

MISS VIRGINIA BARR

Miss Virginia Barr Is Elected "Lady of Year" on Campus

Miss Virginia Barr, 20, of Rocky Mount, was honored as Lady of the Year at Winston-Salem State College, February 23, 1964.

Miss Barr was a 1962 honor graduate of Booker T. Washington High School where she was Miss Booker T. for two years. At school she was leader of the band and a member of the Library Club and Thespian Society.

Other candidates for Lady of the Year were Miss Clara Powell of the junior class and Miss Helen Gore of the senior class. The candidate was elected as a result of popular vote of the student body.

Mrs. Lullelia Harrison of Houston, Texas, presented the plaque to Miss Barr in behalf of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority.

"Precious jewels are a rare thing in one's life. I consider this honor a rare jewel in my life. I extend my sincere appreciation to my classmates for nominating me and to the student body for electing me Lady of the Year. Thank You," said Miss Barr upon receiving the plaque.

Miss Barr is majoring in elementary education and minoring in English. She is sweetheart of the Scrollers of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity and a member of the Dormitory Council.

—Doretha Powell

A Winter Story Has Happy Ending

Helen McCoy

You never know who your friends are. Miss Sandra Elaine Taggart told me about her recent visit home for a week-end.

Miss Taggart left home at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, January 12, in Salisbury. She was hoping to get to Winston-Salem at 3:30 p.m. with a transfer in Lexington. As her bus entered Lexington's bus station, the bus she was supposed to transfer to was leaving.

Looking at the snow and the ice-covered streets, and wondering what to do, she decided to ask the bus clerk what time the next bus would leave for Winston-Salem. She was given the bad news that the next bus would leave at 7:30 p.m., if it comes at all. In the meantime, she was informed that the bus station would close at 7:00 p.m.

She proceeded to the telephone to call long distance to her mother. She told her mother of her condition. Her mother told her she would call a friend in Lexington, "but, if a bus comes in going to Salisbury, get on it and come home." Her mother worriedly told her she would call back.

Miss Taggart then decided to go back home. Her bus, being one and one-half hour late, arrived sliding on the ice into two telephone poles. Miss Taggart realized then she was afraid to ride on the bus. When the bus finally reached the station, the driver said, "I am not going any further, folks."

The white folk said they were going to the hotel. Miss Taggart, knowing no one in Lexington, received a telephone call from her mother. Her mother had located a minister whom she knew, but Miss Taggart did not know.

Mrs. Taggart asked him to go and pick up her daughter.

When the minister reached the bus station, he told Miss Taggart who he was. She stayed at the minister's home Sunday night. Monday, she called the bus station approximately six times, and no buses were entering or leaving. There, Miss Tag-

Sophomore class officer (left to right) are Joan Fikes, Robert Hoover and Diane Hairston.

SOPHOMORE CLASS REPORTS GOOD YEAR FOR 1963-1964

The sophomore class organized in September to meet the challenges for this fiscal school year. They chose as their leaders: Robert Hoover, president; Joanne Fiske, secretary; and Diane Hairston, treasurer.

As a special feature, the class presented "Jimmy Briggs" with his latest recording, February 7, 1964. The class members have also been cooperative in electing representatives to participate in activities given by the student body or other organizations. One of the greatest honors received was the crowning of Miss Virginia Barr as "Lady of the Year."

Campus SNEA Concludes Year

The Student National Education Association with Mr. John H. Lewis advisor has spent most of the year in travels to other most college campuses. It has been influential to the organization of a more democratic student body.

The elected officers were President, Richard Nixon; vice President, Helen Smith; secretary, Clara Powell; assistant secretary, Veredene Pettiford; treasurer, Janet Stevens; parliamentarian, Betty Ledbetter.

The objective of the SNEA is to develop leadership training by participation in existing professional programs and pioneering new programs.

The student body has participated in the affairs given by the organization. Members have gone to state-wide meetings at North Carolina College, Durham, North Carolina and Elizabeth City State Teachers College, Elizabeth City, North Carolina. Mrs. Louise Gaither has influenced the members on the importance of being a member and proving means of transportation.

Miss Joyce Williams, a senior, was honored and crowned as "Miss SNEA." Her attendant was a Junior, Miss Regnia Patterson. The queen is elected according to the member of tickets sold.

A majority of the student body is members of this organization and have found the monthly Journal to be beneficial in classroom activities and for the purpose of informative reading.

—Doretha Powell

Women's Week Has Theme of "Responsibility"

Women's Week a Winston-Salem State College was observed March 16-22. The various activities were centered around the theme, "Recognizing, Accepting and Assuming Responsibility." The chairman is Miss Barbara Carter, who is also Vice-President of the Senior Hall and the Women's Council.

Beginning on Monday, March 16, at 9:00 a.m. — registration and briefing sessions with the committee chairman and members.

On Tuesday, March 17, at 3:30-6:30 p.m. Mrs. Ola Mae Forte conducted a charm school, held in the Recreation Rooms of Atkins and Colson Halls.

At 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday Mrs. Annie Brown Kennedy, who is an attorney, will deliver the mid-week address in Fries. Also, at 7:30 p.m. Dr. John Furby will give a lecture on "The Rapidly Changing World of Humanity," which will be heard by the audience from a recording on tape.

Highlighting the events on Thursday at 3:30-5:30 p.m. was the personality clinic, conducted by Mrs. Yvonne M. Wylie. Also, at 8:15 p.m. a concert was given by the Winston-Salem Symphony Orchestra. Both of these events will be held in Fries.

A fashion show was featured in the program on Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the auditorium. It featured Mrs. Wylie, a professional model. A movie was held in the auditorium on Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Concluding the week was a music recital on Sunday at 4:00 p.m. in the auditorium. It featured music education students. At 6:30 p.m. a recognition supper was held in the Kennedy Dining Hall.

The officers of Women's Week (Continued on Page Four)

Women's Week planners are (left to right) Hazel Johnson, Novel Russell, Eva Bryant, and Marva James.

Judge: How did you happen to take the car?

Defendant: Well, it was parked by an open grave in the cemetery so I naturally thought the owner was dead.