

Annual Co-Ed Weeks Observed on Campus

Sunday Service Opens Men's Week Observance

In the opening program for Men's Week on Sunday, March 10 at 4:00 p.m. in Fries Auditorium, Dr. Kelly O. P. Goodwin, pastor of Mount Zion Baptist Church in Winston-Salem, told the audience that man, generically speaking, is a select, daring and mean creature. He said that man should check his sense of values and see if it really amounts to anything. Man, he said, needs to take a good look at himself to see if he is intellectually in balance with himself. "If a man's sense of values is to come out right, man must get in tune with God," remarked Dr. Goodwin.

Dr. Goodwin was introduced by Foster Epps. Hubert Stokes explained the purpose of Men's Week. Other participants were Randolph Mills, Hilliard Dozier, and Ernest Clemons. The college choir, directed by Dr. J. A. Dillard, provided the music.

Lawyer Speaks At Assembly

The speaker for the Wednesday assembly was Mr. Don Hollowell, a native of Wichita, Kansas and a lawyer by profession. Mr. Hollowell told the audience to be proud of its Negro background because Negroes will continue to be firsts in many situations. He emphasized the importance of being ready—"... it is now that one must begin, if he has not already begun, to address himself to the task of being READY." Mr. Hollowell explained "... that instead of the Black Power sloganized connotation, I say perhaps Black Recognition would be more appropriate. Instead of Black Power, I say Brain Power. Instead of the Stokely Carmichaels, I say, we would be better off with some Holy Carmichaels. Instead of Burn, Baby, Burn, I say, Learn, Baby, Learn for if we Learn, Baby, Learn, we can Earn, Baby, Earn. So instead of Black Power, I say, Green Power."

Culminating Festivities Banquet

Highlighting the week's observance, was a banquet on Friday evening in Kennedy Dining Hall with Rev. William R. Crawford, a trustee of the college as guest speaker.

Dance

A dance on Saturday, March 16, terminated the observance.

Certain thoughts are prayers. There are moments when, whatever be the attitude of the body, the soul is on its knees.

—Victor Hugo

Nothing is easier than fault-finding; no talent, no self-denial, no brains, no character are required to set up in the grumbling business.

—Robert West

Fear not that thy life shall come to an end, but rather fear that it shall never have a beginning.

—Cardinal Newman

Reason is the life of the law.

BANQUET HIGHLIGHTS MEN'S WEEK

The Winston-Salem State College campus observance of Men's Week was highlighted Friday, March 10, by a keynote address by the Rev. William R. Crawford. The speaker is a native of Winston-Salem, where he is active in civic affairs. Rev. Crawford is presently a candidate for the 5th Seat in North Carolina's House of Representatives and Pastor of Brooks Memorial Methodist Church in High Point. He is also a member of the Board of Trustees for the college.

Rev. Crawford emphasized preparing oneself to be able to help others. He said, "Get involved in community service; find something you can do and use your talents and education to get it done."

"Move into the mainstream of society and make politics a way of life", Rev. Crawford said. He pointed out the advantages of voting and running for office by comparing Mississippi and Georgia with North Carolina. He said that he has been running for public office for a long time. Sometimes he hasn't been elected, but it has been a lot of fun.

"Money is available today, so use your time and finance to help others," concluded Rev. Crawford. He stressed that a young man should strive for the best that he can do in every endeavor.

Following the address, awards were presented to the following in recognition of outstanding service to the college: Mr. Thomas Brown, Postmaster, and Mrs. Robinson, assistant matron in Brown Hall. Nurse MacFadden presented the men of Brown Hall with a Red Cross Trophy for their participation in the blood drive. Biffy Watt presided.

Chivalry Forgotten As Men Lead the Way

Winston-Salem State College recently completed its annual observance of Women's Week and Men's Week. The men led the way with their observance of Men's Week, March 10-16. Women's Week was observed Mar. 24-28.

Zeta Phi Beta Opens Women's Week Observance

On March 24, the observance switched over to the women for their Women's Week celebration. The theme for this year's observance was, "Women's Help is the World's Great Need."

The motto was, "Satisfaction with small things disqualifies us for greater things" and the aim was, "To instill a desire for true greatness and build stability in home life."

The celebration was inaugurated with the presentation of Lady of the Year, Miss Janet Mason, a junior from Richmond, Va., by Zeta Phi Beta Sorority on Sunday evening, March 24. The guest speaker, Mrs. Susie Hilliard of Paisley High School and founder of the Winston-Salem State College chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, was introduced by Queen Isler. Mrs. Hilliard said that the ladies of today need judgment and integrity. Women must strive for dedication to finer womanhood and excellence in education, and continue to serve as volunteers in service. She challenged the women to serve on the front line of progress and to look and speak the part of well informed responsible persons.

Participants on the program were Avery Blair, Jeanette McKinney, Rosa Sherrod, Phyllis Kimbrough, Helen Atkins and Betty McPhatter.

Fashion Fantasy Held

On Tuesday evening, March 26, the ladies focused the spotlight on styles and fashions in an extravaganza called "Fashion Fantasy" that featured fashions from the mod American mini to the bright printed African toga. The clothes modeled were of four types: at home wear, sports wear, casual and evening dress. Models for the show were: Tonya Talley, Linda Roseman, Ella Modeste, Selma Daniels, Marion Pittman, Patricia Wray, Sandra Pridgen, (escorted by David Bell) Monica Reid, Fail Stephens, Patricia Fair, Virginia Liles, LaQuines Goodwin, Ruth Davis, Johnny Pratt, Jacqueline Cheeks, and Yolanda Bland. Florence Scobie played the piano during intermission. Jannie Eaddy was moderator.

Former WSSC Student Speaks

Wednesday, March 27, at the 10:00 a.m. chapel hour, the speaker was Miss Bronnie Harris, a graduate of Winston-Salem State College and a teacher at Fairview Elementary School. Miss Harris told the audience that "Knowledge can be a bane or a blessing, a snare or a benefit, according to how it is used. Conditions of the world warrant the help of women of knowledge." Miss Janet Mason, Lady of the Year, introduced the speaker. Other program participants were Van V. Marsh, Gloria Herring and Patricia Davis who performed a dramatization of "Unaware."

Janet Mason Named "Lady of the Year"

Because of her winning ways in every category befitting a lady, Miss Janet Mason has been selected the 1968-69 "Lady of the Year" for Winston-Salem State College. Miss Mason represented the Junior Class. She received the crown worn by Miss Sonja Neely, Lady of the Year for 1967-68 and a graduate in the class of 1967.

Miss Sandra Finger, the Senior candidate, was the only other contestant for the distinguished title.

Miss Mason, the twenty year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Mason of Richmond, Va., is an English major and a Library Science minor. An honor student, she is a secretary of the English Club and president of the Baptist Student Union and a member of the Charm Club on campus. Her favorite pastime is sewing.

In her address to the student body, Miss Mason stated that she did not wish to name a long list of activities that she participated in on campus. Her only desire was to express her appreciation and gratitude to her class who gave her the opportunity to vie for the title of Lady of the Year. Win or lose, the honor would remain in her heart always.

When asked how she felt upon receiving the title Miss Mason replied: "I had hoped and prayed that someday I could wear a crown of honor and represent my school in some way. Now my dream has come true and I can wear the crown with more honor and dignity than any other campus queen. I promise to uphold the title in every respect and to be sure that my deeds are always characteristic of a lady. If ever I should bring a spot to my crown, it is my desire to have it taken from me. I promise never to consciously do anything that would cause the title to be taken. Thank you one and all for your support. You have really made me the happiest young lady on the campus of Winston-Salem State College."

The Lady of the Year contest is sponsored by the Omega Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority. Each year the sophomore, junior and senior classes are given the opportunity to sponsor a young lady who meets the qualifications as stated by the sorority. The qualifications include scholarship, leadership ability, character and active participation in extra-curricular activities. A plaque is given annually by Mrs. Susie Speight Hilliard.

Pageant Features Talent

On Thursday evening, March 28, the Women's Week Pageant was held with Doreatha Clifton and Dorothy Coleman as moderators. Each contestant modeled sports wear and formal attire, demonstrated her talent and displayed her ability to think quickly and intelligently in a limited time.

They were judged for their poise, attractiveness, attire, performance, voice and diction. The first place winner was Eleanor Gilbert who sang "Exodus" for her talent contribution. Tied for second place were Lillie Walters and Betty McPhatter. They used creative modern dances for their talent acts. Receiving the third place award was Christine Warren. Miss Warren also used creative modern dance as her talent. The consolation prize went to Helen Atkinson whose talent act was the singing of "Moon River." Last year's winner, Lorraine Watkins, sang and presented the awards to the ladies. Judges for the pageant were: Lewis Turner, Mr. A. G. Williams, Phyllis Whaley and Mrs. Wright (of Colson Hall).

Petal Pink Dance

The annual Petal Pink Dance was held on Friday evening the 29th of March followed by a Mod Dance on Saturday evening in the gymnasium to conclude the activities.

BSU Sponsors Hootennany

It was a gala affair at the Glade Street Y.W.C.A. on March 23, when the Baptist Student Union (B.S.U.) featured Mr. John Battey at their hootennany. Mr. Battey, a junior high school mathematics and physical education teacher, sang original songs with a unique beat. The members of the B.S.U. sang also.

Refreshments were served and the members were given a tour of the new swimming pool.

The Baptist Student Union hopes to sponsor other activities and urges any one interested to join.
