"I recommend that more students think seriously about these opportunities. If you feel that your chances are too slim, make your own chance. Push ahead and take the advice of Sammy Davis, Jr., 'Yes, I Can'."

Freshmen Give Fun Packed Show

The freshmen have done it again! They presented their second successful talent show recently in Fries Auditorium. The emcee was Algon Williams of Durham, N. C.

The show consisted of a wide variety of talent ranging from modern dance and folk songs to jazz, but the major emphasis was on rock and roll.

The Dextels Combo set the mood that was to exist throughout the program by making a dramatic entrance from the rear of the auditorium playing "Cleo's Back." By the time the Dextels reached the stage, the students were "in the groove."

Tops among the performers were the modern dancers and the melancholy mood of Ruth Evans' "My Adorable One," the foot-stomping, finger popping intonation of George Witherspoon's "I Can't Turn You Loose" and the swinging emotion of Ann Dubose's "Too Many Fish in the Sea."

As the show progressed, James Funches and his Swinging Four thrilled the audience with a jazzy version of "Misty." From then on it was all jazz. Funches' Swinging Four featured Luther Walker, trumpet; Curtis Hamilton, drums; Virgil Glenn, bass, and Eugene Best, piano. Funches really made a quintet, as he played the tenor sax and the flute.

IS HE A FRIEND?

By Constance Malinda Farrington

Put your faith in a new sought friend, who is just for today. His days like petals, too, will bend, and then he fades away. It takes far more than time to mend A wound deep in your heart; with care Then you should watch and tend When a new friend you have sought. If in that garden made of friends Your searching sight spots weeds It's then your chance to make amends. Retract your steps, review your deeds. And when that tedious job you've done There must be one to yield a noble harvest; You've won a friend your heart can shield.

Increase in Fees

The increase in fees covers these areas:

1. Medical expenses — the college infirmary has operated at a deficit. An increase of $4.00 goes to this department.

2. Room and Board — students will pay $62 more a year for room and $9 more for board. The costs of maintaining a dormitory and of food have gone up considerably, and the college must have more funds to maintain past high standards.

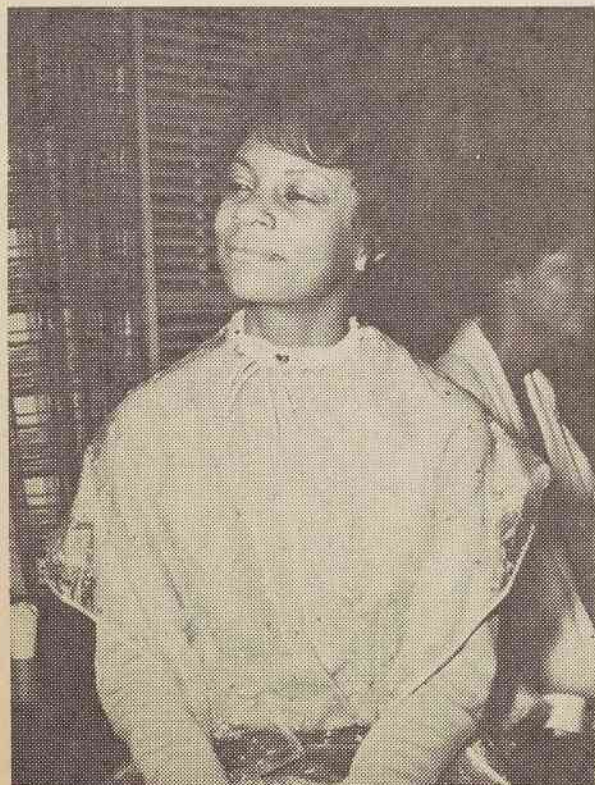

3. Other fees are raised in the area of property development.

Winston-Salem State College needs new and improved facilities. For example, Eller Hall will be renovated. Additional equipment will be purchased for classroom buildings. A new library and a new dormitory are under construction.

4. Faculty salaries must be increased if the college is to maintain first rate instruction.

"Although fees have been increased for next year," Dr. Williams said, "It is still going to cost the state more than $200 per student than the college collects from each student to run the school."

A PRETTY GIRL CAN BE — EVEN LOVELIER!

One of the most exciting moments for Jacqueline Davis, a senior, was a facial transformation from beauty specialist Mrs. DeVera Edwards during Women's Week on campus. On the left is Miss Davis before Mrs. Edwards added her artistic makeup touch. On the right is Miss Davis, who is from Durham, after the treatment. How do you like it?
