

Students Speak Out

Do you think the SGA is doing a good job handling the Homecoming Show?

Dana Caulder
Lumberton, N.C.

Yes, I do feel that the SGA is doing a good job. I know that everything they do doesn't come out the way they want it to, but I feel that they are putting their best foot forward, and are doing the best job that they possibly can.

Wilbur Streeter
Asheville, N.C.

I think they are doing a fine job. To my knowledge they are doing better than last year's SGA, after all, they have more student support!!

Alfred Ridgell
Lillington, N.C.

Yes, I think that the SGA is doing a fine job, considering, that they had to pick up from where the previous SGA left off. The students will realize later of the great job is being done.

Keep Up Through DPMA

Constance Lowery

Not long ago, only data processing people needed to know about computers and related areas. People in other business areas hardly ever used computers.

Now all that has changed and many non technicians must use computers to do their jobs. Preparation for the world of the 80's and acquired knowledge in computer related areas through Data Processing Management Association can prove to be fascinating as well as challenging.

The theme and purpose of DPMA is managing for success and staying on top of tomorrow.

An interesting part of this organization is the support of management in personnel considerations. Since this is one of a management exchange chain, could help to develop a special combination of skills and experience to become gainfully employed. The payoff could result in being trained in office automation, management plans, high salaries, and enormous job satisfaction.

Should you decide to participate in this organization, the first step is to attend one of the meetings being held on the first and third Tuesdays of each month at 5 p.m.

Watch the bulletin boards for announcements about DPMA-because it could benefit you to stay on top of things.

Happy Homecoming Rams
