

Sports-in-Brief

By Everett Jackson

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL - Under the direction of Willie Yellock, the Ramettes will host the CIAA Softball Tournament April 19.

TENNIS - Freshman sensation Kelvin Crawford, a transfer student from Texas Southern, is seeking a bid to the CIAA Tournament with hopes of winning it.

WRESTLING - Due to circumstances concerning their status, the Ram wrestlers were unable to compete in post-season play. Jeff Raleigh, a freshman wrestler, comments about the incident. "It was very unfortunate we did not get to wrestle in the districts. I feel we could have won the district and placed 4 or 5 wrestlers in the NAIA Nationals in Kansas City."

FOOTBALL - Former Ram player Billy Diggs, a ninth round draft choice to the Minnesota Vikings, was recently traded to the Buffalo Bills.

All-American Timmy Newsome is rated number three among twenty of the nation's top 'backs sought in the NFL draft. Newsome is a possible first round choice, but should be chosen no further than fourth.

BASEBALL - Calvin Parker, Terry Young, Chuck Hinsley and Derrick Johnson are forming a baseball club at WSSU. With support, these determined men are seeking to restore baseball as an official school sport at Winston-Salem State University. All interested persons are asked to meet on the baseball diamond weekdays at 4:00 p.m.

BASKETBALL - After concluding his 34th season as Ram basketball coach, Bighouse Gaines posted a 19-7 mark which makes his overall total 658 victories and 263 losses.

Reggie Gaines, WSSU's scoring machine, was chosen CIAA PLAYER OF THE YEAR. Reggie was also chosen to the National Association Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) All-American basketball team along with Norfolk State's Ricky Mahorn.

Intramural-Only in intramural basketball could one hear such names as the New Urbanites, Ohio Players, Face Squad, Zone-Busters, Wilmington 10 and Westside just to name a few. In the Intramural Championship game the Joint Sections squeaked by T-Connection 45-42 to determine themselves as the champs.

26 Students Hold Internships

By News Argus Staff

Twenty-six Winston-Salem State University students are serving internships at local businesses. This represents the largest number of students from WSSU to serve internships at one time. This is also the first year that students are serving in a cross section of places.

In order to be an intern, one must be an upper level junior or senior and must have completed most of the courses in his or her particular major. The internship must be in one's major course of study. Students get from three to six hours of course credit for serving an internship. In order to receive three hours credit a student must work 150 clock hours, and in order to receive six hours of credit, a student must work a total of 300 clock hours.

The students serving the internships are housing management majors Joyce A. Herring, Winfred Mack, Valjeanne Miles, Willa D. Scott, Edward Smith, Clifford Sparrow, Odessa J. Starnes and Phyllis Thorpe, who are all working for the Housing Authority of Winston-Salem; Marilyn Person and Susan L. Smith, at Goler Metropolitan Apartments; Deborah K. Cousar, and Ivorette Stallings, at New Bethel Baptist Church Apartments; Doris A. Brown, at Community Management Corporation; Sharon George, at Brantley Realty and Insurance Co.; Joe T. Johnson, at Winston-Salem Hyatt House.

Theresa A. Edwards, Denise L. Sutton, and Myra Nunnally, all Administration majors are working at the Downtown Church Center Planning Division/Word Processing at WSSU and C.G. Watson Associates, Inc.

The Accounting majors serving internships are: Walter A. Gaddy, accounting section of the WSSU Business Office; Lewis D. Rogers at the United Way of Forsyth County; Frank Williams at The Jr. Achievement Program of Winston-Salem; and Angela M. Winchester, at the National Urban League (student based in Winston-Salem). Also at the Urban League is Denise Jefferies, an economics major.

Comprehensive Business majors participating in internship programs are: John W. Lewis, at Vanguard Corporation of The Jr. Achievement Program; Lenora Mack, at Reynolds Health Care Center; and Craig L. Unstead at The Business Action League.

Cagers Receive Academic Awards

By News Argus Staff

Academic All-American Men's and Women's basketball teams, as selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CSIDA) have been selected. Selections are made annually on the basis of excellence in athletics and scholastic achievements. This makes the first year for the naming of a women's team in the 26-year history of the Academic All-Americans.

The five men and five women making up the respective University Division first teams were presented on nationwide television via Hughes

TV and Madison Square Garden Productions. The women were presented during the semi-final round of the NIT. March 17. The men were represented during the championship game on March 19. Nick Buoniconti, U.S. Tobacco Company Director and former Miami Dolphin great, made the presentations along with the CoSIDA representative.

U.S. Tobacco, manufacturer of SKOAL and HAPPY DAYS moist smokeless tobacco products, presented checks for $1,000 to each team members school scholarship fund in the players name. Players and schools also received commemorative plaques and scrolls.

Checks for $500 were to be sent to each school represented by members of the College Division Academic All-American Basketball teams.

U.S. Tobacco has donated almost $700,000 in college scholarships during the past five years.

Brown Addresses Athletes

By Everett Jackson

Dr. Joe E. Brown Jr., chairman of the Health and Physical Education Department and also chairman of the WSSU Athletic Committee, gave an influential speech dedicated to the numerous athletes of Winston-Salem State University. The speech was recently given at the sports banquet held in the Student Union ballroom.

Brown's speech centered on progress and noted perfection in WSSU athletics. He also stressed the importance and desirability to excel in one's chosen field of athletics with great enthusiasm and pride.

The banquet was climaxed with comments by athletic coaches from their respective positions. Bill Hayes, head football coach; Mike Edwards, head wrestling coach; Marcelene Scales, director of Women's Sports; Clarence Gaines, head basketball coach; and Al Roseboro, head tennis and golf coach.

Bobby Bennet, President of Student Government Association along with distinguished members, contributed their time and effort to sponsor the affair.

Brown, a native of Statesville, N.C., forsee a goal of excellence for WSSU sports.

School Seeks 'SU Grads

By Jacqueline Lane

Wake Forest's Babcock Graduate School of Management is seeking applicants from Winston-Salem State University's (WSSU) graduating students. William Shea, director of admissions, said "they were interested in seeking black applicants as well as young ones."

The Babcock School does its heaviest recruiting from January to May. After successfully completing the two-year course, students will receive their degree at the annual Wake Forest University commencement exercises in May.

The objective of the Babcock Graduate School of Management is to educate men and women for careers as successful managers of organizations. The Babcock School feels that it can supply the skills and concepts needed to help make a successful manager. Among the courses offered are accounting, economics, and management financing. Although the Babcock School is small, it is flexible.

Anyone desiring more information on the Babcock Graduate School of Management, may contact William Shea, director of admissions by calling 761-5422, or writing the Babcock School of Management, Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem, N.C. 27109.

PLANNING A PARTY

OLD ENGLISH $2.34
SCHLITZ MALT 2.34

MILLER $2.26
BUDWEISER 2.26

LAMBRUSCA
Lini
$1.50 per bottle

20 KINDS OF KEG BEER
OVER 500 BRANDS OF WINES

CITY BEVERAGE CO.

908 Burke Street
722-2774