Urban Conference Held

St. Andrews was host last week to three distinguished speakers who participated in the Conference on Comparative Urbanization sponsored by C&C 402, Studies in the Future. They were Dr. Belaunde-Terry, former President of Peru; Mr. David Parry, consultant to the Center for Urban Studies in Washington, D.C.; and Dr. Nathan Wright former chairman of the National Conference on Black Power.

Dr. Belaunde spoke on Tuesday night, (February 13) about some of the particular urban problems of city planning in Peru. He also addressed the junior C&C class, and spoke to other classes in politics. According to him, the main concerns of South American urban planners are decent housing, slum clearance, and decentralization of the population into new cities.

Mr. Parry presented a slide show and commentary, also on Tuesday, about the problems of cities in Western and Eastern Europe. The points he stressed were that European cities, especially Stockholm and Helsinki, had been willing to remake their environment. The main problems were redevelopment of areas destroyed in World War II, historical preservation of old buildings, and the handling of traffic as more of their citizens bought cars.

Dr. Wright gave a speech Wednesday afternoon about the metaphysical issues of urbanization, in which he stressed that human needs should be the first priority of any city planners. He said that urban planning was usually done too scientifically, and that the citizens of a city should come before its buildings.

The final session of the conference was Wednesday night, when Mr. Parry and Dr. Wright held a panel discussion and answered questions about their ideas and urban problems in general.

Plans For Chapel Completed; Forum On Finances Tonight

The Belk Memorial Chapel to be built on Chapel Island is nearing the end of its planning stages. A. G. Odell, the architect for St. Andrews, will complete the working drawings in the next few months. The actual construction of the building, after a contractor is chosen, will begin within a year.

The money for the Chapel was received through the Forward Campaign which began accepting funds five years ago. Though there are not exact figures, the projected cost of the building is $500,000. The bulk of the money for the building is coming from the Belk family of North Carolina.

A Bell Tower (Schulmerich Carillon) will also be built on the site at a cost of $25,000. The money for the bell tower is coming from a separate fund. A Shantz organ has been ordered at the cost of $85,000, with this money taken from a third fund.

The height of the building will be 86 feet. The functional part of the building will be 66 feet, comprising four floors. Two floors will house the college pastor and the counseling service. The first floor will have the rest room facilities and the chapel sanctuary. The remaining 20 feet will be a spire on the face of the structure. The fourth floor will house the machinery for the operation of the chapel.

The chapel is intended to be a functional building. There will be a pulpit area, a choir area, and a small stage for religious dramas on different sides of the sanctuary. The building will hold 220 people and will have no fixed seating so as to allow for the viewing of a organ concert, a play, or a sermon or lecture.

As well as being functional the chapel is intended to be symbolically aesthetic. The chapel is designed from triangular shape to represent the Trinity with the mass of glass windows to show outward reflection rather than inward. Even the location is to be symbolic, the chapel representing the body-mind dualism coming together in the church.

Tonight there will be a meeting of those interested in the social implications of the building of the chapel. There are a number of students who are dissatisfied with many aspects of the plan. Some do not like the location, some prefer putting the money into something which will be used by more students, and still others feel that the money should go to areas outside of the St. Andrews campus which desperately need it. Whatever your feelings and ideas on these subjects, come share in the open forum at 7:30 in room LA 132.

In Brief

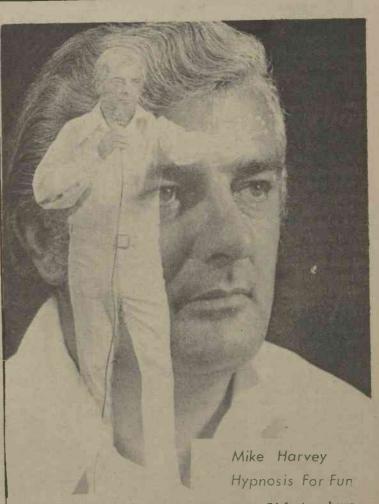

The recital scheduled two weeks ago by Allan Porter, professor of music at Methodist College, will be performed this Sunday at 8 in the Liberal Arts Auditorium. Mr. Porter will sing "The Beautiful Miller's Daughter", a song cycle by Schubert, and will be accompanied by Mr. Harlan Duenow, director of the Fayetteville Symphony.

The SA cycling club will have its first trip of the semester beginning this Sunday at 1:30 p.m. The destination for this outing is Hasty. All interested cyclists are invited to come along.

HELP!

The Lance is in dire need of writers, workers, etc., as can be seen from this issue. Unless the students at SA are interested enough to provide some of this needed help, this could well be the last Lance published this year. For financial reasons as well as staff reasons, the Lance cannot continue without assistance. Therefore, the staff urges any interested persons to contact Marshall Gravely at ext. 273. If you have any news, etc. to report and would like it in the paper, please do the same. The Lance is a student newspaper. If the students are not willing to help with it, or if it is just "not worth the hassle", then it will not continue. This is not designed as a complaint against apathy -- it is just a simple statement of fact. So, if you care enough to read the paper and complain when it doesn't have any news or when the news in it does not adequately what is happening(?) on this campus, do something about it. No writing or news experience is necessary for the work we need done. Mostly, though, we just need to have people be concerned. Otherwise, it's all over for the paper, and by inference, for everything else at SA that matters (other than dope, beer, parties, and related hedonism).

Amateur hypnotist Mike Harvey will return to SA for two shows Friday, February 23, at 8 and 10 p.m. in the College Union. Harvey was on campus last fall, and puts on quite an interesting show, so check it out.
