

St. Andrews' Mary Solomon, a native of Ghana, goes over final plans for this week's International Students' Seminar with Dean David McNair.

World Seminar Held This Week

Over forty students from twenty-five nations are gathered on the St. Andrews campus this week for the 1975 International Students Seminar.

Devoted to an examination of the topic, "The World Economy in the Near Future", the conference will feature among its panel a speakers panel of citizens from the South American nation of Guyana; Dr. Martin Bronfenbrenner, Kenan Professor of Economics at Duke University; Dr. Jan Sulmicki of the Main School of Planning in Warsaw, Poland, and Dr. Robert Bradbury, a foreign trade specialist at the University of Florida.

An added feature of the seminar, which will be held in Avinger Auditorium

An added feature of the seminar, which will be held in Avinger Auditorium, will be a screening tonight of the widely-acclaimed film, "Visions of Eight", in which eight film directors from eight different lands present their independent views of the 1972 Olympic Games.

Expected to attend, in addition to the St. Andrews contingent of foreign students, are Thomas Abaseki, Lawrence Agumodu, Oliver Ekong, Alphaeus Iruka, and Chris Isiguzo of Nigeria; Jeffrey and Leona Fernander of the Bahamas; Christian Antwi and James Quayee of Ghana; Martin Seidel and Marc Donaldson of West Germany; Aminah Faal of Gambia; Maxwell Cox, Winston Dennis, Winston Frank and John Rollins of Guyana; Kamala Manchigiah of India, Beatrice Stoerk of Switzerland; Paul Hendricks of the Netherlands; Ecuadorian Jeanette Zambrano, Fereidun Shahidzadeh of Iran; Alongir Hoshmi of Pakistan; Rhonold Mukombe of Rhodesia; Megumi Toda of Japan; Malaysian TinChee Ester Wong; Adil Tolaysyum of Turkey; Arnold Getho-Sontho Hill and Johnson Pajiba of Liberia; Marie Le Denne and Puschal Le Grand of France; Claude Josia, of the South American colony of French Guiana; Chantel Mevs of Haiti; Borbor Smith of Sierra Leone; Thomas Valls of Brazil; Diane Zapataski of Taiwan; Maria Dahlin and Ann Fredeu of Sweden, and Fermin Bocanegro of Peru.

Conn Wins

The Rev. George Conn, St. Andrews' College pastor, was busy Saturday competing in the Fifth Annual Southeastern U.S. Masters Track and Field Championship in Raleigh. Conn's day began before 8:00 a.m. and ended at 5:30 p.m. Between those hours he picked off first place in the Division 1-B (35-39) 3 mile run setting a new meet record, a third place in the mile run, and ended the day by winning the 3000 meter steeple chase.

Conn expects to compete in a series of road and cross-country races and track meets over the next three months pointing for the National AAU Masters Championships in New York this summer.

race against time. Quickness is communication is what counts. His prophetic nature would be worthless without speed. Pound explored the relation of knowledge to action in order to see his vision and not to sway from his natural course. A poet can be prophetic about his own destiny, but cannot let wisdom be robbed by action," said his daughter.

The princess encouraged St. Andrews literary students to pursue history claiming, "History teaches men to speak humanely. History is a sequence of like causes and like effects. It repeats itself. Pound harps on history because he means things have a beginning and an end."

In a question and answer session following the lecture, Mary de Rachewiltz reflected on Ezra Pound as a father and person: "He was the greatest, kindest and most marvelous father anyone could have wished for. He took his role seriously. I wish for everyone to have a father like my own."

With tact, finesse and color of private Alpine village life, Mary de Rachewiltz cast a whole new warm and personal light on the universally renowned and controversial poet, Ezra Pound.

Princess de Rachewiltz's lecture at St. Andrews in marks the beginning of a nationwide tour which will take her all the way to British Columbia before she returns home, stopping on the way to attend the Ezra Pound Celebration in his birthplace, Hailey, Idaho.

and message of the New Testament. The Association for Targumic Studies was formed to prepare and publish scholarly texts and translations of these targums and to sponsor and encourage further studies of their language and thought.

To this end the Association chose St. Andrews Presbyterian College, with its excellent and immediately available computer facilities, to be the center for its text and translation project, called the Project for the Computerization and Publication of Targumic Literature. Professor Ernest Clarke of the University of Toronto serves as the Executive Editor of the series with Dr. Doubles as the Managing Editor. An editorial board of seven other scholars aids the two: Professor Wally Auffrecht (McMasters College, Hamilton, Ontario), Dr. J. Foster (Pfeiffer College), Dr. Charles Fritsch (Princeton University), Dr. B. Grossfield (University of Wisconsin), Professor M. Klein (Bar Elan University, Israel), Dr. G. Kuiper (Interdenominational Theological Center, Atlanta), and Dr. S. Lund (Boston University). The Association is currently seeking funds to support this activity and, if successful, the present state of research indicates that the first texts should begin to appear in about two years.

The Association also sponsors a newsletter which is published three times annually under the editorship of Professor Auffrecht. With subscriptions from around the world, this letter provides a means for scholars to stay abreast of studies and activities related to targumic literature wherever they may be occurring, as well as with doctoral dissertations in progress. In addition, the Association maintains connections with the Society of Biblical Literature, one of the member societies of the American Council of Learned Societies, through a program section as part of the annual meeting of the S.B.L. Dr. Bruce Malina of Creighton University, Omaha, is Convener of this program section and a member of the Executive Council of the Association.

The international character of the Association is reflected as well by its relationship to the International Organization for the Study of the Old Testament which meets once every three years. The Association for Targumic Studies was a part of last year's meeting of this organization in Edinburgh and, as Executive Council Chairman, Dr. Doubles will also chair the meetings of the Steering Committee and Advisory Board at the next meeting in 1977 in Gottingen, West Germany. This Board is comprised of eleven senior scholars from eight different nations.

Weiss Exhibit To Open

There will be a special showing of photographs by Ralph Weiss in the Vardell Gallery from April 16 through April 22. The show will open at 11:30 Wednesday with a 'gallery talk' by Mr. Weiss who will discuss what makes photography art.

Weiss, who once taught Bob Tauber, presently runs the Ralph Weiss Photo Workshop in New York City for young professional photographers.

His works may be found in major collections including the Museum of Modern Art and have been published widely in books and magazines.
