

THE LANCE

A Weekly Journal of News and Events At St. Andrews Presbyterian College

Volume 15

LAURINBURG, N. C. THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1975

Number 7

Manhunt Comes To An End

"SNOOPY," the Charlotte, N. C. police helicopter, took part in a massive manhunt last week for Gregory H. Jones, the alleged murderer of a Wilmington youth who shot a Highway Patrol officer near Laurinburg. Here it takes off from Scotland High School (photo by The Laurinburg Exchange).

Laurinburg was back to normal early this week after a two day manhunt for a man accused of murdering a Wilmington youth and shooting a highway patrolman outside town Thursday. The suspect was apprehended near Pate-Gardner School in Gibson Friday and captured without a struggle.

Gregory Hudson Jones, 26, calmly turned himself into a team of law enforcement officers as they were checking the small primary grade school about 2:30 Saturday. He is charged not only with felonious assault on Trooper Harry E. Stegall but with one count of murder in Wilmington, two other counts of felonious assault and also with first degree burglary.

Today law officers were continuing their search for the Jones vehicle and for the firearm used to wound Stegall.

The man who had been declared an outlaw Friday morning reportedly called to the law men from a nearby soybean field and quietly asked if he could turn himself in. He was ordered to drop his pistol. The officers stated that he tossed the weapon—the .357 calibre service pistol taken from Trooper Stegall's person—onto the ground and came forward with his hands above his head.

Outlaw status means that a person may be shot on sight if he fails to surrender when asked to do so.

Tired and dirty, Jones was immediately transported to the Scotland county courthouse, where he was sequestered for questioning for about an hour in the grand jury room. He was later moved down a rear hallway directly into the magistrate's office for a bond hearing before Magistrate Vivian McCall.

Jones' arrest came as the climax of a two-day search for the man accused in the Thursday morning slaying of a Wilmington youth, Peter Fearing, 17, and the injury of two teenage companions.

His arrest ended a massive search extending into five states. Within minutes after the shooting of the highway patrolman in Laurinburg Friday morning, roadblocks had been set up throughout

Mrs. Chay's Store A Delight

"Serendipity", as the Oxford Dictionary defines it, is the making of an unexpected or happy discovery while looking for something else altogether. Students who frequent the stores in the Brooks Shopping Center at 1410 S. Main will experience just such a discovery by visiting "Serendipity", a new natural foods store recently opened by Mrs. June Chay.

Mrs. Chay, circulation librarian at St. Andrews, says her interest in natural foods was the catalyst that led to the opening of the store. That interest goes back to 1954, when she came to America from Korea.

"At that time," she told LANCE, "I thought—as so many foreigners do—that everyone in America was wealthy and the reason there were so many overweight people was because they all ate well." She soon learned, however, of Americans' propensity for eating for eating's sake—"people consume so many empty calories!"—and of the diminished protein and vitamin value of processed foods. "With all the processes and additives and colorings and preservatives added to food, very little of its nutritive value is left when it reaches the plate," she says.

Concluding that too few people really know what they are eating and need to be eating, Mrs. Chay opened

Pound Lectures Set

To honor the 90th birthday of the late Ezra Pound, St. Andrews is planning a two-day festival in celebration of one of America's great men of letters. The festival will take place Oct. 28 and 29, the two days prior to the poet's birthday, and will feature an address by Pound's publisher—James Laughlin—and a performance of a readers' theater event based on selections of Pound's poetry.

The late American expatriate poet has been called many things, both favorable and unfavorable. The U.S. government, during World War II, branded Pound a traitor to his country, while a whole generation of American poets and writers have looked to Pound as "the grandfather of modern poetry."

Whatever one might think of Pound's controversial economic and political pronouncements, his influence over the current of American poetry since the nineteen-twenties is undeniable.

At the featured event of St. Andrews' Ezra Pound Festival, "A Dialogue with James Laughlin," Pound's publisher and close friend Laughlin will discuss the poet's economics as well as his art. The event is scheduled for Tuesday evening, Oct. 28 at 8 p.m. in the college's Liberal Arts Auditorium.

Laughlin, founder and publisher of New Directions Press, published the bulk of Pound's work in the United States, and was also a close friend and student of the poet.

The most significant publisher of modern American poetry, prose and drama, Laughlin has published the work of William Carlos Williams, Denise Levertov, Tennessee Williams, Charles Olson, Henry Miller, Dylan Thomas, Carson McCullers, Gary Snyder, Kenneth Patchen, Jonathan Williams, Robert Duncan and Lawrence Ferlinghetti, along with many

Big Picture

The long-discussed "Big Picture", a photograph of the entire St. Andrews community, is still set for next Wednesday at 11:30 a.m., says News Director Tom Patterson.

Intended for use as the cover of the upcoming "Whole St. Andrews Catalog" the photo will be taken on the terrace outside DeTamble Library.

LANCE editor Lin Thompson said plans are underway to carry a two page blowup of the finished product as soon after the event as a print can be acquired.

This Week

TONIGHT: Violinist Eugen Sarbu performs at Scotland High with the North Carolina Symphony at 8:15 p.m. See stories, pages 4, 10.

Wednesday, October 29:
THE BIG PICTURE 11:30 a.m., DeTamble Terrace. See story, page 1.

Tuesday, October 28:
James Laughlin presents the second Ezra Pound Lecture. 8 p.m. in the Liberal Arts Auditorium. See story, page 1.

Wednesday, October 29:
"An Evening With Ezra Pound" by writer-in-residence Ron Bays. 8 p.m. in Avinger Auditorium.

Inside:
Editorial Letters..... page 2
Reviews ..... page 3
Features ..... page 6-7
Sports ..... pages 10-12