

DO YOU NEED EXTRA CASH?

The Black man has long been a standout in the field of entertainment. Black students have long had a proud following of fine Black singers. The following is a list of songs which have been recorded recently by Black artists. All of these songs have been recorded more than once. All of these songs have been recorded on 45 or 78 R.P.M. The trick is to match the song with the two correct artists. The person who does this will be the winner of a new $10.00 bill. All entries MUST BE MAILED to the Office of the News Argus — Room 22 of Carolina Hall, Winston-Salem State University, Winston-Salem, North Carolina 27102. In case of a tie, judging will be done by the earliest postmark.

Profile Of A Professor

By Wanda Smith

This month, the spotlight is focused on Mrs. Wilveria Bass Atkinson who is new with the faculty this year at Winston-Salem State University.

Mrs. Atkinson was born in Goldsboro, North Carolina, and attended elementary and high school there. She was a graduate of Dillard High School in 1948. After graduating from high school, she attended Howard University in Washington, D. C., where she received a Bachelor of Science (B.S.) degree in 1952. After graduation from Howard University, she left Washington and went to the University of Madrid, in Madrid, Spain, where she took Biological Science courses. After returning to the states, she worked for Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City in 1955. In 1960, Mrs. Atkinson started work for the city of New York Department of Health. She remained there as head of the Hematology Division until this summer. During the period, she worked for the City of New York, attended New York University Graduate School and completed the work for the Ph.D. Degree in Biology this summer. The research that Mrs. Atkinson started as a graduate student will be continued here at Winston-Salem State University. Dr. Shepperson, head of the Department of Natural Sciences, has specified laboratories in the science building which may be used for research purposes.

Biology majors interested in her particular line of research will be permitted to work in the laboratory with her. Mrs. Atkinson was asked about the factors influencing her to come to Winston-Salem to teach. Last year she visited several cities in North Carolina to see what opportunities were available in public health. Of the places visited, she selected Winston-Salem State because she felt her abilities could be fully utilized here. "There is a challenging situation here at Winston-Salem that makes me know it's the place for me to work," states Mrs. Atkinson. "That is an interesting experience to be a part of." Mrs. Atkinson teaches General Biology II, Anatomy and Physiology, and Seminar. She has one son, Bradley Atkinson who is in the first grade and attends Mebane Elementary School. They reside at 3501 Fieldstone Drive, which is in Northwood Estates of the city of Winston-Salem. She is the sister of Mr. Marshall B. Bass who is the Corporate Manager in charge of Personnel Development for R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. He lives at 3725 Snauld Drive, Winston-Salem, N. C.

WSSU Student Tours Europe

Charlie White, a senior music major at Winston-Salem State University, auditioned for and was accepted by the North Carolina School of the Arts Siena Secession held in Siena, Italy, during the past summer.

White received a scholarship which allowed him to make the tour for only fifty cents a day. The group, "Camarata Chamber Singers", was accompanied to Siena by a full orchestra and special students for the world famous "Chigiana University" in Siena. The local singers performed throughout all of Italy, in France, Switzerland and Austria, with side trips into Paris, Yugoslavia and Germany. The "Camarata" visited all the major cities of Italy, including Florence, Milan, Pisa and Rome, and the Sistine Chapel of the Vatican City.

After traveling up to Munich, Germany, the group crossed the Alps into Austria and visited Innsbruck, St. Gallen for the "Europa Contata", and Salisbury, the home of Mozart. The group had the privilege of working with the top conductors of Italy, including Antonio Nilmini, director of Italy's official broadcasting choir and Austria's John Paul Von Eller of the University of Strasburg. Mr. White pointed out that Dr. Allison of WSSU used a technique very similar to that of John Paul. The tour concluded after two months. Charlie is a Concord native, and a member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity.

Student Selected As Marketing Rep.

Ross King, a sophomore here at W.S.S.U. has been selected by the D. L. Blair Corporation as a youth marketing representative. Mr. King will be given the use of a 1971 Vega 2300 sedan, in which he will perform a series of tests. King became a representative through a contest he entered last school year. The car itself is yellow with a 90 horsepower motor. It also has a 3-speed transmission and gets up to 25 miles to a gallon of gas. King said, "a free test drive is available to any person who has a driver's license." The D. L. Blair Corp. is sponsoring the research program. King will be under the supervision of A. F. Griffin, the chief security officer here. So, students and faculty, get out and test drive that 1971 Vega.

The Chevrolet Motor Division and General Motors Corporation supplied the '71 Vega sedan.

King will keep and test the car until January 15, 1971.

CUPID'S CORNER

Dear Cupid,

Every time I go out with my boyfriend, he talks about the same thing — other girls. What can I do to stop him?

Fed-Up

Dear Fed-Up,

Try talking about other guys, (fight fire with fire.)

Dear Cupid,

There's a guy on campus that likes me. He's really nice but I like someone else. I'm afraid to hurt his feelings. How can I let him know that I don't like him without hurting his feelings?

Coward

Dear Coward,

If he's the man he's supposed to be, you don't need to worry about his feelings. He'll understand.

Dear Cupid,

I feel terrible. I have no boyfriend. No one every gives me a second look. You see, I'm fat. What hope is there for the fat?

Miserable

Dear Miserable,

Why not try losing weight?

Dear Cupid,

People have the wrong impressions about me. Really, I like people and I like being with them but most girls think I'm conceited and snobbish without really knowing me. What can I do to change this unreal impression girls have of me?

Misunderstood

Dear Misunderstood,

Talk to people and prove to them that they're wrong. That is, if they really are. Check out your mind and find out if it isn't you who is wrong.

Dear Cupid,

Every time a guy smiles, speaks, or pays any attention to me, I blush and become flustered. I'm not at all shy with my girlfriends, but I am definitely "guy-shy".

The Happening

They said write a story — the story of something happening on campus. Heretofore, I had seen no happenings.

So, I started back to my room to begin doing my homework assignments and to maybe give birth to an idea for a story.

Signing in, I became conscious of what sounded like music straight out of Saint Peter's gates coming from the recreation area of my dorm. After I had signed in, I followed the sound down the hall, opened the door, and looked in.

Seated around the piano were about 10 girls: one with her head in the air singing the lead with the rest taking the background parts made up as they went along. At the piano was a sophomore counselor who was really pouring her soul into that keyboard.

At the end of the song, I pulled up a chair and tried to fit my voice in wherever I knew the song. The pianist would turn to each girl, look at her and say, "Now we'll sing your song." The girls would each take their song and make it as beautiful as the last.

They sang on for about five more songs and finally Dianne said, "O.K., we'll end where we began." The song? Lord, Forgive Me and Try One More Time. And I could hear it being sung in church back home. Maybe in a different form, but the words were the same. And I heard my people in Chicago, Harlem, Watts, New Jersey, Mississippi, singing "Freedom, Freedom." These kids had it.

— Sybil Mitchell

There's a guy in one of my classes that I would love to get to know. How can I overcome my shyness so I can at least talk to him?

"Guy-Shy"

Dear "Guy-Shy,"

Are you sure you want to know the guy? Look again, then take it nice and slow. If he wants to, he'll see you. If he doesn't notice you, he might not want you. If this is the case, it would be a waste of time anyway.

Dear Cupid,

I have been here at college for a number of years and still haven't found a boyfriend. I am of average height with a nice figure. How do I become more popular?

The Lonely One

Dear Lonely One,

How's your mug?

Dear Cupid,

I think that I am just as nice looking as my roommate. Yet she goes out every week-end while I keep the room warm. How can I get in the groove?

Room Keeper

Dear Room Keeper,

If you want your prayers answered, get up and do something about them.

Dear Cupid,

I would like to cut away from a very immature boy who thinks he's a man. How should I go about this?

Suffering

Dear Suffering,

Do it bluntly. Maybe he'll grow up and you'll find you have whatever it is you're looking for right there.

Do you have any problems? Any questions that need answering? Maybe Cupid can help you. Just write and address your problems to "Cupid" c/o The News Argus, Carolina Hall, Room 22. Your problems will be answered in this column.

JOKES OF THE WEEK

Asked by his teacher to spell "straight" the 3rd grade boy did so without error. "Now," said the teacher, "What does it mean without water?"

***

"Not that I believe in reincarnation," said the football player to his hyperprudish date, "but what were you before you died?"

***

The sexy coed was being driven back to college by her father's chauffeur when a tire blew out. Seeing that the chauffeur couldn't remove the hubcap, the girl reached for the toolbox and asked, "Do you want a screw, driver?"

"Might as well," he muttered. "I sure can't get this damn hubcap off."
