

The News Argus

Vol. XIII, No. 3

January, 1979

Judge Richard Erwin (left); H. Mickey Michaux Jr., United States Attorney General, Middle District Court of North Carolina (center) and Winslow Lowrey pose at banquet honoring Judge Erwin.

Erwin Honored At Banquet

By News Argus Staff

The Winston-Salem State University Alumni held a banquet in honor of Richard C. Erwin, Judge, Court of Appeals of North Carolina on WSSU's campus. Mickey Michaux, U. S. Attorney for MIDDLE District Court in North Carolina was the keynote speaker for the occasion.

Mr. Michaux said that Judge Erwin has helped to "bridge the gap between scientific and moral progress". He said that "we must have a true revolution of values and re-establish the moral ends of our lives ..." He concluded by saying we should seek " ...

a genuine revolution of values that extends loyalty to mankind."

A special plaque was presented to Judge Erwin by Winslow Lowrey, alumni director, WSSU Alumni Association.

Judge Erwin thanked everyone for participating in the affair and promised to continue to work with citizens and maintain fairness and impartiality.

Figaro Opera To Be Held

By News Argus Staff

Figaro here.
Figaro there.
Figaro where? Here.
Figaro, the resourceful Seville barber, will display his talents as a matchmaker when he and other residents of the Spanish town take over the stage at Reynolds Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. on Friday, February 16, 1979.

The Winston-Salem Urban League is sponsor of this single performance of Rossini's popular comic opera "The Barber of Seville" performed in English by the North Carolina Opera. Tickets are available at two locations. They are the Winston-Salem Urban League in the Pepper Building, Suite 405, 102 West Fourth Street and the Arts Council Box Office at 610 Coliseum Drive.

The North Carolina Opera, the parent company of which is now in its 30th season, has assembled talented singers from across the country for this performance. The singers will be backed by a 12-member chorus, a full orchestra, and a beautiful set.

Thomas J. Elijah, Jr., the Urban League's president, said, "The prime purpose (of the sponsorship) is to develop audiences for the arts. we're hoping the entire community will participate."

"The Barber of Seville" has had universal appeal for audiences. The barber Figaro and the charming Count Almaviva team together, use a variety of disguises to outwit Dr. Bartolo, the guardian of the young and comely Rosina, his ward, and win Rosina's hand for the Count.

The singers and the roles they will sing in the performance here include Paul Aquino as Figaro, David Britton as Count Almaviva, Napoleon Bisson as Dr. Bartolo, Carol Wilcox as Rosina, and Stephen Wst

See Page 2

New Faculty Arrive

By News Argus Staff

Dr. Lafayette Parker, vice chancellor of academic affairs at Winston-Salem State University, has released the roster of new faculty members for the Spring Semester.

Those joining the faculty are George Alston, visiting assistant professor of sociology; Linda Greene, instructor of business; Ronald Greene, visiting instructor of English; Beverly Kemp, instructor of natural science; Christina Meyer, instructor of nursing; and Dr. Rosamond Putzel, visiting associate professor of English.

WSSU Seeks Players

By Debra McClam
Staff Reporter

Head football coach Bill Hayes recently announced the recruitment of twenty-two of the nation's top High School football players. The players were carefully selected by the football coaches at Winston-Salem State University. According to Coach Hayes, several factors influenced the selection of each new recruit. Among these factors were academic standing, educational needs, and football records.

The new recruits are: linebackers Dillard Thomas, 6 ft. 1 inch, 215 pounds, from Armstrong Hill High School, Richmond, Va.; Jerry McCollough, 5 ft. 10 inches, 205 pounds, from High Point Andrews High School, High Point, N. C.; and Maurice Harris, 6 ft. 1 inch, 195 pounds from Thomasville Senior High School, Thomasville, N. C.

The linemen include:

See Page 4

Georgia Senator Julian Bond [center] confers with SGA president William Penn [left] and Chancellor Covington [right].