

Trustees Hold Meeting

from page 1

policy by requiring the signature of the instructor, department chairperson, division director, and the academic vice chancellor.

Chancellor Covington stated, "These revisions will facilitate the monitoring of academic changes initiated by the faculty."

It was reported at the meeting that a visiting team from the Department of Public Instruction conducted its evaluation of the Winston-Salem State University (WSSU) Teacher Education Program. Their report indicated that the program received an overall rating of two; which is described as adequately met.

In further academic reports, WSSU's faculty committees are now developing the sequence of courses for authorized degree programs in Accounting, Economics and Recreation Education. The deadline for completion of these program plans is December 17, 1979. Also, the Computer Science program has been revised and majors will be required to complete only 24 semester hours of Computer Science courses to qualify for the Bachelor of Science degree.

To meet the demands of the new students in this field and others, efforts are being made to establish a student advisement system, which will permit more student contact with assigned academic advisors. More job opportunities seem to be around the corner for college students. It was also reported that two new firms have been added to the Business/Industry Cluster. The new firms are Pepsi Cola Bottling Company and Bendix Corporation.

The members of the Ad Hoc Committee for the selection of "Who's Who" nominees are: Manderline Scales, director of student activities; Elizabeth Newton and Beverly Poe, WSSU students; Dr. Nathan Sims, head of the division of Liberal Arts and Sciences; Warren Oldham, director of recruitment and records; Elaine Browne, assistant director of student activities; Sandra Amos, director of the counseling center; and Dr. Haywood Wilson, vice-president for student affairs.

Students Make Who's Who

from page 1

Bride, Diane McBride, Sadie B. McConner, Ellen F. Mitchell, Teresa A. Murrell, Vicki R. Powell, Teresa A. Reels, Rebecca A. Robinson, Patricia A. Royal, Brenda Smith and Shelia A. Revis.

The following students are also included on the list. The are: Viveca L. Thomason, Pinkie Venable, Audrey L. Wilder, Wavey B. Williams, Georgia Wilson, and Carolyn D. White.

The members of the Ad Hoc Committee for the selection of "Who's Who" nominees are: Manderline Scales, director of student activities; Elizabeth Newton and Beverly Poe, WSSU students; Dr. Nathan Sims, head of the division of Liberal Arts and Sciences; Warren Oldham, director of recruitment and records; Elaine Browne, assistant director of student activities; Sandra Amos, director of the counseling center; and Dr. Haywood Wilson, vice-president for student affairs.

The Person To See

Deborah L. Waddell, a business administration major, has been selected to be the Winston-Salem State University's representative for the Peace Corps. If anyone else is interested in getting information about the Peace Corps, she can be located at 313 Blair Hall.

Peace Corps Hires Coed

By News Argus Staff

Deborah L. Waddell, a student at Winston-Salem State University and Ms. Barbara Crumwell, Placement Director were among representatives of 33 colleges and universities who convened in Atlanta, November 13-16, as guests of the Peace Corps.

Concerned that only 4.9 percent of the volunteers who go abroad with the Peace Corps come from minority publics, Deputy Peace Corps Director William G. Sykes invited the students and supervisors to Atlanta as part of an initiative to increase involvement of minority members.

"As a black American, I am very concerned about getting more Black, Hispanic, and American Indian men and women into the Peace Corps," proclaimed Sykes, who is former deputy secretary of the Maryland Department of Human Resources in Baltimore and continues in a non-paid post as president of the Maryland State Board of Education.

"You can play a unique role in providing underdeveloped countries with skilled American manpower," he told the 100 representatives from 11 eastern and southern states. "You can also help the people of the Third World countries to have a better understanding of American society..."

Waddell is majoring in Business Adm.-Accounting at WSSU and was chosen by the school as its campus representative for the Peace Corps. Each representative who attended the Atlanta conference is from a school or other organization which has a contract from the Peace Corps to help stimulate interest in helping Third World countries.

Among those who served on panels or addressed the representatives to help them better understand the Peace Corps environment and roles of vol-

Recruiters Plan Visit

By News Argus Staff

The following companies and organizations will be conducting interviews in the Career Planning and Placement Office for the months of December, January, and February.

The Burroughs Corporation and Camp Lejeune Dependents' Schools will be on campus December 12, 1979 and January 30, 1980, respectively.

In February, recruiters will be coming from the following establishments: Moore County Schools, on the 5th; The Northwestern Bank, on the 6th; Barnewell Public Schools, and Westmoreland County Public Schools both on the 8th.

The companies coming to campus on the 12th are: Mutual Plaza; I.B.M. Corporation; and J.C. Penney's Stores.

Recruiters from Cumberland County Public School System and the Greene County Board will be in the Placement Office on the 13th.

Other recruiters coming to campus include: the McLean Trucking Company, on the 18th; Branch Banking and Trust Company, on the 20th and the Roadway Express, on the 21st.

The following recruiters will be in the Placement Office

see Page 8

PROBLEM PREGNANCY?

Call us for information and assistance for all alternatives to unplanned pregnancy. Free pregnancy testing. Arcadia Women's Medical Clinic, 721-1620.

THE NEWS ARGUS

Editor-in-Chief.....	William S. Fulton
Assignment Editor.....	Viveca L. Thomason
Sports Editor.....	Everett Jackson
Business Manager.....	James Sanders Jr.
Circulation Manager.....	Jacqueline Lane
Editorial Assistants.....	Brian K. Washington
	Faye Vernon
Photographer.....	Sheila Monroe
Reporter.....	Debra Forlest
Cartoonist.....	El Patterson
Typesetters.....	The Winston-Salem Chronicle
Contributing Writer.....	Ricky Newsome
Faculty Advisor.....	Felecia Jones
Staff Consultant.....	Charisse Fountain