students to set up a basketball game between the varsities of both schools for fund-raising. Also in the planning stages is a theatre group presentation from LI on campus following the basketball game. The proceeds from these two functions will go toward purchase of food for breakfasts and as well go toward strengthening the organization. Once Share-It becomes established, it hopes to seek regional support from SCLC and eventually apply for a government grant to expand their operation.

What exactly does the new drinking regulation mean for students and for the whole campus? What procedures, if any, need to be followed concerning possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages? What responsibilities do students have? Dean Decker, in an interview earlier this week clarfied the implications of the campus drinking situation as created by the statement recently approved by Dr. Hart. "The use of alcoholic beverages in the residence halls is prohibited outside the suites. In specific social events approved in advance by the Office of Student Personnel Services, alcoholic beverages may be permitted in other locales."

The Student Personnel Service has set up trial "application for social event involving alcoholic beverages" which is designed to protect students, the college and the integrity of student government, Decker noted. The application includes the event, date, time and location to identify the particular social occasion. Also to be filled out are sponsoring organization if any, student leader and faculty-staff member responsible and whether these persons will be present the entire time, what alcoholic beverage will be served, estimated number to attend and whether there will be non-SA students involved. Decker pointed that a "student leader" is the student sponsor of the event who ex post facto becomes a "student leader". This form must be completed by any students planning to drink on campus outside the suites. Drinking is now legal, however, in the entire suite including the suite lounge.

In order to avoid abuse of this privilege, Decker anticipates that some unit of the campus will sponsor at least some of the first "special occasion" parties. Kings Mountain had the distinction of being the first group to drink outside

No Reading Days By Faculty Vote

The faculty yesterday decided that April 1 and 2, noted in the calendar as Testing Days, will retain that classification. No classes will be held and no college-wide or class-wide tests will be given but faculty members may schedule conferences or individual testing and require students to be present. Check with Division Chairmen or individual professors to see if you will be involved.

230 lb. sophomore John LaGuardia put the shot 43' 10" to shatter his school record of 43' 1" at the District 29 indoor track championships at Lynchburg last weekend.

New Drinking Bill In Effect; Look To Dean For Permission

the suites legally with its "tasting party" Monday night. Dean Decker or a member of the Student Personnel Offices will weigh each application individually and may set up conditions under which the occasion may take place. A copy of the application will be kept on file and the original will be returned to the student who is taking responsibility for the affair, for his protection.

Decker stressed that whether students realize it or not, this is a big step forward for the campus and needs to be handled justly.

The primary reasons the applications procedure was set up were to insure compliance with state laws regarding possession and consumption of alcohol and to take into account "many points of concern beyond those reasonably expected to be considered by students." As well, it is anticipated that alumni and faculty groups may wish to take part in on-campus drinking. The same procedures are binding on all members of the SA community.

Decker also pointed out that no beverages may be sold on campus even in some sort of package deal because of county regulations. They must either be "brown bagged" or given away free.

The legal situation is simply that St. Andrews as a private institution has the authorization to permit or refuse the right to possess or consume alcohol on its premises. This permission, which has been given with the reservations pointed out above, is revocable and may be suspended if abuse of the privilege is discovered.

Recital Schedule Set; Ward To Perform First

Highlights on the spring schedule of SA's music world include five senior recitals, one junior recital, two choir concerts, and two musical events of the artist series. All this is in addition to the weekly lab recitals.

Most imminent of the senior recitals is that of Wes Ward this Sunday, March 14, at the Methodist church downtown, at 4:00 p. m. A '69 St. Andrews grad with a degree in economics, Wes stayed on to study organ with Mr. John Williams. Wes will receive his Bachelor of Music in May.

Ward's recital program includes numbers representative of a variety of musical eras. He will open with a Theme and 12 Variations on the Belgian Leid, "Wehe, Windgen, wehe," by Samuel Scheidt, representing the pre-Bach era; then, for the French Baroque era, "Tierce en Taille," by Pierre du Mage; in the English Rococo style, "Flute Solo," by Thomas Arne; and "O Sacred Head Now Wounded" by Dietrich Buxtehude and "Toccata in F Major" by J.S. Bach, both of the German Baroque era.

He will close the recital with

Sonata in d minor, opus 65,

no. 6, by Felix Mendelssohn

and Charles-Marie Widor's

Toccata from the Fifth Organ

Symphony.

Shirley Isenhour, also an organist, will present her senior recital March 28, at 4:00 p. m. at the Methodist Church.

Junior piano major Judy Waple gives a junior recital on April 4, at 8:00 p. m. in the Liberal Arts Auditorium.

The St. Andrews College Choir, now greatly expanded in number since their British tour of England and Scotland will present a spring concert on April 24 in the Avenger Auditorium. Included in the light, happy program are selections from Simon and Garfunkel, from the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar", and from the musical "Mary Poppins", among other works.

Mary Louise Walker, who sang the contralto solos in the oratorio "Messiah" last December, and who also sang the
