Football In Review

Central State Beats WSSU, 35-8

Vince Leavell and Alvin Street, two Central State football players, turned an 8-3 deficit into a 13-8 lead, in approximately 48 seconds of playing time in the first half of the game.

After that it was "turn out the lights" on the WSSU Rams. And if that wasn't enough, the Marauders then scored 22 unanswered points in the game's second half.

The Rams were leading 8-3 towards the end of the first half, when Central State punted to Masha Paul. Paul fumbled and the Marauders recovered on the 20-yard line.

Two plays later, at the kick-off, quarterback Bobby Junior fumbled the snap and Central State recovered on the rams 48-yard line.

WSSU fans were probably saying "things can't get worst." Wrong thought. They did!

In three more plays the Marauders were now on the WSSU 24 with seven seconds remaining. Eric Ingram kicked a 40-yard field goal and CSU had a 13-8 lead at half time.

In the second half, Leavell had three touchdown passes and the Marauders also scored a safety.

The problem for the Rams was trying to play "catch-up ball." This proved to be a bad day for them to try to use this tactic.

McIver Chosen To Lead Class Of 1990

by Carol Drewery
Entertainment Editor

The newest member of the Ram family, the class of 1990, recently elected its officers. The class chose Joel McIver, 18, of Babylon, N.Y. as it's leader.

McIver decided to run for President because he felt he was familiar enough with the administration and school. "I hope that on whole I can unite the students with the faculty and administrators to bring out a stronger university family," explained McIver.

Looking towards the future McIver hopes his class will get more involved in social events both on and off campus. He would like to see his class take advantage of being the best they can be through education.

Stephanie Hooker, 18, of Carthage, N.C., was elected freshman class secretary. Ms. Hooker based her decision to run on her previous experiences with student government. She hopes to bring her class together by working with their ideas and opinions. Ms. Hooker says, "the best way to do this is to discuss with freshman class issues and to give the class a chance to express themselves."

Elected as a SGA Representative, is Katrena Neal, a political science major. She decided to run because she recognized this as her chance to learn about leadership and government responsibilities. Ms. Neal says, there are three goals she hopes to accomplish in her term; more class unity, respect from upper classmen not only for her class but those freshmen to follow, and for her class to succeed in what they do as a class.

The class officer of 1990 has a positive outlook for the year. They seem to know where they're going, what they want and how to get it. The News Argus staff wishes them the best of success.
