Black Executives Visit ECSU

Elizabeth City State University's Business Department will resume participation in the Black Executive Exchange Program (BEEP), from February through May 5. According to Dr. John H. Carson, Chairman of the Business Department, ten banking executives, loan officers and loans specialists will lecture during the course in Money and Banking currently taught by Dr. Saeed Nizami.

ECSU first participated in BEEP in 1975 when two lectures were presented. Dr. Carson indicated that this year each of the ten financial executives will lecture for two days, "making themselves available to all of our Business Administration and Business Education majors who might not be enrolled in the course." The first lecturer, next month, will be Richard G. Gilmore, Senior Vice President and Controller in the Financial Management Department of the Girard Trust Bank, at Philadelphia, Pa.

Tailored to augment and enrich the quality and quantity of industry-related courses offered at black colleges and universities, BEEP is coordinated by the Nation Urban League. Providing a link between the textbooks theories and the practical application of business techniques and tools, BEEP is a method of providing students, faculty and college administrators with up-to-date information about job opportunities, business operations, policies and development taking place in the corporate world.

JUBILEE—There was an enthusiastic jubilee in the parking lot between the University Center and the Sports Arena when a moderate crowd welcomed the victorious Vikings basketball home. Above Chancellor Marion D. Thorpe (r) and Assistant Coach Alvin T. Kelly display a copy of the Baltimore Sun Newspaper which carried the story of ECSU's stunning win over nationally third-ranked Towson State to capture the NCAA Division II South Atlantic Regional Tournament and advance in national competition.
