

Welcome Back Rams

Hello Rams!

We'd just like to take the time out to welcome all of you back to a year that we hope will be profitable and rewarding for you. We hope that your vacation was a pleasant and relaxing one and that now you are ready to get back into the swing of things.

From an academic point of view, we'd like to encourage every Ram to work hard and push forward with a positive attitude. We hope that the semester will fly by and know that your averages will fly high with it. After all we are no. 1 in everything!

Socially, we like to congratulate the football team on a magnificent season and hope that their upcoming season will be as good. We'd like the basketball teams (male and female) to know that we are proud of them because they are two of many reasons why we're rated at the top today. We'd also like to boost the over-all school spirit for the year 78 and remind the Rams that we are Mighty! Mighty!

Last, but of the gravest importance, we'd like to thank God for allowing us the chance to return to college safe and sound. It is by his grace that we have come as far as we have as an institution as well as an individual.

We, the members of the News Argus Staff, hope that we will release a paper that you can relate to and be proud of. Remember, you are the backbone of Ramland. The hump of all humps!

To the Seniors, what can we say? Hang in there. You're almost over the hump!

Serving you with a smile.

Emam Wallace D. Muhammad

The Chief Emam Wallace D. Muhammad will be brought to Winston-Salem State University by the New Day SGA on February 17, 1978 at 8:30 p.m. in the Kenneth R. Williams Auditorium.

Make a date to come out and hear this dynamic man speak.

Phi Beta Lambda On The Move

Phi Beta Lambda held its first meeting of the 1978 year, at 10 a.m., February 1, in Eller Hall. This was the first general meeting of the year. The new officers were introduced -- President - Troy Baker, Vice-President - Leonard Abdullar, Secretary - Selma White, Assist. Secretary -- Robin Howard, Treasurer -- Mary Daniels, Parliamentarian -- Reginald Eldridge, Historian - Debbie Steveson, and Reporter - James Wilkins.

The meeting was held to acquaint the members of Phi Beta Lambda of upcoming events and projects that are planned. The highlights of upcoming events this semester are two fund raising events, plus an Income Tax Seminar for all interested members of Phi Beta Lambda. There has been no date chosen yet, but the two tentative dates are February 18 or 25. The IRS seminar is to help students learn how to do their own Income Tax Statements. One of the anticipated events is The State Conference of Phi Beta Lambda which will be held here in Winston-Salem at the Hyatt-House downtown. The convention is planned for March 31-April 2.

There is concern about member participation which is necessary for smooth operation of the organization.

Troy, also commended the officers for their diligent work and enthusiasm that they have shown thus far and challenged all members to follow their example.

The general meetings of Phi Beta Lambda will be held twice a month, every other week. The next two meetings are scheduled for February 15 and March 1, on Wednesday, at 10 a.m., in Eller Hall.

Phi Beta Lambda is striving to achieve better relations with the business community and student here at Winston-Salem State. Every member is asked to participate and support the success of this semester's events.

Health Clinics Held

In observance of North Carolina Student Nurses Week, members of the Student Nurses Association at Winston-Salem State University have undertaken a number of projects to promote community health.

On Monday, February 20 five nursing students will present a lecture demonstration on good eating habits to the three and four-year olds at Mini-Skool on Country Club Road. The presenters will be Deborah Jackson, Wanda Payton, Karla Umpstead, Ellen Brown, and Sharon Kelly. Ms. Kelly is community health chairperson for the state organization of student nurses.

On Tuesday, there will be a sickle cell screening clinic conducted by Robert McCarthy, program educator for the city-wide sickle cell program. The clinic will be held in the Hauser

Student Union Ballroom from 10:00 A.M. to 12 Noon. It will be open free to the public.

Student nurses Judy Gibbs and Belinda Patterson will conduct a blood pressure clinic at Sunrise Towers from 4:00 P.M. to 7:00 P.M. on Tuesday. A blood pressure clinic, open free to the public, will be held in the Hauser Student Union Ballroom from 1:00 P.M. to 5:00 P.M. on Wednesday, February 22.

The week of February 19 February 25 has been proclaimed North Carolina Student Nurses Week by Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. in recognition of the contributions of nursing students to nursing education and community affairs. In a proclamation presented last week, Mayor Wayne Corpening declared the same period as N.C. Student Nurses Week in Winston-Salem.

Poetic Imagery

In the poems "Metting at Night" and "Parten at Morning" together and separately represent imagery of beauty and emotion. In the first poem, the stage is set by the bright and dominating force of the moonlight. The brightness is deepened by its closeness as well. The mixture of the moonlight along with the gray appearance of the land sends forth an image of something intangible. A feeling with elements of happiness, fear and perhaps love. The poem speaks of quickness and the showing of rapidly passing landscape. The appearance of this seen is one which is not easy to comprehend. The last poem, the title "parten at Morning" displays not a feeling of a great awakening but one of a desolate mood or depression. The sunshine over the mountains seemingly would produce shadows of which could be interpreted as gloom. The golden road is the only positive aspect that the sun acknowledges. The color itself explains to the reader that this road is made for only one person of importance.

The first poem stresses images of not definite value or setting. The relationship between the first part of the poem and the person in the second come together as a secretive and emotional idea. The images from the first part could be thought as ones of love but that point seems impossible to determine without the second. In the second poem however, sorrow of a lost lover is the mood and sorrow is the main image indicated. There is only one character in the last poem, and the golden road created by the sun's rays is set-aside for him.

Shut your mouth
and roll up your sleeves.

You know what's wrong with America. The injustices, even in a land that's just. Too many poor people. And there's still too much ignorance and hunger. Generations of people running as fast as they can, just to stand still. Everybody's talked about it for years. Talk is cheap. And the road to Hell, you know what that's paved with. It's up to you, do something about it! Something called VISTA. Volunteers in Service to America. It's coming alive again. And it sounds like it just may be the ticket for you. You'll work in your community or someone else's. Whether you're 18 or 80, whether your income is high or low, we don't care.

The people you help to organize a St. Louis poverty project or an Appalachian community co-op... won't care as long as you help. And you will. Not all of it, but some of it. And we won't lie to you, you'll be working long and hard and the pay, it's nothing to brag about. But you'll be getting. Getting back more than you've given. And the progress you've made, that was no drop in the bucket either.
