There are no further plans for the canteen; it is not ready for proper planning but he does want a larger place so more food can be prepared.

As far as foods are concerned there will be a variety of sandwiches but no plate lunches.

Jackson Tells Basketball Secrets

By Shirley Zollicoffer

"Height does not make a good basketball player," stated All-American basketball star, Lucious B. Jackson of Pan-American College in an interview Wednesday. "You must have something else," he stated. Whatever the something else is Jackson has it, because he is the best big man in basketball.

Jackson is six-nine and weighs 243 pounds and a smooth operator. He stated that his weight is an advantage on the basketball court, because it can be used to push his opponents around on the court.

In playing basketball, Jackson uses his own approach. He plays center and is excellent on rebounds, but his best shots are at the free throw line. The audience often thinks that the free throw line is all over the court, because Jackson is making points from every angle.

At the age of sixteen, I was 6 feet and clumsy. I never dreamed that I would be able to play basketball well," stated Jackson. What did he do to overcome his clumsiness and become one of the most outstanding players in small colleges and universities?

Jackson has played with Pan-American Team, the National Small College Champions, three years. He loves playing basketball, but his main purpose at Pan-American College is to become a scholar.

"The Negro teams give us more competition on the basketball court. They play to win, and when they are on the court, they play their best," said Jackson.

"In playing basketball with an integrated team, the only problem is when we are traveling. There are some places that are not integrated, and it is a problem finding a place to rest and stay," Jackson stated. Pan-American College has been integrated for many years.

Jackson has been offered a contract with one of the best professional teams in this country. He is a native of Houston, Texas. In high school he played two years of basketball, football, and baseball. He attended Texas Southern University one year. Now, he is a senior at Pan-American College, Edinburg, Texas. He is majoring in Industrial Education.

PROSPECTS OF RAMS ARE GOOD

Richard Glover

Team play, desire, and hustle proved to be the most valuable assets of the Winston-Salem State College "Rams" said Coach Clarence Gaines in an interview last week.

This year's team did not have as much basketball savvy as previous Rams' teams. "We definitely have to play more pattern ball to win" said Coach Gaines. "The way the Rams play, nobody hogs the scoring and everybody is expected to do his share and his job."

Gaines, better known as "Big-house," is one of the most respected basketball coaches in the C.I.A.A. (Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association). His team has participated in fifteen of the 19 C.I.A.A. tournaments and has won six of them, taking the runner-up spot four times. No other coach has achieved such a stronghold.

"With only the graduation of three seniors, who were reserves, the Rams should have another good season," said Gaines.

"Our first four games of the coming season will be a real test for my boys."

Clever recruiting, and almost sure coaching by Gaines have enabled the Rams to assemble a great array of talent which will enable the Rams to be in close contention for the championship for years to come.

Here is the rundown of this year's team by Coach Gaines.

Ted Blount is acknowledged as the smoothest playmaker and court magician of the C. I. A. A. Blunt's slight-of-hand is not restricted to his dribbling. He leaves opposing guards open mouthed in wonder when he passes the ball; "one moment Blunt has the ball in his hands, then poof, it's gone, and some other Ram has it," said Gaines. "Between his scoring and his assistants, Blunt averages 25 or 30 points per game," said Gaines.

Charlie Simmons, another fine guard who has been playing in the shadows of such greats as

Rams Top St. Paul

Cole Freeman

Closing the 1963-64 season, the Rams football squad defeated the St. Paul Tigers in a rain-soaked game. With undaunted spirits, the Rams braved the weather and gallantly closed their season.

The Rams scored in the first quarter on a run by Phil Davis, after which Winston Mapp caught a Millner pass for the extra two points. In the second quarter a St. Paul punt was blocked and Ben Morrison recovered in the end zone for a safety. This gave the Rams a 10-0 half-time lead.

Relentlessly, the Rams marched onward and scored again in the fourth quarter. John "Night-train" Lane scored and added the extra points to extend the lead, 18-0.

With but a few seconds left, quarterback James Millner sneaked into the end zone for the final score as the cold but happy fans began to leave.

Cleo Hill and Charlie Riley, and now Blunt will be at his best this year.

Willie Curry should move up as a shooter and scorer. He had a very good season with his scoring average of 18 points a game. He is the second best scorer on the team. "He is the best defensive man on our team," said Gaines. He is usually assigned to guard the opposing team's high scorer. He is also co-captain.

Richard Glover is another one of the fine Rams to look forward to seeing this year. "He has the quickest hands of any kid I have ever seen," said Gaines. Glover, the 1-2 forward of the Rams is an exciting player to watch. He can play either under the basket or out front, wherever he is needed," said Gaines. Glover is the Rams top scorer and rebounder, and was an all C.I.A.A. selection last year.

Louis Parker, back with the Rams after a year's lay off, is expected to do a great deal for the Rams. Parker's rebounding and "left-handed hook-shots" really excites the Rams' fans. In 1962, Parker sported a 14.5 scoring average and 14 rebounds per game.

Richard Smith, a fine guard back with the Rams, is expected to do a great deal to perk up the team. He is one of the co-captains, and a steady ballplayer. It was Smith's deadly jumpshots that pulled the Rams through many games last year. "He has the smoothest jumpshot and follow through of any kid I have here," said Gaines.

Treadwell Ratchford, a fine rebounder, is back. He has improved 80 per cent over the past two years," said Gaines. Ratchford will see a lot of action this year, splitting the center with Parker.

"Joe Cunningham did a fine job as a freshman last year," said the coach. He also has improved 75 percent over his freshman year," said Gaines. "You will see a lot of Cunningham this year also."

Willis Bennett will be in action a lot. "He is a fine defensive ballplayer, with fine reflexes. Just for fun I assigned Willis (Spider) to guard Glover, and he really did a fine job," Gaines said.

"Gilbert Smith, a fine sophomore, is expected to give much help to our team," Gaines said. You can expect to hear a lot about Smith in the future.

"Vernon Monroe, the most promising freshman on the team has the ability to become the next Rams' star," said Gaines. "He has fine hands and can shoot with anybody on my team."
