Housing Needed For WSSU Students

Winston-Salem State University has established an Off-Campus Housing Program to coordinate listings for its students. Landlords, agencies or families can list their accommodations — rooms, apartments or houses — and students can choose the type of accommodations that will meet their needs.

The program stems from a continuing increase in requests for campus housing, requests that now far exceed the number of beds available. Persons interested in listing available space should contact the Housing Office at 761-2237 or 761-2239 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays. There is no listing fee.

SGA Holds Spring Leadership Seminar

By Shelton Bullard

The 1987 Spring Leadership Seminar, sponsored by the Student Government Association was held March 7, 1987.

The seminar was geared toward those who wished to run for an office next semester, but anyone was welcome to attend.

The seminar was composed of counselors that spoke on leadership, time management, how to utilize one's time, student apathy, student motivation and campus involvement.

The counselors inspired the students to meet and face all of their challenges with a positive aspect. They also encouraged our future leaders to stand for what they feel is right and to be the best that they could by getting more involved in activities on campus.

Issac Hayes Makes a Comeback

By Shelia Rucker

This Issac Hayes was not dressed in his well-known furs or chains speaking at A&T State University at Merrick Hall, March 4, at 1:30 p.m. Instead he was clad in blue jeans, a Columbia Jazz T-shirt, red boots and a red leather and blue jean jacket.

Hayes, a recording artist, producer and actor, was speaking to A&T students about opportunities in the music field. He spoke about the field of business and how the students could use this field in areas such as marketing, sales and accounting.

He emphasized that it is extremely important that they be knowledgeable in different areas. "No one is going to give you anything, you must earn it," he said. He also stated that the music industry is a very stressful, glamorous and high-profiled business, but warned students of using drugs to help relieve that stress.

Hayes, a native of Memphis, Tennessee, started as a signed musician who sang "everything from blues to gospel and rock n' roll to jazz." He was dubbed the "Black Moses" at a performance in the late 60's, which he explained was "not a self-ordained concept." For this reason he was hesitant of the name because he felt it was sacrilegious. Nevertheless the name stuck and he believes that black people felt that he was a voice for the black life-style. Hayes biggest hits came from the album "Hot Buttered Soul," which included "Walk On By," "I Stand Accused," "Phoenix" and "One Woman."

"My songs have helped put quarreling lovers back together, helped the Vietnam Vets and helped some people get through lonely nights," stated Hayes.

Hayes who received an Academy Award for the music score of "Shaft," has performed in movies such as "Three Tough Guys" and "Truck Turner." His latest effort is the upcoming movie "Counterforce," in which he plays a commando team member who is protecting an Arab leader in exile. He has written the music score for the action-adventure movie.

Hayes' advice to students pursuing a career in the entertainment field is to "have tenacity" and not to lose sight of their goals.

Poet's Corner

Meditation

It attacks not only losers, but winners —
Not only saints, but sinners.
Although you can't see
How tall it can be,
And though you can't touch,
You sure can wonder how wide and how much.
It could be real big or small
And terribly bad for us all.
Your mind it could take
Your heart it may break.
Your soul it may enter
Like a cold breeze in winter.
