Rusk Fellowship Applications Available

Application for the first three Howard Rusk Fellowships are now available, says Rehabilitation Center Director Robert Urie.

The fellowships were announced by rehabilitation medicine pioneer Howard A. Rusk during his keynote address at the November 14 dedication of the Jack Burris Rehabilitation Center on campus. They are good for two months of study at the Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine in New York City.

The three students chosen will automatically be accepted by the Institute. One current St. Andrews student, Linda Clawson, participated in the Institute's training program last summer.

Urie urged interested students to apply quickly telling THE LANCE he was hopeful of picking the three winners by Christmas.

A note To the Reader

With all the talk of a non-commercial Christmas this year, we'd like to suggest a good Christmas investment. The family of Thurman Chavis Chavis, who died in October, are finding themselves in a bad way insofar as food and funds are concerned. Ann Turner, who works in the Business Office, is receiving contributions to the Chavis family. Go by and give a little. Mr. Chavis was a part of St. Andrews for over a decade and was famous for doing little favors for practically everybody at one time or another. Now you can do something tangible in return.

Snow!

Two pints make a cavort, goes the old party joke, but so does an unexpected snowfall. St. Andrews had its first snowfall in two years on November 24 when big flakes fell but failed to stick. For a while, though, study was forgotten and a good time was had by all. (Photo by Billy Howard)

Miller cited For expertise

"CoEvolution Quarterly," the supplement to the "Last Whole Earth Catalog" and "Whole Earth Epilog," has, in its most recent issue, recommended three books to the general public for those who wish to understand the energy crisis and its relationship to energy problems and options for the future.

Two of these three books were written by Dr. G. Tyler Miller, Jr., Professor of Chemistry & Human Ecology here at St. Andrews. Both of these books have been used in the freshman Selected Topics In Modern Science course. The first book, "Energetics, Kinetics, & Life: An Ecological Approach," was used in STMS several years ago and is now used in Thermodynamics & Kinetics I. Selected by "Choice" magazine as one of the outstanding books of 1972, this book was recommended for a basic understanding of ecology and life.

For an understanding of the major energy problems and the energy crises that face us now and in the future, the "Whole Earth Catalog" recommends Dr. Miller's latest book, "Energy & Environment: Four Energy Crises," now being studied in STMS.

By far his biggest success and his major work, Miller's "Living in the Environment" was being used for introductory environmental courses in over 400 different colleges and universities in the U.S. within six months after its publication last January. His publishers indicate that it is the most widely used environmental textbook in the country.

Coming to the college in 1966 as an Assistant Dean and responsible for the total science program here including the nationally and internationally recognized St. Andrews Science Center, Dr. Miller has

Lance to be Published Winter term

THE LANCE will publish two issues during Winter Term, editor Lin Thompson announced yesterday along with a number of appointments and staff changes.

Thompson said that the two issues, the first to be put out in Winter Term by the paper since the 4-1-4 concept was adopted at St. Andrews, will appear on January 16 and 30, 1976. Editing the two issues will be a freshman member of THE LANCE staff from Columbia, South Carolina, Michael Greene. Greene will oversee the paper's operations in the absence of editor Thompson, who will be in Greece with Prof. Dick Prust's Winter Term class.

Thompson said that regular weekly publications of THE LANCE will resume on February 13, 1976, and that Winter Term Editor Greene will assume the position of Managing Editor for the rest of the year.

Thompson also announced the appointments of Doug Mushet as Layout Editor and Billy Howard as Photo Coordinator for the paper as well as the acquisition of two new staff members and the resignation of another.

A native of Augusta, Georgia, Mushet, joined THE LANCE staff in September as a sports writer. He assumes his new duties with today's issue. Howard, a junior from Raleigh, North Carolina, joined THE LANCE last spring and began his new duties, which involve coordinating the work of THE LANCE's photographic staff, two weeks ago.

Joining the staff as a photographer and part time writer is freshman Tom Stoecker of Harvard, Massachusetts; also signing on as a sports writer is Pittsburgh, Penn. senior Kim Johnson, who will concentrate

McCALL

PATTERSON

McCall is news director

In a move that exemplifies St. Andrews' belief in "affirmative action" employment policies, the College has appointed Mary Jo McCall to the position of News Director. McCall has been an integral part of the News Bureau since her arrival on the St. Andrews campus in February of this year. She has acted as Bureau Manager for the College, coordinating the various functions of the News Bureau. Now the news director finds herself in a supervisory position with responsibilities for writing and directing the dissemination of news created at St. Andrews College and in Laurinburg.

A native of Laurinburg, McCall is a graduate of Peace College in Raleigh, North Carolina, where she earned a degree in Business. After accompanying her husband to Florida where he earned a degree in Professional Photography, McCall who has one son, Markus, now 16 months of age, embarked on a business career that has taken her to her present position of News Director.

The 24 year old McCall assumed her new duties on December first, succeeding Tom Patterson, who joined the college staff as News Director in September.
