What are your plans for summer vacation?

"I will be working and traveling to new places and seeing new things"

— Marquita Okletree, Junior, English-Secondary Education

"Basically, I'm going to catch up with my rest and spend time with my family. I'll take the time to participate in the hobbies that my friends and me usually do."

— Benjamin Nunn, Sophomore, Biology

"I plan to take a rest from school for a little while, but my summer plans also includes working. I want to continue to create new and innovative artwork."

— Temeisha Quick, Senior, Art Graphic Design

"I'll probably work at home and spend time with my friends back home. I'm going to try to make money for next semester so I will be prepared for the many expenses."

— Nicolas Lewis, Sophomore, Art-Computer Graphics, Computer Science minor

Lady Ram Bowlers compete for NCAA Championship

When Latoya DesChamps discovered that the Lady Rams were a part of the eight-team field competing for the inaugural NCAA National Collegiate Bowling Championship, she was overjoyed. "I was happy that our talents were finally recognized and proud to say that we were the only team at WSSU to go to a championship like this."

The National Collegiate Women's Bowling Committee announced in March that the Winston-Salem State University Lady Rams would compete for a national championship in women's bowling. Last month, six lady rams of Winston-Salem State University competed for a national championship. Texas Southern University and the Harris County-Houston Sports Authority co-hosted the championship, which was held April 8-10 at the Emerald Bowl in Houston, Texas.

The field included: Central Missouri State

University, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Metropolitan Campus, University of Maryland, Eastern Shore, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, New Jersey City University, Sacred Heart University, Southern University, Baton Rouge, and Winston-Salem State University. All eight teams were selected at-large.

The inaugural NCAA women's bowling championship received television coverage on the national cable network, ESPN2. ESPN2 broadcasted 22 of the 88 championships on Easter Sunday.

The competition was fierce on the first day of the first-ever championship as the seedings for Friday were being determined. The teams battled from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m., trying to achieve top seeds. Though the Lady Rams have only a 3-month season (September through November), their competitor's seasons endured the entire school year as they had been bowling up until the championship. The Lady Rams found the first session to be a tough one as they turned in a record of 0-4 overall before breaking for dinner at 5 p.m.

WSSU faced the Gothic Knights of New Jersey City University in the first match of the day and fell short by the score of 1177 to 781. The loss was overshadowed by NJCU's Jennifer Vienes who rolled the first 300 game in the history of the NCAA Women's Bowling Championship. Vienes led the Gothic Knights who improved to 60-33-2 in the victory. WSSU falls to 59-11 on the season, and were led by Lashonda Horton who turned in a team-high 196 for WSSU.

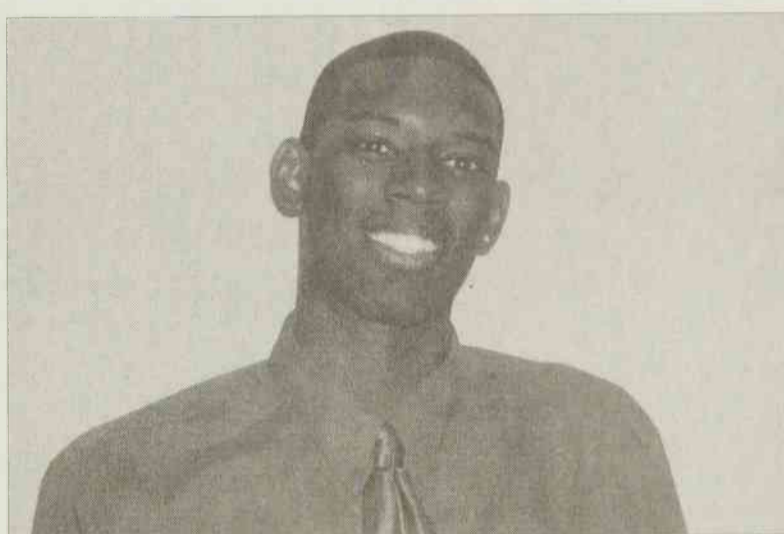

Though the team did not get to play in the final championship (played by University of Nebraska, Lincoln, and Central Missouri State University) CIAA Bowler of the Year, Latoya DesChamps said the entire experience was fun and a definite eye opener. "The team knows what they have to do to prepare for next year. We'll be ready."

Ms. Anyanwu said that she was proud to be a candidate for the position of Miss WSSU; she has assumed the title modestly and with abundant pride for the university.

"I am so honored to represent this institution as Miss WSSU. Most importantly, I want to thank God for putting me in this position. It was a very close race and I am glad that I was the person that He chose for the position. I also want to thank everyone for all of the support that I have had. Mr. Dobbs displayed his talent as entrepreneur clothing designer of the clothing line jBH in the talent portion of the showcase.

Dobbs commented.

"Holding the position of Mr. Ram is a lot of new responsibility. I can't do some things that I may have done before and in some situations I have to bite my tongue a bit. I have some big shoes to fill, the past Mr. Rams did a lot. I think that it will be fun though.

"I want to thank all of the students that voted me into this position. I hope that I won't let them down. I hope to make the position of Mr. Ram as respectable as the position of Miss WSSU. I hope to make next year fun."
