Graves Joins Staff As JRD Recruiter

By Angela Corbett

Do you need a little extra money to make that car payment? Maybe you just need a few dollars for clothes or food. Well whatever your situation JRD (Job Recruitment and Development) may have a solution.

A native of Eden, N.C. Barry Graves now heads the Job Recruitment and Development program, located in 315 Blair Hall on the WSSU campus.

Graves received his B.A. in History with a minor in Political Science from St. Augustine in Raleigh. He received a M.A. in Guidance and Counseling from N.C. A&T State University.

Previously Graves held a similar position at Rockingham Community College. However, he was more interested in serving the black community, therefore Winston-Salem State became his choice.

Since before the 85-86 school year began, Graves has been out in the community informing businesses about the JRD program. The response has been extremely good from both students and employers. According to Graves approximately 100 students enter his office per week seeking part-time or full-time positions.

The program has already placed 30 students into the workforce. Also co-op students, with various majors, are being placed through the program.

Arriving at his office at 8 a.m. Monday-Friday, he prepares to answer questions or screen students for jobs until 5:30 p.m. Those students with night classes can find him in the Education Department in Coltrane Hall every Wednesday night.

"Whenever a student wants to talk or ask questions I'll stay as long as it necessitates, because students are the main priority," he explained.

Currently the JRD program is flying high! Student response and the quality of WSSU students has encouraged more employers to contact Graves for job placement. The program not only offers job placement but every Tuesday and Thursday workshops are held.

On Friday's from 10 a.m.-11 a.m., career seminars are sponsored by people in the community on resume' writing, dress code for interviews and filling out applications.

Still looking for a job? Maybe you should check out JDR.

James Waits In Wings For A Chance To Play

By Derek S. Pleasants

Sophomore quarterback, Keith James, a standout player at Dudley High School in Greensboro, N.C., is patiently awaiting his chance to prove he can also do it for the Rams of WSSU.

James, an all conference defensive back and quarterback while in high school, says the major transition between high school and collegiate football is learning the many defenses, and a more complex offense.

Although he hasn't had much playing time, he feels when given the chance he'll prove himself as a more than adequate quarterback for the Rams.

He feels the Rams, who are once again favored to win the Southern Division in football, will be a better team once they pull together as a unit and as the season progresses.

As a potential Mass Communications major, he says getting a chance to play is really important. On the other hand, "I feel my first priority is my education and in one way or another, I will be successful."
