Band Performs In L.A.A. Friday

The St. Andrews Concert Band will perform Friday night, Dec. 3rd at 8:00 P.M. in the LA Auditorium. George Weimer will conduct the 25 piece band made up of members of the surrounding community and regular members of the concert band.

The program opens with a concert march composed by George Kenny entitled "Coat of Arms". It is a work that extends the traditional military march into a new field. The next piece, "Essay for Band" by Heisinger makes full use of band instrumentation in displaying that which is normally portrayed in a symphonic orchestra. It uses the full sound of both woodwind and brass in making an "Essay for Band".

"Psyche and Eros" is a symphonic poem composed by Cesar Franck and transcribed for concert band by A.A. Harding. The composition is a gentle but strongly moving piece sometimes hinting at Wagner. "Christmas Carols in Concert" is the one Christmas number on the program. It is an arrangement by Dan Sandidge and contains the Christmas songs "Deck the Halls", "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" and "We Three Kings". The traditional themes of Christmas are recreated through a contemporary musical form.

The second half of the program begins with the theme from "Profiles in Courage" more popularly known as the

Peace Corps Awarded National Recognition

A.P., WASHINGTON, D.C.—
-- For its volunteer work in serving community needs, the St. Andrews' Peace Corps of Laurinburg has been named Citationist in the National Volunteer Awards program of the National Center for Voluntary Action.

Organized in 1961, it serves a county in which approximately 50% of the families earn $3,000 or less annually. In 1970-71, the Peace Corps operated 14 different projects reaching some 230 children and 20 adults.

The projects, ranging from children's tutoring programs to transportation services for the rural elderly poor, each has its own co-ordinator and the support of volunteers. The 75 students and seven faculty members who comprise the Corps give four to six hours of volunteer service weekly.

In addition to regular programs, the Peace Corps performed special projects such as painting a foster home and setting up a swim program for underprivileged children.

The National Volunteer Awards, formerly known as the Lane Bryant Volunteer Awards, were established in 1948 to bring attention to "unsung volunteer heroes." The program has been administered by the National Center for Voluntary Action (NCVA) in Washington, D.C. since 1970.

Committee Reports Given: Senate Apathy Prevalent

The Senate has met twice during the last two weeks, once during the regularly scheduled time and the second time at the special request of the Inter-Dormitory Senate President Scott Breckenridge.

In a regularly scheduled meeting of the Senate November 22, various committees presented reports to the Senate concerning the work that they are involved in; also discussed was the plans for the construction of a chapel to begin with the next year.

Plans for the chapel were revealed at the November 22 meeting of the Senate by Dean Rodger Decker. The plans were a part of a report by David Beale on the activities of the Campus Space and Utilization Committee. It was announced that the Chapel will be a multi-purpose building of four stories standing 85 feet tall at the highest point. The building will have a main sanctuary with a seating capacity of 250. There will be no fixed seating plan and the room will have two focal points, one of the traditional religious pulpit type and the other will be a large stage for drama and choral productions. Dean Decker said it would take a year to draw up definitive plans. Dean Decker also mentioned that work on the new snack bar and bookstore would start the day school closes for spring vacation.

A member of the winter term committee then gave a report on its recent activities. The Committee is now in the process of investigating possible new winter term courses. In order to aid them in this endeavor they are obtaining winter term catalogs from other schools on the 4-1-4 program.

Assemblies and Public Events Committee member Annette Lauber reported that the committee had almost filled the calendar for this year, and was working on next year's calendar. In order to get a better idea of what students want in the way of cultural events, a survey is being prepared and will be distributed in the near future.

Claire Johnston then reported that the Food Committee had been discussing the following issues: 1) Cold sandwiches for the snack bar; 2) extension of the drink bar to relieve congestion. It was decided that the committee would not meet on a regular basis, but only when the need arose. Claire also reported that the committee Chairman, Charlie Gottenkieny, wanted the Senate to appoint two new members to the Committee.

The Senate then proceeded to appoint Elsie Mason and Mary Abell to the Food Committee.

Scott Breckenridge reported that the Student Life Committee had appointed a sub-committee to look at the future of St. Andrews. This is in conjunction with the discussion in the committee about whether Student Life should concern itself with immediate problems, or whether the Committee should concern itself with the future of the college.

The next item of business was the establishment of an activity fund for off-campus students. It was decided that the sum of $25 be subtracted from each dorm's activity fund, and placed in an activity fund for off-campus students.

Open hours for the liberal arts building was then brought up by Chuck Caldwell, vice-president of Meck dorm. Dean Decker stated that the new policy on the LA hours was that the doors would be locked at midnight. Those students already in the LA before midnight would be allowed to stay.

The Senate meeting this week was a special meeting called by Inter-Dormitory President Scott Breckenridge. The reason for this meeting was to discuss with the various senators the apathy that Mr. Breckenridge feels prevails during Senate meetings. Scott was of the opinion that many senators came unprepared for the meetings and were unwilling ple have been killed and ground troops have been replaced with devastating B-52 bombings. But while most SA students are "for peace" (whatever that means) few really know much about Vietnam.

On Tuesday, December 7, we will have a chance to get the facts from an eyewitness who knows what's really going on. Don Luce, the man responsible for the exposure of Thieu's "tiger cage" prisons for political prisoners on Con Son Island, will show a movie in Jr. C&C, answer questions during lunch in the President's dining room at 1:30, and speak in the Student Center Lounge at 3:30. Not only will Luce speak, but his Indochina Mobile Exhibit, which includes over 300 drawings and art works, 24 3 1/2' by 5' photo-posters, and a 23 minute narrated slide presentation, will be shown in the Student Center Lounge all day Tuesday.

Luce, an agricultural expert, served in Vietnam as the head of International Voluntary Services (a private service organization that served as the model for the Peace Corps). He knows the Vietnamese people. After exposing the "tiger cage" political prisons, Luce was kicked out of Vietnam by the embarrassed Thieu government.

Luce's visit to St. Andrews is sponsored by the Politics-History Department, Junior C&C, and the College Christian Council.

The St. Andrews Chorale and Brass Ensemble, under the direction of Professor Edwin Barlow, will present their Christmas concert on Sunday evening, December 5th, at 8:00 p. m. in the Liberal Arts Auditorium. Admission is free.

Class Action Case Taken to Court

The three students who were denied the right to register to vote in Scotland County by the Board of Elections two weeks ago have taken their case to court. The three S.A. students, Rob Williams, Janie McLawhorn, and Jeff Neill have obtained the services of Durham lawyer, Jim Keenan. Mr. Keenan has agreed to take the case for court costs and personal expenses created by the case such as gas money.

Prose & Poetry Finalists Chosen

Eight contestants have placed in the finals of the Senior Series prose and poetry competition, announced Ron Bayes, writer-in-residence.

Not to exceed 5,000 words of prose or 20 pages of poetry, manuscripts were due to be submitted to series Editor Ames Arnold by Monday, November 15. Circulation to judges, professors Jeffrey Gross, Whitney Jones, and Christopher Schenck began November 22. Final judge is to be Sam Reagan, Chairman of the North Carolina Arts Council and editor of the Southern Pines Pilot.

Scotland County's Superior Court, the three students made a class action case, suing the members of the Board of Elections and the Chief Secretary in their official capacity. A class action case means the three students filing suit are doing so not only for themselves but also for all other students attending college in Scotland County who live in dorms and wish to register in Scotland County.

The cost of this suit is expected to be close to or over $500. When asked where this sum of money was coming Jeff Neill said, "We are having to largely depend on support in the form of contributions from the S.A. community. Since this is a class action case and will affect the SA students by allowing them to register to vote here if they so desire, we hope the SA students will contribute most of the money needed. Faculty members will also be asked to contribute to this action."

Students and faculty members who wish to contribute to this cause are asked to either place contributions in campus mail or to call Jeff Neill at ext. 273, Janie McLawhorn at ext. 236 or Rob Williams at ext. 330. Also, a table will be set up in the student center for collecting additional contributions.
