ECSU's First Annual Viking Fest got underway September 17 with festivity, hoopla, and music.

Sponsored by the ECSU Student Government Association, the 1988 Viking Fest featured entertainment, exhibitions, games, competitive contests, concessions, and continuous music. The music was provided by D.J.'s Dr. G and RB Production, ECSU's Jazz Band, "Memory Lane Trio," and ECSU's Gospel Choir.

"I think this year's Viking Fest as a first was truly a success," said Student Government President John Sawyer, "although I anticipated a larger ECSU student turnout."

The Viking Fest kicked off at 10:00 a.m. and by mid-afternoon it was in full swing, as students and visitors enjoyed the festivities.

By late afternoon, the crowd moved over to the University Center to enjoy the vocals of Brenda Liverman and the band, Show Case. This band, led by James Carver, is from Norfolk, Virginia. That evening, ECSU's Miki Watts had everyone's attention as she sang Anita Baker's hit, "Giving You the Best That I Got."

Other forms of entertainment included, Rappers, The Poison Drummers of ECSU, the Dance Girls, Varsity Cheerleaders, Teen Dance, and Viking Dance.

The exhibit of Spud Mikenzie, sponsored by Bud Light and City Beverage of Weeksville, was the most striking exhibit. Two and a half stories high, the Spud Exhibit was used to promote Students Against Drunk Driving. Sawyer, an intern at City Beverage, said he would be chairing this organization (SADD) on campus.

"The crowd's interest seemed to lie with the inflated Air Walk and the A.C. Hobby Race," said Amy Mitchell, a freshman from Portsmouth Va. "Although there were slight drizzles the show went on."

A remote car show, the A.C. Hobby Race, of South Mills, was a real crowd pleaser. Other recreational events included the Water Laser, ring toss, mini ping pong, badminton, horse shoes, jugglers, adult bingo, horse show and roller skating.

ECSU students Melvin Hall and Jerome Rowdy were the two messy winners of the pie eating contest. Bubble blowing contest winners were Amy Mitchell, Tammy Boston, and Willie Johnson. Sub eating contest winner was Eric Smith. Winners of the sign contest were the lovely ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.

Roger McLean and Treva Thomas were winners of the tricycle race, among the administrators.

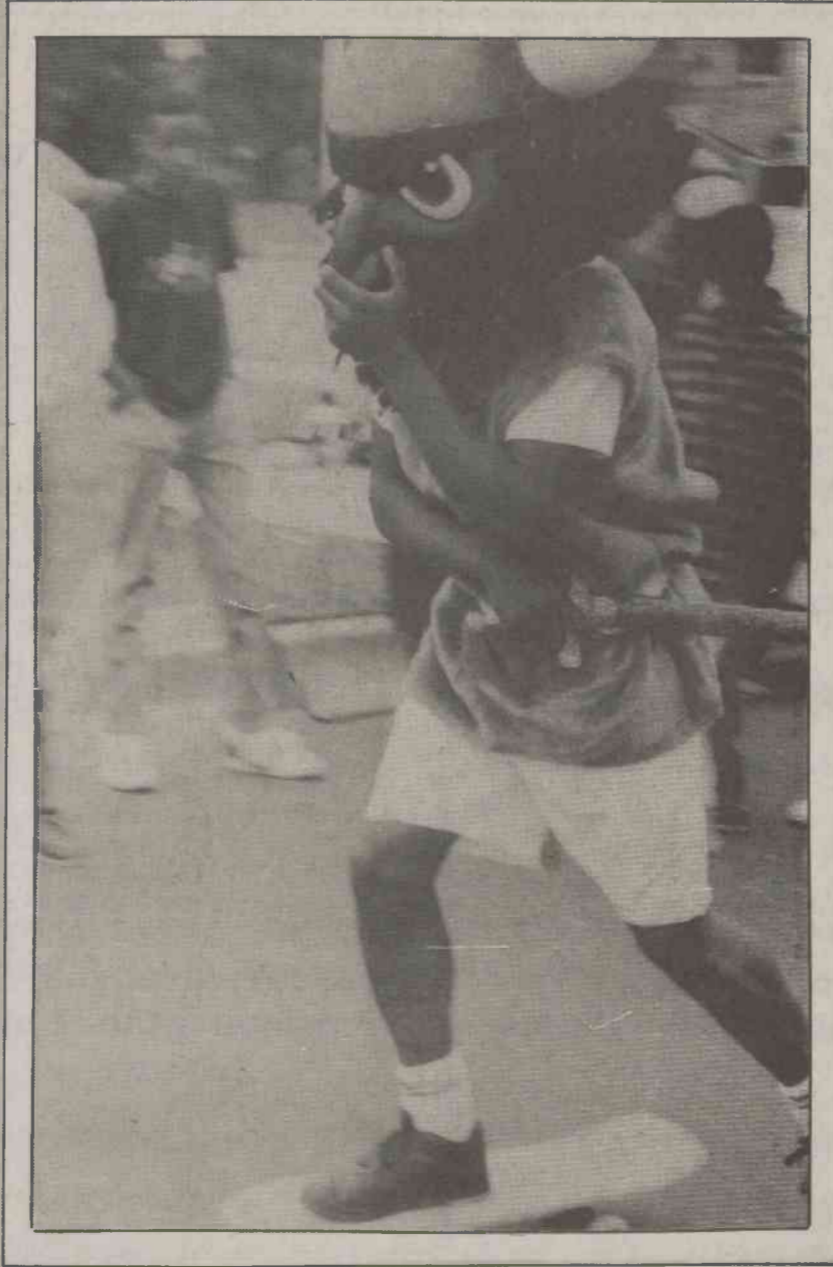

Other contests included the hula hoop, craker and whistle, sack race, watermelon relay, slam dunk and over and under game.

ECSU students chowed down on food prepared by the cafeteria cooks, and the aroma pointed the way.

"We are always looking for more student attendance, and more participation in the activities that we plan," said Dr. Leon White, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs. "It is my job to find out what the students want, and provide it on the basis that they are willing to work with us.
