

Madrigal Feast to Be Held

The St. Andrews Presbyterian College Chorale and Chamber Singers will present the fourth annual Elizabethan Madrigal Feaste on December 1 and 2.

The feast will celebrate the holiday season in the Olde English tradition of singing, minstrels, heralds, boar's head and wassail bowl processions, and the ceremony of the Lord of the Manor. Mark Parsons, St. Andrews professor of music and theatre, is directing the feast this year.

The menu for the evening is wassail, potato and leek soup, roast sirloin of beef, glazed carrots, roast whole potatoes, green salad, hard rolls, and cherry or lemon tarts.

The celebration will be held in the Belk Main Lounge at 7 p.m. on the St. Andrews campus. Tickets cost $15 for adults and $8 for students. They will be available Nov. 1 at the Scotland County Memorial Library. Tickets must be paid for when requested.

Odds and Sods

Deborah Kelly

Professor Ron Bayes, St. Andrews writer-in-residence recently received good news about the current group of St. Andrews students spending fall semester at Brunnenburg Castle in Italy.

Via long distance telephone, Princess Mary deRachewitz informed Dr. Bayes that the students are presenting a production of her father, Ezra Pound's Women of Trachis at the Merano City Theater, Tartarotti on November 6. The President of Italy, Cossiga has sent his congratulations to the group and hopes that he can make the performance.

Princess Mary's son, Sizzo who has a Ph.D in Mythology will be here in the spring to teach the following courses: Introduction to Pound Studies(2 credits), Mythology(4 credits) and Folklore(4 credits).

Also this spring, Rabbi Mahre will share what it is like to be Jewish in the modern world in his course, Introduction to Judaism. This class will focus on the relationship of Judaism and Christianity and involve a field trip to the Rabbi's synagogue in Florence.

Helen Copeland's latest book, Endangered Specimen is currently available through the St. Andrews Press. Dealing mostly with nature, Copeland's compilation of poems have described by Mary Kratt as being "both playful and wise, a mature work of wit and ardor." Endangered Specimen lists for $10.00.

With sad regret, we note the passing of our dear friend Joel Oppenheimer, adjunct professor of literature of St. Andrews. He was a former Black Mountain College student who read his work at St. Andrews many times. His books, Names, Dates and Places and At Fifty had been published by the St. Andrews Press.

The following events have been planned for students by the new Student Activities Director, Glen Harrison:

Saturday, Nov. 5

Trip to Asheville, N.C. to tour the Biltmore Estate.

Wednesday, Nov. 9 at 7 p.m.

Tie dye workshop will be held in Farrago. No fee, bring what you want dyed.

Wednesday, Nov. 16 at 6:30 p.m.

Oyster roast/crab boil on the Gathering Place balcony.

Other dates to remember:

- Nov. 4 - Casino Night
- Nov. 5 - Meck's party
- Nov. 8 History Club Election Bash
- Nov. 12 - Wilmington's Dress to Impress

Blue-White Bash

Reggae band Peace of Mind jammed at Blue-White while students moved to their sound.

Volley ball competition, one of several events, took place off of Granville Beach

Darin Lawrence and the East Coast Blue Grass Band closed out the celebration of Blue-White.

You're smart enough to calculate the size of a Hydrogen atom.

And you're still smoking?

U.S. Department of Health & Human Services