Oral Historian Montell Speaks Tonight At SA

One of the top oral historians of the country will give a public lecture at St. Andrews tonight. Dr. W. Lynwood Montell of Western Kentucky University will speak at 8 p.m. in Avinger Auditorium. His topic will be "Oral History and Folklore: Some Relationships."

Dr. Montell is the author of The Saga of Coe Ridge: A Study in Oral History, a widely-acclaimed work published by the University of Tennessee Press. The book on Coe Ridge is a study of 100 years in the life of small black communities in the Cumberland Mountains. Montell gathered material for the book almost entirely from oral sources.

Now coordinator for Western Kentucky's Center for Intercultural Studies, Dr. Montell is a member of numerous professional societies for folklore scholars and is program co-chairman for the annual meeting of the American Folklore Society.

A graduate of Western Kentucky, he earned his master's and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Indiana, Bloomington. Before returning to Western Kentucky in 1969, he was on the faculty at Campbellsville College for six years, the last year as vice president for academic affairs.

In addition to his work in oral history, Dr. Montell has worked on a number of educational television film projects concerned with folksongs, housing, and crafts of the Kentucky mountain culture.

Prior to his public lecture, Dr. Montell will speak informally with St. Andrews students majoring in history and American Studies at a 5:30 supper in the college cafeteria. Dr. Montell's visit has been arranged by Dr. Charles Joyner, chairman of the American Studies program at St. Andrews.

Self-Nominations for staff positions on the 1973-74 Lamp and Shield (yearbook) staff will be open through next Wednesday, May 9th. Positions open are Editor, Assistant Editor, and Business Manager. If you wish to self-nominate, drop a card with your name, experience, and position desired to Lamp and Shield, Campus Mail.

Farrago will close out its season this Saturday night with the Reedy Creek Ramblers, the Flatland Country Band, and Bruce Stuart.

Trustees Act To Plan Long-Range Land Use

Comprehensive planning for the next decade or more both in terms of physical assets and educational goals and objectives was the chief topic as trustees of St. Andrews Presbyterian College held their semi-annual meeting Thursday. At a luncheon concluding the meeting, Congressmen L. H. Fountain and Earl B. Ruth, both members of the board of trustees, spoke briefly on past and future directions of federal aid to higher education.

The two Congressmen also took part in the placing of plaques of appreciation "to the American people for their financial assistance" on two campus buildings constructed in part with federal funds.

Trustees also voted associate professor emeritus status for Miss Leta McIntyre who retires from the faculty later this year after teaching since 1942 at St. Andrews and its forerunner, Flora Macdonald. Leaves of absence also were approved for Assistant Professor George Weimer for doctoral study and to Associate Professor Stuart Marks for research in Africa.

The board authorized James L. Morgan, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, to utilize consultant advice in developing a comprehensive land-use plan for the 820-acre main campus and 244-acre holdings at the Laurinburg-Maxton Airbase. The college currently is using some 150 acres of the campus. The proposed land-use plan is designed to guide the board in realizing the maximum potential from future development of its property.

Trustees also authorized the executive committee to organize and implement a similar comprehensive study by "as blue-ribbon panel of consultants and St. Andrews personnel" of the goals and objectives of the college for the next ten to twenty years.

Representative Ruth, whose Eighth District embraces Laurinburg and Scotland County, said that Congress is vitally interested in the "taking stock" now being done by higher education. He suggested that colleges should have their aims carefully thought out and priorities assigned in seeking Congressional appropriations. On the future of federal aid to higher education, Ruth, now a member of the House Appropriations Committee, predicted that student aid would be the largest program but that increasingly the federal government's role would be to guarantee privately-made loans rather than making direct loans. Ruth said he hoped for the future creation of a trust fund for education from earmarked revenues to end the ever-mounting pressures for shares of general revenues. Ultimately, he said, the life or death of any institution is determined by the service it renders, underscoring the need for planned objectives.

Representative Fountain briefly reviewed the growing role of the federal government in higher education from the National Defense Education
