Snack Bar Costs Will Exceed $20,000

BY MARSHALL GRAVELY

As everybody on campus knows by now, St. Andrews has a new and very different snack bar. What is lesser known is some of the facts about its design and cost.

The design for the new facility was conceived by Richard McCord and Howard Cobbs, two St. Andrews graduates, with the technical assistance of Prof. Arthur McDonald. The motif for the design is Old English, which was chosen for its relation to the Scottish heritage of St. Andrews. The atmosphere was designed to be similar to an English pub, with several antiques secured from England by Prof. McDonald during his travels there to enhance the atmosphere.

Also of interest to the students may be the cost of the new facility. According to the present figures, the project has cost something over $20,000.00 so far with the work still incomplete. Accounts made available by Dr. Julian Davis, Business Manager for the college, show that total costs for fiscal 1971 amounted to 13,009.27 and that costs for the current year have already reached 7,915 dollars. Construction is now complete, but a number of extraneous items have been purchased and other complications in the construction are expected to drive costs even higher before the snack bar is considered finished.

Chief among the construction problems are the problem of the charcoal grill and the wiring problems for the pizza ovens. The charcoal grill was purchased at an approximate cost of $160 after which it was discovered that the exhaust system would have to be modified at a minimum cost of $300 to make it usable because of the volume of smoke generated. The wiring problem has resulted from the necessity to provide more voltage for the pizza ovens which were installed. New circuits had to be installed to supply these ovens, which is why pizza is not yet available.

These items are just a few of the things which students should remember when they go to our beautiful new snack bar. It is not without its own problems.

Horn Recital Features Brahms And Schumann

The Division of Art, Music and Theater of St. Andrews Presbyterian College will present Dr. Herbert Horn in a recital of piano music on Sunday, Oct. 1, at 8 p.m. in the Liberal Arts Auditorium. The public is invited to the recital and to a reception to follow in the Vardell Building gallery.

The program for Sunday's recital is as follows: Rondo in A Minor, KV 511 by Mozart; Sonata in D Minor, Op. 31 No. 2, Beethoven; and the following by Brahms: Rhapsody, G Minor, Op. 79, No. 2; Intermezzo B, Flat Minor Op. 117, No 2 and Capriccio, D Minor, Op. 116, No. 7. Of special interest will be a performance of the monumental Fantasia of Schumann, one of his greatest works.

Herbert Horn, professor of piano and head of the piano department at St. Andrews, has achieved an impressive reputation as performer and teacher. He has appeared in many parts of the United States as solo recitalist, ensemble pianist and Orchestral soloist, including solo performances with the Chicago Symphony and Seattle Symphony Orchestras. The Chicago Daily Tribune said of his performance, "Horn has developed a technique equal to almost any demands of speed, fluency and sonority. When he plays, you sit back comfortably, recognizing that the piano is in the

Senate Meetings Discuss Budget, Cabinet Changes

Sunday Meeting

BY LEE SHADLE

Sunday evening, September 24th the Senate held their second meeting of the year. The meeting was called to order by Miles Weaver, President of the Senate. Highlights of the meeting included the resignation of Tricia Smith, President of Student Government Association, Format of the year book, the Community Relations Organization, the suggestion of a Jazz Festival, campus security, discussion of future Senate meetings, and the approval of Sue Everett as Junior member of Student Judiciary Board.

A letter of resignation from Tricia Smith, Student Association President, was presented to the Senate by Joanne Foil, attorney general. The letter reads as follows:

To Miles Weaver, President of the Senate

From: Tricia Smith, President, Student Government Association

Date: September 23, 1972

"I find it necessary to submit my resignation to the Senate. I feel that I can no longer fulfill the duties of the President of the Student Association in that I do not communicate with the majority of the student body adequately enough

Investigation Of High Pay Scale

BY JEFF NEILL

An investigation was instituted Monday by Joanne Foil, Attorney General of the Student Association, into the possible expenditure of inappropriate sums of money by Rod Brown, Student Association Treasurer.

Foil initiated the investigation when information came to her attention that Brown had paid himself and other students $2.50 an hour to clean out and distribute refrigerators at the beginning of the semester.

Such a high pay scale seemed to have been arbitrarily set excessive in amount, and done without approval of the Cabinet. The pay scale seemed especially excessive in lieu of the fact students on workshops earn between $1.60 an hour - for most jobs - to $2.00 an hour for jobs such as professor's assistance.

Jay Bender, former Student Association Treasurer, stated refrigerators were distributed solely by Cabinet members last year. A recommendation made by Bender to the Cabinet and to Tricia Smith, then President of the Student Association, called for a partial workshop of $150.00 to be made available thru refrigerator rentals to a student who would assume full responsibility for distributing refrigerators and handling the financial

Wednesday Meeting

BY JEFF NEILL

The Senate met last night to act upon the vacancies in the cabinet, on the budget, and on community relations.

Paul Finger, was selected by the Senate for Vice President of the Student Association over Jay Bender and Kent Thompson. To obtain Senate approval all candidates had to receive a majority vote cast by senators.

Steve Daniels was appointed Secretary of the Student Association. The position was contested by Phil Bradley and Barbara Watkins. Bradley, a freshman, stated he felt the freshman class, the largest of the four classes, was inadequately represented in Student government. He also said he believed he would counter-balance a Cabinet that he believed to be largely conservative. Bradley withdrew following the first ballot and Daniels won on the second ballot.

Daniels, President of Wilmington Dorm, will now have to resign her position as senator since the constitution stipulates that "no one may hold more than one elected position

Special To The Lance

Daniel Declines Secretary Position

Stevie Daniels, appointed last night as the Student Association Secretary by the Senate, announced today her decision not to accept the appointment. Miles Weaver, Student Association President was informed of her decision earlier today.

Her reasons for not accepting the position were based upon an assessment of her schedule. She told the Lance this afternoon that she had originally wanted the position because she felt a responsible person should fill the position and that she wanted to counter balance those already on the cabinet.

Since then she realized her time would be stretched too thin and she would not be able to adequately perform the duties entailed in the position.

Also influencing her decision was a changed opinion of Phil Bradley, who she now feels would be a responsible and constructive addition to the Cabinet.

Daniels stated that given the amount of time she had budgeted she felt she could be more effective in the Senate representing her dorm.

The position was originally vacated when Glenda Buck, the Student Association Secretary elected last year, decided to spend her junior year studying in Germany. The problem of filling the vacancy will once again revert to the Senate who will have to decide upon a new appointment to fill the position of Student Association Secretary.

Budget, Planning Problems End Project Creativity

BY JACKIE DOVE AND WANDA PATTERSON

Three years ago, during the 1969-1970 academic year, St. Andrews initiated the "Project Creativity" program in order to provide the opportunity for those students who were economically unable to attend college but exhibited high innermost creativity as rated by the Alpha biographical test to matriculate here. The administration hoped that this project would also help to diversify the social and cultural backgrounds of the students being accepted here.

Project Creativity was designed on a five year schooling plan. This meant that any student who needed to take a reduced course load (and this was recommended for every student's first semester) could do so, and still be recognized by

St. Andrews as a full time student. All the project students were involved in a counseling program and were given special original 26 participants returned as sophomores with an average SAC of 2.05. Of those who had not returned only one was for academic reasons. However, after the end of the third year, the project's retention rate had dropped to 40%. This meant that out of the 43 students (25 black, 18 white) who had enrolled under the project, only 19 are still here.

Project Creativity advisors believed that the project's low tutoring sessions in C&C and STMS if needed.

The first year of the Project's existence seems to prove that it was at least a worthwhile experiment. This is a very understandable assumption based on the fact that 19 of the
