"Vikings" Out Gun "Bears"

Before a capacity crowd on December 16, in the Williams gymnasium, the mighty "Vikings" overpowered the undefeated Shaw "Bears". To many sports fans the victory came as a surprise but not to the men who played a part in the victory.

From the very opening seconds, the game started with large impact. Both teams were hitting from all parts of the court. Richard Todd and Gary Stubbins kept the Vikings in the lead most of the first half, but only by three or four points. They found it very hard to stay in contention as Monroe and Boyers of Shaw matched them almost point for point. At the end of the first half the "Vikings" led by a measly point: 44-43.

To maintain the spirit of the spectators, the Drill Team gave their first performance of the school year. The many fancy steps and movements matched the excitement of the first half. The Drill Team performed under the cadence of Ralph Roland. As it left the court the members were well applauded.

With the exit of the Drill Team, the second half was under way. Losing none of its momentum, the team set out to finish the job. And what a finish it was! Frederick Lewis and Claude Mackey entered the scoring picture. Lewis poured in shots from almost half court and those that were not perfect were tapped in by Mackey. Lewis also displayed his fine ball handling ability.

Frank Neal was the big man under the basket as he pulled in numerous rebounds. He also scored in the double figures. Other outstanding players were Charles Davig, Alexander Thweatt, and Douglass Brown.

As the final second ticked away, the Vikings were still hustling to break the clock. This was done after the regular time was over. There was a last-second foul on Frederick Lewis and he made the two free throws to give the Vikings a 100-91 victory.

Webster Is Football Rookie Of The Year

Calvin Webster, freshman tackle from P. W. Moore High in Elizabeth City, is considered by his coaches as one of the many bright spots of the past "Viking" football season. He came to play, and play football he did.

At this point he is being classed with "Vikings" of old. Coach Caldwell states, "Never have I seen a freshman lineman in my many years of coaching do the job that Calvin did this year. And by Webster's junior year he should be the talk of the football world if he keeps up the pace that he has set for himself."

Webster, while relegated to defense the past season, was one of the main keys in the variable defensive set-up used by the Vikings. The high point was when he came up from his middle guard position, intercepted a pass and returned it for a sizeable gain. He led all of his defensive group in tackles in the Shaw game and his former team-mate who is Shaw's quarterback summed it up when he stated, "Calvin, either I should have stayed at Elizabeth City to go to college or I should have carried you to Shaw with me."

Congratulations, Calvin, for a job well done. The entire college family hopes that you realize the expectations your playing has created with the coaching staff, your team mates, fellow students, and the "Viking" fans who are watching you improve on the fine rookie season that you had in 1964.

Calvin Webster.

"Vikings" Place Six on All-CIAA Squads

The CIAA has come up with all-conference team which might be the mythical dream team of the sixties as many of the Juniors were drafted into the play for pay ranks.

The first team possesses speed and size and next to the largest is Jethro Pugh, a 248 pounder (Pugh is the only repeater from the '63 team). The coaches and players throughout the Conference feel that this is an honor well deserved. Pugh also made honorable mention in the NAIA Conference. As many of the other all-CIAA honorees, he has signed a pro contract with the Dallas Cowboys.

Thuris J. Little, captain and team leader of the "Vikings," holds down the pivot point for the first team. This is a big advancement for him and one well taken care of. He has always talked of being the best center in the Conference and now he has proven it. Little is perhaps one of the strongest blocking centers in the CIAA in the last five or six years.

The "Vikings" fill only one slot on the second team. This position is guard in which Bobby Riley shares the honor. The mere mention of his name will bring terror to faces throughout the CIAA. Riley is just a junior and will be haunting coaches and players for pounds and is almost a sure prospect.

Perhaps one of the most under-rated players in the conference is Leroy Williams, a 200 pound stick of dynamic. Williams shares the end position on the third team. He was mean and rugged all season and to everyone's surprise, ranked high in the pass catching department. However, his specialty is defense in which many feel that he was the best.

Joining Williams on the third team is Phil T. McCoy, a big 250 pound tackle. McCoy, known as the silent type, says very little but does a tremendous job. During the season, he was slowed a bit by injuries, but lost very little time in actual play. Phil gained most of his fame by blocking opponents off the field.

There are two others who did not have the luck to make either team, but were, nevertheless, known by coaches and players throughout the league. These two are Percy Watkins and Ralph Faulk, who made honorable mention.

Watson was the team's leading ground gainer and was in the top ten overall rushing department. He has many moves but his insufficient weight was his only handicap.

He has been a tremendous team player and leader and despite his size, carried most of the weight the "Vikings" backfield.

Ralph Faulk completed the list of ball players selected from the "Vikings" squad. One would have to play with Ralph every day to appreciate his fine football ability. He is not the flashy type of player but is one who is loved by his entire backfield. There were very few times he was called upon to open holes and the holes were not there.

What may be of interest to the "Viking" fans is that there are more "Vikings" recognized in the All-CIAA selections than any other team representatives. This serves as a tribute to fine footballers produced at E.C.S.C.

RICHARD TODD

Richard Todd, Junior Physical Education major, made the All-Tournament team in the Sixth Annual Holiday Festival Cage Tournament held December 23, 30, and 31 at Norfolk State College.

Todd has been an outstanding player on the hardwood all of his career. His selection by the judges proves that he still has much to show to the sports world. So far this year, he has averaged over twenty points a game and his percentage during the tournament has been maintained.

With Todd's skillful shooting the basketball team has gotten off to a nice start. If his sharp shooting continues, Coach Vaughan and his "Vikings" hope to earn a slot in the CIAA Tournament in March. Todd has high possibilities of making all-CIAA for '65. The Compass salutes a fine basketballer.

Drill Team Drills

The Drill Team of E. S. C. made their first performance on December 16, 1964. There are twenty members of the team, led by Ralph Roland, a senior from Taylorsville.

A few of the steps used by the drill team were: basic tactics, double to the rear, triple to the rear, cross step, circle time and some others.

It was very lovely the way everyone seemed to be in step and able to maintain the same rhythm throughout the performance.

Wrestling Prospects

With most of the wrestling team returning as veterans, Coach Roy Knight feels that the team will really go places this year. Unlike the past season, he has depth and experience on his team.

Argle Whitefield, the C I A A heavyweight champion, is returning. He says that he is ready and is meaner than ever. Other stand-out returnees are Julius Webb and Horace Griffin. Both were medal winners in last year's tournament.

The general public and entire student body are invited to attend all matches. Please give the wrestling team your full support.
