Play Is Sad And Comical

From Page 7

Act one, a Sunday morning in Harlem, opened with testimony service where various hymns, shouts, and lamentations toward God were sent up. Reverend Margaret, played by Karen Johnson, gave a typical 'rip-snorting, hell-raising' sermon in front of a full congregation.

In the congregation were: Margaret's sister, Odessa, a very pious character, played by Vanessa Williams;

Margaret's son, David, a typical confused 18 year old, played by George Jones; Ida Jackson, a young bride with a sickly child, played by Cindy Cook.

The Elders of the church were: Sister Moore, played by Tracie Hunter, Sister Boxer, a prudish unchristianly 'lady,' played by Octavia Gibson, and Brother Boxer, soon to be a ''liquor truck' driver, played by Kenneth Headen.

Other members of the church were: Sister Sally, played by Alice McIver; Sister Douglas, played by Angela

Gamble; Sister Rice, played by Eydie Martin; Sister Davis, played by Veronica Banner;

Sister Brown, played by Gail Allen; and Brother Rice, played by Thaddeus Wilkins.
