Student Relationships

by Angela Boone

Is there anyone who doesn't desire a fulfilling love relationship? If we're not currently enjoying one, we surely long to share our lives with someone we find exciting, tender, supportive, and sexually thrilling too. But if we're all looking for the same good things in love, why are so many relationships in flux.

The most complicated situation for any college student is a student relationship. So what is a student relationship? They're several different types of student relationships, but the most popular is the distant relationship.

Most students in college are either involved in school activities, maintaining a job, or bogged down with their studies. What makes all of this hard work worth while, is that special someone on campus or back home. A lot of people feel having a relationship while in college is too much to bare, and that can be true in some cases. College studies put a lot of stress on students, and is enough to deal with. Today college students are learning that love and the books aren't compatible. These two obligations mixed together often produce disappointment, a lack of studying, or the worst nightmare for anyone "A BROKEN HEART." How can this problem be resolved so that nothing or no one is neglected? There really isn't an answer that could suit the lives of so many different people, but with the will of all hearts and the sanity of all minds, this problem can be solved. How?

What all students should establish among themselves is where they stand with their mates and let than be known and recognized. To often we let our hearts lead us to believe something is shared and it really isn't. Once we establish where we stand with someone, then we can go ahead and put our minds on our school work. It's important that we do the things we find fulfilling and necessary for our well-being, whether or not we have a lover. What should be stressed most is the fact that while in college each and every student has to have a clear mind to get ahead.

Student relationships during college years shouldn't be neglected, because we all need companionship. It's nice to have someone who understands your wants and needs, but it's better to have someone flexible enough to understand you as a person.

People who don't attend college won't ever know the lifestyles of college students. Everyone thinks college is a blast and it's full of excitement and fun, which it can be. College is really a time for growing and growing pains as well.

Student relationships in college is a part of all the growing that will be remembered in the years to come. We will remember the lonely weekends, thoughts of that distant love, and even the disappointment of that special love that led to a dropping of grades.

What will be cherished most of all is the learning of experiences in our student relationships while in college. Thoughts will flow in our minds and we'll say, "I believe that was Fall? Semester 84 or was it Spring 85." Various thoughts will flow and we will always remember those college relationships.

ABC Offers New Mid-season Television Programs

As part of an important mid-season schedule changes, two new comedies, "The Redd Foxx Show" and "He's The Mayor," joined the ABC Television Network's prime time lineup in January: and "Benson," "The Fall Guy," "Ripley's Believe it or Not!" and "MacGyver" moved to new time periods. In addition, "The Disney Sunday Movie," a rich and diverse mix of one and two-hour made-for-television movies, premiered with a two-hour feature on SUNDAY, FEB. 2 (7:00-9:00 P.M., EST).

In chronological order the schedule changes are:

"He's the Mayor," which stars Kevin Hooks as a young college graduate who runs for mayor in his hometown, and surprisingly wins premiered on FRIDAY, JAN. 10 (9:30-10:00 p.m., EST) complementing "Diff-rent Strokes," starring Gary Coleman, which airs at 9:00 p.m. "The Fall Guy," the popular action-adventure series starring Lee Majors, will follow "He's the Mayor," moving into the new time period (10:00-11:00 p.m.).

"The Redd Foxx Show," marking the return of one of television's most popular comedic actors, premiered SATURDAY, JAN. 11 (8:00-8:30 p.m., EST). "Benson," the long-running and popular series starting the Emmy Award-winning Robert Guillaume, follows at 8:30-9:00 p.m., creating a delightful hour of comedy, featuring two of television's most talented men.

"MacGyver," the spine-tingling adventure starring Richard Dean Anderson as the man of action who is called upon to solve seemingly impossible situations when all else fails, moved to Wednesdays (8:00-9:00 p.m., EST), began on JAN. 22, creating an opportunity for this stylish action-adventure series to grow in that time period. "The Insiders," currently airing in the time period, will have its last telecast on Jan. 15.

"Ripley's Believe it or Not!," the intriguing and informative series with co-stars and co-hosts Jack Palance and Marie Osmond, has maintained a loyal audience during its four seasons on the air, moved to Thursdays (8:00-9:00 p.m., EST) JAN. 30, creating alternative programming in this time period. "Shadow Chasers," presently airing in the time period will go on telecast hiatus following its Jan. 16 broadcast. The network television premier of the popular theatrical release, "Grease II," will air on THURSDAY, JAN. 23 (8:00-10:00 p.m., EST).

"The Redd Foxx Show" (8:00-8:30 p.m., Saturdays). Red Foxx stars as Al Hughes, the off-kilter but lovable proprietor of a coffee shop and newsstand in the heart of New York City. The show mixes the relationships between Al and the regulars who frequent his establishment, and the sharp humor of Redd Foxx. "The Redd Foxx Show" is a Thunder Road Production in association with Lorimar Productions. Executive producers are Rick Kellard and Stuart Sheslow. Jack Siefert and Eric Cohen are producers.

"He's the Mayor" (9:30-10:00 p.m.). No one was more surprised than 25-year-old college graduate Carl Burke when he ran for mayor in his hometown and won. He lacks political savvy, but more than makes up for it with charisma, honesty, resourcefulness—and a lot of help from his staff, friends, and father, Alvin, the city's chief maintenance man. Kevin Hooks stars as Carl Burke. Executive producers are Sandy Veith and Terry Hart, in association with Universal Television. John Forbes and Kris Keiser are the producers.

Tanya's Movie Review:

"The Color Purple"

by Tanya McDougal

Stephen Spielberg has mesmerized his audiences again with the moving and dramatic account of Alice Walker's Pulitzer prize winning novel, "The Color Purple."

The film traces the 40 year saga of a Southern black woman's triumph over a timid, insecure childhood and terrifying marriage to becoming a self fulfilled woman who establishes her own identity.

Celie, the leading character is portrayed by comedienne Whoopi Goldberg. This gives Goldberg a chance to prove that she can shift from comedy to drama and still retain her audiences. Her performance is excellent, considering this is her first attempt at becoming a dramatic actress, which places her up with some of the best.

Chicago's talk-show host, Oprah Winfrey adds another superb performance. She practically steals the spotlight as she portrays the big and proud Sophia, who never let's her color stand in the way of her pride. This marks the first attempt for both of these women to bring their talents to the big screen.

Other cast performers include Margaret Avery, who plays the self-centered but loving blues singer Shug Avery, along with Danny Glover, who plays "Mister," the abusive husband of Celie.

Some parts of "The Color Purple" were filmed in North Carolina and we also had an opportunity to see a graduate of WSSU, Ms. Maria Howell shine in the spotlight, she played the role as the lead singer of the gospel choir.

"The Color Purple" is indeed a must for everyone to see. The moving, dramatic tale has the power to reach out and touch your deepest emotions.

Drama Guild To Perform In High Point

By Carolyn B. Hooper

The Drama Guild of WSSU, under the direction of Dr. Fred Eady, has been challenged to perform for the graduate chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., at High Point College.

Dr. Eady said, "that he hopes that the Drama Guild will be prepared to present the play in February for the sorority's celebration of Black History Month." The actual date for the performance has not been set, but if it is not possible to do the play in February, it will be performed in early March.

The play Dr. Eady has chosen is "Amen Corner," by Charles Gordone. He has been holding auditions and will announce the cast later. Members of the Drama Guild and other interested students of the university will be involved in this production.

The Drama Guild has also received an invitation from Glenn High School to perform the play, or another production, at a later date this semester.
