

Students Honored

Elizabeth City State University held its annual Honors Night Program on Wednesday, April 20, 1977 at 8:00 P.M. in Moore Hall Auditorium. This year's guest speaker was Dr. George W. Reid, Chairman, History and Social Science Department at North Carolina Central University in Durham, North Carolina.

The speaker's address was centered around a self-made formula for success, "Nobility Of Character". In his address, the speaker states that "Nobility of Character" separates the scrupulous from the unscrupulous, the cursory from the substantial, the achiever from the one who fails and the pure in heart from the unjust in these times when the world is filled with so much change and confusion. Dr. Reid defined nobility of character as: (1) the will to persevere, (2) courage, (3) humility or the possession of quiet confidence, (4) an insatiable thirst for knowledge, (5) having a positive purpose about one's life and (6) sharing your abilities with those who are unable to perform at your level in your area of prowess.

Following the address, the honorees of the occasion were presented with their awards of achievement. The awards were presented by Dr. Louis V. Nadeau, Dr. Herman G. Cooke, and Dr. Melvin L. Murphy. 134 special awards were presented to students for various academic achievements. Students receiving the highest number of awards were: Mr. James Finch, 6; Ms. Pamajot Gill, 3; and Ms. Patricia Rankins, 3.

The Honors Night Program was held in memory of E. Earle Manley, Assistant Professor of Education and Honors Night Committee Member. Music was furnished by the University Choir under the directorship of Mr. Billy C. Hines.

RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP- Alvin Jones, right, junior Geology major, became the second student to receive a scholarship from the American Geological Institute. The $1,250 scholarship is for the 1977-78 year.

Dhillon: India And The U. N.

"Through the pages that follow, the author hopes to make a modest contribution to a better understanding between India and the Western World, where her views are so often misunderstood," states Dr. Naginder S. Dhillon, professor in International Relations at Elizabeth City State University, in the introduction to his new book, India and the United Nations: In Pursuit of Peace. Under the former Prime Minister, Indira Gandhi, India developed a poor image. The world society criticized her for the deprivation of civil liberties.

Dr. Dhillon's book does not talk about Miss Ghandi but it does give a fresh and improved view of India. It is a comprehensive study of India's policy stand on the issues of imperialism and colonialism, in the United Nations. The book dispells the image of India as an inhuman, insentive nation having no value for human life. India through its fight for the independence of all nations shows that it is one of the last nations who truly has concern for fellow nations.

International politics is an interesting and rapidly opening field. Dr. Dhillon's book discusses many international problems. The first chapter traces the development of the principle of national self-determination. Following chapters tell of India's struggle within the United Nation against colonialism. The last chapters talk of the need for interdependence among nations.
