by Reneea Leathers

Dr. William H. Bailey has joined the Winston-Salem State University faculty as the Chairman of the Department of Business and Economics

Bailey is a 1971 graduate of Tougaloo College in Mississippi. In 1974, after specializing in Industrial Organizational Economics he received both his masters and Ph.D. from the University of Illinois at Champaign Urbana.

Next he served as Director of the Human Resources Management Institute, and was involved with training labor and management in the public sector at Florida A&M University.

In 1976 he worked with the bureau of Economics and Development at Virginia

State University. In 1976 thru 1983 he served as the Chairman of the Business Administration Department at North Carolina A&T University. During his tenure, A&T became one of the two predominantly black universities to receive accreditation from the American Assembly of Collegian Schools of Business.

In 1983 he served as the Chairman of both the Department of Business Administration and the Masters Program in Business at Norfolk State University.

In 1984 while serving as the Director of the Masters of Business in Administration at Fayetteville State University, Bailey received an offer from Winston-Salem State University to become the chairperson of the School of Business, which he considered, "an excellent opportunity."

For Dr. Bailey it was not a hard decision to join the staff, because he has always liked the Greensboro area, and he was very impressed with the faculty and students here on campus. Dr. Bailey feels Winston-Salem State University is a college moving in the right direction, and he is proud to be a part of this progression.

Dr. Bailey is impressed with the commitment of the administration. He is impressed with the level of maturity shown by the students here compared to the students at other universities.

Dr. Bailey adds, "I feel a strong sense of human interest in working with todays students. I enjoy my work because I get a strong degree of satisfaction from education. It is no secret that I have high expectations for Winston-Salem State University's faculty, staff and students, all it takes it total commitment."

When asked what advice he would offer to business majors, Dr. Bailey says that "first one must look at the growth in a particular market and then be the best at what you do. No matter what field you go into get a good background in Liberal Arts."

Dr. Bailey is married and the father of two children. His hobbies include rebuilding car engines, leather work and laying bricks.
