The Popular Culture Association in the South will have its Ninth Annual Convention October 16-18 at the Hilton Inn in Winston-Salem. This conference is hosted by Winston-Salem State University.

The Popular Culture Association is an organization which brings together scholars from small colleges and universities. These scholars share an interest in a number of areas such as American studies, anthropology, black studies, fine arts, linguistics, literature, psychology, sociology, history and political science.

This is the first time this meeting is being held in North Carolina and the first time it is being hosted by a predominately black institution.

Chancellor Covington, Mayor Corpening, the Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce, the North Carolina School of the Arts, Salem College and Wake Forest University have expressed their support for this upcoming meeting.

Two Winston-Salem State University faculty members are serving as leaders of the association. Sociology professor, Dr. Ralph Von Tresckow Napp, is the president and psychology professor, Dr. Claiborne B. Thorpe, is the local arrangements chairman.

Winston-Salem State University faculty members, Drs. Lacy G. Hall, William Rice and Mr. Robert McConnell will also present their ideas on various topics.
