Group Organizes For Hawkins

The members of the Afro-American Club organized to aid Dr. Reginald Hawkins in his campaign for governor of North Carolina. The Students for Hawkins organization worked in each precinct with voter registration, distributing literature throughout the city of Winston-Salem.

Various members of the organization passed out literature on Hawkins at the registration stations. Many posters were made and circulated by the Students for Hawkins.

The organization also helped sponsor buses to take students to Hawkins' campaign headquarters in the city. Transportation and meals for students who gave their time to the campaign were also provided.

The Students for Hawkins also made an effort to aid Dr. Hawkins financially. They asked members of the faculty and staff of Winston-Salem State for cash donations.

Foreign Students Welcomed

Winston-Salem State College has welcomed two remarkable young women to the college family, Miss Florence Scobie and Miss Louisa Williams, natives of Trinidad and Panama respectively.

"Trying to cope with a new method of teaching that is really different," said Miss Scobie, "is my most difficult problem." She left a teaching position in Trinidad to become a student here at State. She was bored at home and wanted to broaden her horizon.

A junior music major, Miss Scobie explained that the American system of teaching differs greatly from that of Trinidad. She said, "The teacher-student relationships differ. In Trinidad the teacher's word is law, and students' views are suppressed. Students are taught to explore more and are more restricted in social relationship than Americans.

She said that the students are very friendly, and the instructors are helpful. Miss Scobie loves Winston-Salem and enjoys campus life.

Miss Williams came to Winston-Salem to study at the Winston-Salem Bible College. She has finished secretarial courses at the Bible College and is enrolled at State as a special student. She plans to enter the nursing school at State.

Miss Williams said that students and instructors at WSSC are friendly and hospitable. "I like Winston-Salem State very much," she said, "though I have had some difficulty in finding materials in the library that I need for my classes. The systems of education in America and Panama are about the same, except that teachers in Panama are shown more respect."

Lawrence Starks, Jr., Editor of the Yearbook, presented to Mrs. Birdell Lawhorn the first edition of the 1968-69 yearbook. Miss Shirley Clavon presented Mr. Clarence E. Gaines with an award for his outstanding guidance and leadership in the Phi E.

Library Literary Club Sponsors Program

To highlight the Library Week celebration, the Library Literary Club and the Student Activities Committee presented Miss Joanna Featherstone in a "one woman show" in Fries Auditorium Monday, April 22.

Miss Featherstone presented an array of poetry by Negro poets. She dramatized "The Negro Love Song," "Discover," and "In De Morn" by Paul Lawrence Dunbar. From the spiritualistic poetry of James Weldon Johnson, she performed "The Creation." She dramatized "Since You Went Away" by Johnson in tribute to the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Miss Featherstone read a poem by the novelist Richard Wright, "Between the World and Me." Her final selection was one from the play "In White America" that reflected the reactions of a 15-year-old Negro girl in the Little Rock, Ark. school integration.

Miss Mildred H. Mallette opened the program and introduced Miss Featherstone. Closing remarks were made by Mrs. Juanita Oubre. A reception was held immediately afterwards in Brown Hall Parlor.

Faculty Members Win Study Grants

Two Winston-Salem faculty members have received study grants to attend the African Studies Seminar to be conducted at the NDEA African Center at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Mr. Robert Cummings and Dr. Daniel Edem were notified recently of their selection. They will work with twenty-eight other representatives from colleges across the nation.

The seminar is designed to assist colleges which offer programs in teacher education in establishing an international dimension in the field of African studies. The program is essentially of fifteen months duration. An eight week seminar (June 22-August 16) will be held this summer, followed by programs set up on the college campuses in the fall.

The WSSC fall program headed by Mr. Cummings and Dr. Edem will include a series of seminars embracing the following areas: (1) African religion, tribal groupings and histories, modes of living and social and economic systems; (2) The impact of Western culture on African cultures; (3) African political developments under the western powers — France, England, Portugal, and others; (4) Understanding the economic, educational and political problems facing the modern African countries.

A second seminar for the program participants will be held in Africa during the summer of 1969. Mr. Cummings, an instructor of history, explained the program and voiced the hope that it will help fill the need for knowledge of the total development of the world's black people.

"I feel that the program we develop will meet our students' desires for more information on the Afro-American relationships," he said. "Our library does not have materials on this vast new area, therefore, our need is most vital and our problem most severe."

Dr. Edem, Professor of Education and Psychology, was also enthusiastic about the program. Dr. Edem is a native of Nigeria. He said, "I think that the experience I shall gain during the seminar will increase my knowledge about my country, which will enable me to satisfy the great desire of my students to know more about Africa.

Some twenty faculty members will be doing advanced study this summer through grants made available by the Ford Foundation, NDEA, Piedmont University Center and Winston-Salem State College, Board of Higher Education and Title III of the Higher Education Act.

Mrs. Hazel J. Harvey will continue her study of English at the University of Michigan on a Ford Foundation Fellowship. Dr. Charlie B. Hauser will attend the NDEA Institute for Trainers of Teachers of Disadvantaged Youth at Texas Southern University.

Other faculty members who will study are as follows: Mr. John A. Fountain, Science, Wesleyan University; Mr. James S. Galloway, History, University of Pittsburgh; Mr. J. L. Humphrey, Education, Southern Illinois University; Dean Mary S. Isom, Nursing and Personal Administration Nursing; Mrs. Janet M. McCoy, nursing, Indiana University; Mrs. L. Lavetrice Oliver, Biology, New York University; Mrs. Eunice Parker, Education, Columbia University or Wisconsin; Mrs. Lula Robinson, Nursing, Wayne State University; Mr. William J. Rice, Geography, Southern Illinois University; Mrs. Marcelene R. Scales, Health and Physical Education, University of North Carolina at Greensboro; Mr. Nathan F. Sims, Mathematics, Lehigh University; Mrs. Anne Shorter, English, Duke University; Mrs. Myra M. Thomas, Music, Indiana University; Mrs. Golden Wall, Education, Southern Illinois University; Mr. Roland B. Watts, Art, University of North Carolina at Greensboro; Mr. A. G. Williams, Business, Boston University; and Miss Mary J. Williams, Mathematics, San Jose State College.
