Dr. Johnstone On "Our Chief Concern"

Dr. Coragreen Johnstone, Head of the English Department, was speaker for Negro History Week program sponsored by the Social Studies Department on February 16, 1961. She chose as her topic "Our Chief Concern."

Her speech emphasized the social protest of American writers and was centered around several outstanding poems by Negro authors. Among these were: George Moses Horton's "On Liberty," Dunbar's "Sympathy" and Langston Hughes' "Let America Be America Again." Also Richard Wright's "I Have Seen Black Hands."

Dr. Johnstone stated that Negroes have been writing protests of freedom and democracy for more than a hundred years, but that literature of the Negro, in its truest sense, is yet to be written. The challenge to college students is to reaffirm the freedom and democracy of the Negro through larger participation in the affairs of today.

Other numbers on the program included renditions by the Choir; scripture and prayer, Robert Wynn; a solo "Sweetest Song I Ever Heard," Lenora Slade; and the introduction of the speaker, Lula Roberts.

"Night of January 16th" To Be Presented

Something new in theatricals will be the feature of the evening when the Dramatic Club presents "Night of January 16th" on May 2, to open the Fine Arts Festival.

The subject of the play is a murder trial, and an unusual feature of it is the recruiting of twelve members of the audience to serve as jury. The jurors will be selected the night of the performance. They will listen to the evidence and render the verdict on which will depend which of the two endings written for the play will be used. Thus, the audience will take an integral part in the play, for the jury will be given the problem of dividing the guilt or innocence of the defendant. Not even the players in the drama will know how the play will end until the jury brings in its verdict on the evening of May 2.

Strictly speaking, "Night of January 16th" is a play without a heroine or a hero; rather each player is outstanding. The story revolves around the question of whether or not Karen Andre, secretary of the late Bjorn Faulkner, Swedish Financier, committed a murder.

"Announcement of the players who will take the various parts will be made later when try-outs have been completed and the cast selected," stated Mrs. J. M. Hoffer, Director of Dramatics.

Costly Alterations

"You plead guilty to stealing this man's overcoat," said the judge, "and now you want me to reduce your fine. Why?"

"Please, your honor," begged the man, "I had to have the sleeves shortened."

The Harpist Played

The renown harpist, Aristed Von Wurtly, played in Music Hall Auditorium on February 4, 1961. He was presented by the Lyceum Series of the college.

Mr. Von Wurtly, who is a native of Germany, began the program with a brief history of harps. He played works of Handel, Glinks, Tournais and others. In addition to these, Mr. Von Wurtly played, "Rhapsodie Romantique" written by himself. His attendant, for one of the longer pieces was Miss Lenora Slade, a sophomore of this college. As an encore Mr. Von Wurtly played the beautiful tune of "Smoke Gets in your Eyes."

This cultural and entertaining presentation by Mr. Von Wurtly was enjoyed by all present.

'Y' Leader Urges Leadership

Miss Ann Gardner, a prominent leader in the National Y, spoke Sunday, February 12, in the Lighthouse. She explained the divisions of the National YMCA and YWCA. Miss Gardner also analyzed the Y's here on campus and made suggestions for their improvement. Her suggestions were to keep permanent records, to have a permanent place to meet, to promote membership and to divide members into cabinet and committees. The cabinet which she proposed would consist of a president, a vice president, a secretary, a treasurer and chairman of the different committees. She said that this would bring about a more effective and efficient YMCA and YWCA on the campus.

Miss Gardner then went on to explain the procedure that should be used in the meetings. She said that instead of all members meeting weekly, the various committees should meet separately and discuss their particular projects under the leadership of the committee chairman. The Committee chairman in turn, meets with other members of the cabinet. This way when there is a general meeting too much time will not be spent on small details which concern members of only one committee.

Miss Gardner closed her discussion by pointing out the purposes of the YMCA and YWCA. "They are," to build character, to advance Christianity, and promote leadership."

Assembly Hear Mr. Witherspoon

Mr. W. C. Witherspoon, Principal of Marion Anderson High School, Belcross, North Carolina, gave a very inspiring address during Assembly on February 2 in Moore Hall Auditorium. The topic was "A Great Time To Be Alive."

The speaker pointed out many interesting facts concerning wisdom, war and responsibility. He stated that it is highly impossible for wisdom to survive in what may be considered a "self-centered life." Wisdom is deeper than the intellect alone.

Although many people may think of war as being a helpful factor, when it comes to building up certain phases of the world's progress, the speaker declared, that war is detrimental and is one sure way to tear down progress in a modern and scientific world. "Everyone," he said, "should sometimes stop and asked himself—Am I building up, or am I tearing down?"

Mr. Witherspoon emphasized the fact that everyone, and especially college students, should be ready and willing to accept responsibility; and that they should also strive to be strong.

"You have no time to play; instead, you have a role in life that at one time or other you will have to accept," were the final words of Mr. Witherspoon.

You Impress Me

You impress me with your eyes of blue
And with your pretty smile.
You impress me with your words so true
And with your lovely smile.
I blush when I speak of you kindly,
Blush when I hear your name.
I blush for I love you divinely,
Though it was not my aim.
You impress me with your mode of dress
And with your lifted brow.
You impress me with your games of chess
I see that you know how.
—Theresa Hall

I Like You, My Love

I like the gleam in the eyes of you,
The Smile upon your face;
I like the words from your lips so true,
The way each falls in place.

Chorus:

I like you in both my thoughts and themes.
Yes, I like you, my love.
I like you in both my heart and dreams.
Yes, I like you, my love.
I like the place of your hand in mine,
Your glance so calm and sweet.
I like the traits which have made you fine.
And the tread of your feet.
