

Dr. Grady Davis Inspires Audience

Highlighted among the Religious Emphasis Week Activities was the message delivered by Dr. Grady D. Davis, Dean of the School of Religion, Shaw University, Raleigh, N. C. Dr. Davis spoke on the subject, "The Value of the Church in the Nuclear Age." Dr. Davis is a familiar personality to the college, and as usual, his message ignited an enthusiastic response among the student body.

Dr. Davis stated that the modern day church is primarily concerned with administrative details such as burning mortgages and counting heads rather than counting hearts. He emphasized strongly the urgent need for "more members per member."

He spoke critically of the relationship between the church and the state. This area of church relationship was covered by the points of the nucleus. (1) The Roman Catholic Church which dictates to the state; (2) The Lutheran Church which advocates the state dictating to the church-totalitarianism, and the Protestant belief in separation of church and state which has ended in court ruling out lawing prayer in our public schools.

Dr. Davis concluded by speaking about the inevitability of war. He said the Naturalists believe that war is inevitable because of our aggressive nature. Further, he pointed out the argument of the theologian who says war is inevitable because of man's original sin. However, he mentioned that modern theologians believe no man has potential for sin or doing good. Finally, he said the Pacificists believe that war cannot be justified.

It was an inspiration as well as a spiritual uplift because of man's original sin. However, he mentioned that modern theologians believe no man has potential for sin or doing good. Finally, he said the Pacificists believe that war cannot be justified.

Stranded

While motoring down New Jersey Turnpike

One foggy, misty, damp-filled night, The lights of the car closed their eyes "My God, what is wrong?" a delegate cried.

Another replied . . . "The Generator", Z O O M . . .

Flew the trucks, giants so tall, "Have we no way of moving at all?"

A delegate cried, "Can't make a call," she was told. So sit and read Baldwin

Or eat your fried chicken (the dish a delegate enjoyed)".

We sat and we walked with no help in sight.

Conversation restrained, and fear of the night . . .

"Thinking caps on . . . And no Shakespeare puns . . . I've got it!

I've got it! . . . Howard Johnson?" The square sign read:

"Two and a half miles", "round 'bout the car echoes

Smiles . . . Smiles.

An exciting experience . . . Yes, there's nothing like

Founders Day Speech

On behalf of the student body, I express our feelings of reverence and gratitude for those dynamic leaders who lived before our time.

We dwell in a time of great perplexity, and we are beset by far-reaching problems of social, industrial, and political import. We shall not neglect any of them. If upon every occasion we consult the genius of these great, upright men. We should respect and give thanks to God who gave us the past generations of dynamic leaders. We would not falter nor swerve from the path of righteousness, if we but live by their moral genius.

Yet, instead of following them, too often we strive to make it appear that they are following us. Instead of emulating them, too often we ven-

Student NEA

On March 10, four members of the P. W. Moore Chapter of the Student National Education Association attended the Planning Session of the North Carolina Student National Education Association which was held at Fayetteville State Teachers College, Fayetteville, North Carolina. The theme of the session was "Blueprints for Action."

The program was opened with devotions by Senora Diggs, vice-president of the North Carolina SNEA. Students were welcomed by Stanley Johnson, president of the J. W. Seabrook Chapter of the SNEA located in Fayetteville, North Carolina. Miss Jameszeta Butler, president of the North Carolina Student NEA gave some highlights of the National Student NEA Conference held in Denver, Colorado.

The Planning Session was divided into groups to discuss the agenda, and to make suggestions on them. The session ended with reports from the discussion groups.

The students who represented the P. W. Moore Chapter of the SNEA were Rena Johnson, John Kendall, Emma Frederick, and John Jordan. Also at the session were Norris Francis, and Mr. R. A. Braxton.

Dr. Williams

He stated that the American Negro's job is to face up to his deficiencies and do something about them; to forget the myths people have been using to brainwash him; to remember that freedom is a great thing, but freedom is no good without a sense of responsibility.

Dr. Williams' final statement was "If others are irresponsible, let us be responsible; then we can really prove what democracy should be."

A Founders Day Reception followed in the College Lighthouse Center.

Four Delegates

(Continued from Page 1, Column 3) luncheons, panel discussions among students of other colleges were some of the features enjoyed by the delegates in the teachers College University Division. A critique of college news, papers by Mr. E. M. Hite, Director of Public Relations and Snapper, advisor at Millersville State College, Millersville, Pennsylvania was of special interest. In the panel discussions, the members were a bit surprised to learn that most of the problems which confront the "Compass" are similar to those of other colleges.

A luncheon, which climaxed the convention, was held in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel with General Alfred M. Gruenther, President of the American Red Cross, as guest speaker.

Experiences during the four-day trip gave valuable information and great appreciation for news as a media of communication.

They set the candlestick where the glow light to those things which were uplifting. For example, one can never go beyond the challenge of Dr. Moore's characteristic phrase, "Be Somebody." All of the views of the founding fathers might not be binding upon us, but their points of view show us ways to our inspiration. Our is not to claim their name, but to claim their aims, as our standards.

Let us turn toward those great lives toward those great spirits. Let us bend before the venerated sepulchers. Let us take counsel from those whose views are us to all our inspiration. Our is not to claim their name, but to claim their aims, as our standards.

A Look at the Assembly

On February 28, the Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society and the Department of Student Teaching were in charge of the assembly.

The program opened with Mr. Lane giving a brief history of teaching in the schools. Then a group of graduating seniors gave an actual demonstration of student-teaching methods. The scene took place in an eleventh grade English class. Participating in the program were Rosa Stokes, Alice Myrick, Mary Davis, Barbara Vaughan, and Jean Darden.

The second half of the assembly was centered around the College Bowl between the Freshman and Sophomore classes. John Jordan was the master of ceremonies.

The opening whiff sounded and the battle of wits was on. For about five minutes, both panels were stumped by the questions from the quizmaster. Then Evelyn Dixon broke the ice.

The freshman panel came to life and built a thirty-five point lead. Joe Brown, a sophomore, evened the score by answering a series of questions. The audience, especially our freshmen, moaned in despair.

The lead exchanged hands several times with neither panel able to take commanding lead.

Members of the audience coaxed, groaned, and cheered the successes of both teams. Every heart and soul was deeply involved. Finally the sophomore panel built up an unquenchable lead. The freshmen were vanquished.

Both panels were given prizes by Leonard Slade, president of the Student Council. Naturally, the victor enjoyed the spoils.

The College Bowl was a complete success. The attitude of the Freshmen class can be summed up in the words

Life

To plant a tree,
To write a book
And leave a child,

Wise men look beyond,
Simple men look for toys.

Delts Present Jabberwock

On Saturday evening, March 2, at the National Army in Elizabeth City, the third annual Jabberwock was presented by the Elizabeth City Alumnae and Delta Chi Chapters of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority.

The assembly was filled with persons who showed much eagerness in their attempt to guess who would be crowned "Miss Jabberwock" of 1963. It was not long, however, before their curiosity ended, for the procession began, and they knew that their question would soon be answered.

The Dukes of Rhythm provided the music for this celebrated occasion, and as they played the wondering faces of the contestants could be seen by the spectators.

The young ladies were presented to the audience, and the mistress of ceremonies, Soror M. L. Wise, very serenely and mysteriously crowned the new "Miss Jabberwock," Miss Laurene Sugg, "Miss Jabberwock" of 1962, crowned Miss Jeaneette Hall from Edenton, North Carolina, as the new queen.

For the dear queen and the Delta Sweetheart, Miss Barbara Fearing from Elizabeth City, students from P. W. Moore High School and our college provided entertainment. Scholarships and prizes were awarded to the contestants, since the Jabberwock is the sorority's way of raising money to provide scholarships for worthy senior young ladies.

The program was concluded by the singing of the Delta Sweetheart song. Dancing served as the next form of entertainment, it was an enjoyable evening for all who attended this—the third annual Jabberwock.

Omega News

Recently, the Lambda Gamma Chapter of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity presented a "Smoker" in the Recreation Room of Moore Hall to inform male students who were interested in knowing about the values of the fraternity, and what it had to offer.

The program consisted of information concerning the history of the fraternity, its purpose, and famous or outstanding Omega men and their contributions to mankind. The Delts, who were special guests at the program, sang their Sweetheart song. Then the Omegas honored their sweetheart, Della Herring, by singing the Omega Sweetheart song to her.

The latter part of the program consisted of dancing and serving of refreshments.

All students who attended the "Smoker" had an evening of enjoyment.

The Herman Cooke Omega Psi Phi Fraternity Scholarship, which is given to a deserving student by the Lambda Gamma Chapter, was awarded to James Slade. Slade is a junior industrial arts major. He is a gentleman, an above-average student, and possesses the qualities of manhood and brotherhood.

Weep Not

Weep not, weep not
For such sorrow; for there shall be another day—

And that day shall be tomorrow—
A day of joy, a day of rest, a day of gladness.
Your heart shall be with heaven-blessed.
God giveveth life, and He taketh away. It is His wishful doing that He taketh today.

Weep not, weep not
Little heart of tears, for he did live for many a year.

He sowed his seeds and produced it.
Your heart shall be with heaven-blessed.

You are merely one of all the lot.
Your heart shall be at ease.
Pray to the Lord; He will bless you and the rest.
