SENIOR NORMAL CLASS NEWS

Mrs. Otelia Williams and Marie Jones, who were detained by illness, are welcomed back into the fold of the class.

It seems as if the practice teachers are getting some humor in the classroom along with the seeming hard work. The other day Clara Allen asked one of her pupils to define "hurricane." The answer came: "A hurricane is a man riding through the streets on horseback in a hurry."

With the emerging from the toils of the quarter exams, we thought there would be somewhat of a respite. We were very much mistaken, however, for our critic teachers have had us constantly in the deep and hidden thoughts of Thorndike, Sutherland and Holtz.

The Senior Normal Class is attempting to prepare itself for life's business by many useful activities in the classroom. This month a portion of the class has given a series of debates on a question concerning the early period of American history.

The Senior class has made such a leap in enrollment this year that other quarters have been provided for practice teaching. The following are at the Dunbar High School and at Roanoke Institute doing good work under Miss C. E. Mance, critic teacher. They are Misses A. Holly, B. Bias, G. Lawrence, W. Bright, M. Cobb, O. Case, C. Roberts, C. Allen, E. Guilford, L. Slaughter, T. W. Wimbush.

SINCERITY.

A philosopher has said, "Weak persons cannot be sincere."

At first thought there would seem to be no connection between strength and sincerity and between weakness and insincerity. We are not accustomed to think of a man who is insincere as being, per se, of a weak character. Yet how true it is.

The strong man is sincere because he is big enough to state facts, whether they be favorable or unfavorable to him personally. If he is at fault he will acknowledge it. "If there is any fault to find, find it with me," he says.

The insincere man is always concealing or covering up something because he fears it might damage him, if the full facts were known. He fears—and therefore is weak.

Sincerity is spelled S-t-r-e-n-g-t-h, but it spells success.

Our work-a-day life wears a double aspect. Outwardly it may appear humdrum, even monotonous; yet, interpreted in spiritual worth, it may be rich in inner meaning. Lit up with inward significance, "the daily round and common task" became a path of consecration.—George Watson.

When you get even with any one that has wronged you, you put yourself exactly on his level; but when you not only take no revenge, but act kindly toward your enemy, you rise far above him, and possibly help him up, too.
