Lady Vikings finish 10-18

By Richard McIntire

The final spike of the CIAA Volleyball Tournament November 1 brought to a close not only the tournament, but the 1988 season for all of the participants.

While last year's team posted an 18-8 record, this year's statistics are quite the opposite. The Lady Vikings posted a 10-18 record this year, placing fourth in the division.

Head coach Dr. Debbie Lynch shed some light on the situation. "Five players from last year didn't return," explains Lynch. "I had a whole new team. It was a rebuilding year."

But Lynch has high hopes for 1989 and says that "all that is needed is a little recruitment, and hopefully we'll come back stronger next year."

Central wins CIAA football title, 31-15

DURHAM - In its first appearance in the NCAA Division II playoffs, North Carolina emerged a 31-15 winner over Winston-Salem State University. NCCU was led by Earl Harvey, the career leader in Division II passing and sixth on the NCAA list for two divisions. Harvey ran for two touchdowns and passed for a third score while completing 15 of 30 passes for 235 yards. Harvey passed for over 2300 yards in 1988 to lead the CIAA in total offense.

Ms. ROTC crowned in October

By Miracle Perry

The ROTC program held its annual awards day ceremony on October 18, 1988 at 2:00 pm in the Little Theatre. The highlight of the ceremony was the crowning of the new Ms. ROTC.

On the command of "present sabers", the crowning of Ms. ROTC began, with cadet Sgt. Miracle R. Perry, Ms. ROTC 1987-88, taking her final stroll as queen and giving her farewell speech. In her speech Miracle challenged the new queen to "forget about yesterday and don't worry about tomorrow, but live one day at a time."

The new queen, Stephanie Y. Boulding, held back the tears as Lt. Col. Thomas J. Allen, Professor of Military Science at ECSU, crowned her and the saber team honored her grace with the Queen Anne salute.

Ms. Boulding, a junior from Wilmington, NC is a Basic Business Administration major who is also striving to become a commissioned 2nd Lieutenant in the United States Army. She is also the recipient of the Academic Achievement Award and ROTC Scholarship award.

With a cue from the Mistress of Ceremony, Cadet Sgt. Phyllis Butler, the honored cadets approached the stage to receive their awards. The cadets were honored for their academic and military performances.

Sheila Johnson, ECSU's new Public Relations Director, sees her new position as "challenging and exciting."

Johnson named new PR Director

Ms. Sheila A. Johnson has joined the staff of the Office of Development and Planning as the new Director of Public Relations. A 1985 Woodrow Wilson Fellow, Johnson received her B.A. in journalism from Alabama State University and her M.A. from the University of Alabama.

Ms. Johnson views her role as "challenging, yet exciting" and says she perceives her "presence at ECSU at this pivotal time in its growth market the University to reach the goals set by the administration."

"I strongly solicit the assistance of the entire University family to solidify the communications process of sharing information that is deserving of dissemination so that this part of the process can be more effectively conducted," said Johnson. Johnson recently received recognition by the National Council of Negro Women for her outstanding service and support of the organization's efforts in Richmond at their Annual Recognition Luncheon at Howard University.

Johnson says her plans include continued involvement in community activities by incorporating certain community outreach efforts into her role as Public Relations Director as a way of keeping the line of communication open via the University and the local community.

Prior to accepting this position at ECSU Johnson served as Director of Public Relations at Virginia Union University in Richmond.

ECSU Chancellor Dr. Jimmy Jenkins (center) received the 1988 Robert Russa Moton Leadership Award at the National Business League's National Convention in Richmond.

Jenkins wins leadership award

Dr. Jimmy R. Jenkins, Chancellor of ECSU has been named the 1988 recipient of the Robert Russa Moton Leadership Award. The announcement was made at the National Business League's National Convention in Richmond, Virginia, October 11-15.

In announcing the award, NBL President and Chief Executive Arthur Teele, Jr., cited "the positive ripple impact that Jenkins' leadership at ECSU is providing throughout northeastern North Carolina and across the state of North Carolina in the areas of scholarship, computer science and business." Teele also praised Jenkins' efforts in the establishment of the Academic Development Plan which has provided $3,000 scholarships to ECSU students and has included a "total revamping of curricula and facilities."

In accepting the award, Jenkins noted, "While I accept this award personally, I must hasten to say that I do so also on behalf of many colleagues who understand the moral responsibility we have as leaders, not only to keep the doors of opportunity ajar for those who desperately depend on our leadership but who also understand that we must exert every ounce of energy and skill that we possess to open wider those doors so that those inalienable rights so eloquently captured in the Preamble to the Constitution are internalized as expectations by our people."

College Day highlights idea of 'unity'

Although rain delayed and canceled several activities, Black College Day was held on October 3, 1988 in Raleigh, NC with several Black colleges joining together for this significant annual event.

One possible theme for Black College Day could be "Let us be unified as one" - for the Black colleges such as Elizabeth City State University, Shaw University, North Carolina A&T, Winston-Salem State University, North Carolina Central University and Johnson C. Smith University were all represented by SGA members and many students motivated to support and to be proud of the Black universities that should continue to exist for generations to come. Initially held at Shaw University, the activities were moved to St. Augustine in a larger gymnasium where SGA Presidents gave positive speeches.

The speakers included Elizabeth City State SGA President, John Sawyer, St. Augustine SGA President, Gregory Dent, Shaw's SGA President, Leon Hudson, A&T SGA President Lee Christian and Central SGA President Kim Bassett.

The former President of NC Central, William Barbour also gave a positive speech and acknowledged a letter from Lt. Governor Bob Jordan who emphasized his support of Black Universities.
