EROS To Bring Back Fifties At Saturday Night Concert

It's nostalgia time at St. Andrews this Saturday night as the College Union Board presents in concert EROS, a Fifties-style band. The sock-hop type dance will begin at 8 p.m. outside behind the College Cafeteria, and will be BYOB. Students are urged to add to the occasion by dressing up in their ideas of Fifties costume, including (for males) greased back hair, greasy T-shirts, khaki pants, and black leather jackets. For females, try pleated skirts, bobby sox, old letter sweaters, and black and white saddle shoes. Anyway, use your imagination -- the event is planned more for the mood itself than for the music.

If you can't remember the Fifties, as many people cannot--since they were so forgettable--just find a friend who has some ShaNaNa records with such giant hits as "Teen Angel," "Soldier Boy" and of course Elvis' "Heartbreak Hotel" or "You Ain't Nothin' But A Houn' Dawg". Those should get you in the mood.

The St. Andrews Honor Society held its annual Spring Banquet Tuesday night for the purpose of inducting members and announcing the recipients of the Sophomore Scholars awards.

Following the invocation by Yann Joines and dinner, Terry Riddle, President of the Honor Society welcomed the group and introduced Dr. Hart, President of the college, who made a short address about the significance of honors system and the value of liberal arts education for use in later life.

Terry Riddle then made the presentation of recognition certificates to the new members, 32 juniors and seniors who had maintained an average of 3.25 or better for five regular terms at St. Andrews. The new members are Sid Atkinson, Rod Brown, Andy Buffington, John Bush, Emily Cheney, Stevie Daniels, Janice Davidson, Sue Everett, Mike Fletcher, Joanne Foll, Debbie Goranson, Marshall Gravely, Jimmy Haddix, Tony Hall, Susan Harris, Martha Jo Helms, Steve McAllister, Julie McCollum, Susan McCue, Joan McKechnie, Richard Morgan, Katrina Nesbit, Dave Ralph, Madison Rogers, Dennis Sharpe, Mark Smith, Tommy Sperling, Beth Stalder, Larry Street, Bruce Taylor, Becky Wampier, and Dixon Williams.

Next, Jay Bender, Vice-President of the Society, presented similar certificates of recognition to the Sophomore Honor students. Three Seniors Compete In Recent Business Game

Three St. Andrews Presbyterian College students were chosen to compete in the third annual student competition in "The Executive Game" taking place at the Board of Science and Technology Building in the Research Triangle last Friday and Saturday.

The Executive Game, (or TEXG), is a simulated management situation developed for college business courses. It presupposes an industry in which a limited number of companies are competing. In last weekend's competition the St. Andrews team, captained by J. Mark Smith, senior from Clayton, Ga., is one of eight companies or colleges in the industry. On the team with St. Andrews were: UNC-Charlotte; East Carolina U. (2 teams); Davidson; N.C. Central University; and Mars Hill. Also on the St. Andrews team were George Howard, a senior of Tarboro; and David R. Bowie, senior from Abbeville, S.C. Dr. Donald Paxton, associate professor of economics, was faculty advisor for the local group.

Sponsored by the North Carolina Educational Computing Service, The 1973 Executive Game is coordinated by Dr. J.D.J. Holmes, chairman of the St. Andrews business and economics program, with the assistance of Joseph R. Denk, curriculum development manager of the NCECS. St. Andrews senior, John A. Bullard from LaGrange, Ga., is serving as assistant game coordinator for the second year.

The Executive Game has been modified to enable the computer to "take part" as a competing team. In several experimental runs the computer "team" improved the level of play significantly and, from student reaction, has created a more interesting game. In final standings the computer team ranged from second to eighth place in rank.

Winners in the competition were announced at the close of the game period Saturday. The St. Andrews team finished a close second to UNC-Charlotte.

Applications will be taken in the next two weeks for next year's Lance staff. Positions open are Editor 2 Associate Editors, and Business Manager. To apply, list name, class, and campus address as well as position applied for, and leave it in campus mail for Box 757, or contact Marshall Gravely at ext. 273, Box 683.
