W-S State Students To Go Overseas

Sylvia Yvonne Sprinkle of Winston-Salem and Billy Thomas Jennings of Leasburg, N. C., will spend their summers overseas.

Miss Sprinkle will live in India under the Experiment in International Living program, and Jennings will stay in Africa under the Operation Crossroads Africa program.

Both are receiving funds from the sponsoring organizations, but both need additional money to take care of all their necessary expenses. The student body and faculty members are invited to contribute funds in their behalf.

Dr. William Osborne, academic dean, is in charge of the campaign in behalf of Miss Sprinkle. The Rev. Henry S. Lewis, Jr., chaplain, heads the drive for Jennings.

An honor graduate of Carver High School in Forsyth County, Miss Sprinkle is a junior with a major in elementary education and a minor in history. She is the daughter of Mrs. Thelma S. Joyce and the late Arthur William H. Sprinkle, Sr.

She is attending Winston-Salem State on scholarship, having received grants from the WSSC Alumni and an Alex Hanes Memorial Scholarship.

She is secretary of the Student National Education Association, assistant secretary of the Student Council, third vice president of the junior class, first attendant to Miss SNEA, junior candidate for Lady of the Year and a member of the Library Literary Club, Delta Sigma Theta sorority and the Pan-Hellenic Council.

Miss Sprinkle also works as a tutor in the Experiment in Self Reliance anti-poverty program. She is active with the junior choir and Young Y's at Center

Hill Science Hall, Moore Dormitory Named Officially

By Barbara Tuck

Two new buildings were dedicated Sunday, January 23, in Fries Auditorium. These two buildings—a women's dormitory and a science building—were named in honor of Miss C. Beatrice Moore, a former employee, and Mr. James S. Hill, a financier.

Dr. H. Kenneth Barker, Associate Executive Secretary of the Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, gave the dedication address. He was introduced by Dr. Kenneth R. Williams, President of Winston-Salem State College. The topic of Dr. Barker's address was "Buildings for What?"

He said "Buildings do not make an institution great. They are made of steel, brick and concrete—that's all. Buildings do not determine the minds of students.

"Professors, as never before, should have some dedication and commitment to make a better society. What kind of commitment; what kind of dedication will you make?" asked Dr. Barker.

The dedication service was formal with the faculty and seniors in academic processional. Music was furnished by the college choir under the direction of Dr. James Dillard. The processional and recessional were played by an instrumental ensemble directed by Mr. Harry Pickard.

Many members of the Hill and Moore families were present for the dedication ceremonies.

Following the service, guided tours of Hill Hall and Moore Hall were made. Refreshments were served.

J. S. Hill Hall was completed in August, 1965, and is not yet

600 Visit on Parents Day

Parents Day attracted 600 guests to the campus. The visitors spent the day visiting dormitories, classrooms and faculty members. They also heard a sermon, met President Kenneth R. Williams, and heard a vesper address.

Students served as attentive and helpful guides throughout the day by helping parents, relatives and guardians find the people and places they wanted to see.

The day was opened with a sermon by the Rev. Henry S. Lewis, Jr., college chaplain. Parents heard greetings from President Williams, Arthur Gray, president of the student body, and Barbara Tuck, campus "Lady of the Year."

Dr. Frank W. Hale, Jr., chairman of the English department of Central State College in Wilberforce, Ohio, spoke at vesper on "Our Youth—A Challenge to Our Nation and to Ourselves."

He listed the following responsibilities of parents and students.

1. Teach students that they have worth and can achieve.
2. Inform Negro youth of their great heritage of achievement.
3. Give students a sense of purpose.

Colleges can offer students these things, Hale said:

1. Offer compensatory education to students who must catch up.
2. Set new goals in new areas for Negro students.
3. Teach students that knowledge is power.

Hale called on students to have initiative, to be enthusiastic, to be industrious and to be individualists. Students must persevere if they are to accomplish anything, he said.

Greek letter groups conducted a candlelight salute to parents. Featured were:

Azzie Wall, Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority; Coleman Freeman, Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity; Frankie Smith, Delta Sigma Theta sorority; Melvin Mayo, Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity; Sylvia Jones, Zeta Phi Beta sorority; Johnson Hunter, Phi Beta Sigma fraternity; Janice McCoy, Sigma Gamma Rho sorority, and Johnny Hinton, Omega Psi Phi fraternity.

By Carol Thomas

A class of 161 seniors will be graduated from Winston-Salem State College at 10:30 a.m., Tuesday, May 31 in Fries Auditorium.

Commencement Week activities began May 24 with a Class Day program. Arthur Gray presented Dr. W. Archie Blount, vice president of the college, a check to purchase book racks for each dormitory.

Speaker for the commencement will be Bishop Charles F. Golden of The Methodist Church. A resident of Nashville, Tenn., he is prelate of the Nashville-Carolina Area of the church. He is a nationally known minister and religious leader.

Alumni Day will be held at 1 p.m., Saturday, May 28, at a dinner meeting of the WSSC Alumni Association at Kennedy Dining Hall. At this time seniors will be formally inducted into the association.

Dr. W. Randall Lolley, pastor of First Baptist Church of Winston-Salem, will speak on "Make It Your Own" at the baccalaurate at 3 p.m., Sunday, May 29, at Fries. After the sermon there will be a reception on the auditorium lawn.

Sunday's activities will conclude with the annual choir concert at 7 p.m. Dr. James A. Dillard will direct the choir.

Dr. Kenneth R. Williams, president of the college, said, "Everything on campus should have some educational value. The baccalaureate contributions to mental growth.

"We require juniors to stay on campus for the commencement season because we believe these activities contribute to the educational development of students. We don't ask all students to stay because we cannot accommodate the entire student body, parents and guests."

In addition to the public programs, seniors have scheduled a number of class activities including a picnic and others.

The Rev. Henry S. Lewis, Jr., college chaplain, spoke at the Class Day program. He advised the students to be responsible now, to perform excellently and to know God.

HIGHER STUDENT FEES VOTED BY TRUSTEES

By Carol Thomas

Fees at Winston-Salem State College will be increased during the 1966-67 school year. The increase is $105 for boarding students and $34 for commuting students. Tuition for both in-state and out-of-state students will not be increased.

"These increases are small when compared with the trend in other colleges," President Kenneth R. Williams said. "This college did not want to raise fees, but cannot continue to operate efficiently on the present fees."

Costs were raised by the college Board of Trustees in February, Dr. Williams said. Many colleges and universities in North Carolina had already taken this step, he said.

Mary P. Bowman To Be N. C. Intern

Mary Pauline Bowman, an honor student and junior from Walnut Cove, will work as an intern for the state of North Carolina during her summer vacation.

She is the first WSSC student to work under this program, open to students from colleges in the state each summer. She is not sure of where she will work, but her top three choices were the Department of Administration, the Good Neighbor Council and the Department of Juvenile Correction.

"I became interested in this program because a number of students on campus with good grades were invited to apply. Job opportunities in the state government are numerous now," she said.

"Negroes who are qualified are being accepted. Now is the time for us to take a more active
