

DAVID TALTON — Chowan art major David Talton, Raleigh sophomore, shows his sculpture to Bob Mullinax, executive secretary of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention's Council on Christian Higher Education, and Craig Greene, director of Chowan's division of art. Talton is a communications art student who has expressed a keen interest in sculpture, according to Greene. A graduate of Raleigh's Sanderon High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Talton of Raleigh, N.C.

A Bicentennial Salute to Agriculture Sponsored by Depart. of Business

Chowan College's department of business will sponsor "A Bicentennial Salute to Agriculture" on four Monday nights in November.

The programs will be held from 7:30-9 p.m. in Marks Hall Auditorium, and are open without charge to the public. The salute to agriculture is sponsored in conjunction with the Agricultural Extension Service in Bertie, Gates, Hertford, and Northampton Counties, and Planters National Bank.

The program Nov. 3 will feature Congressman Walter B. Jones, who will speak on "Farm Legislation for 1976." He is a member of the House Agriculture Committee and chairman of the Sub-committee on Tobacco.

According to Professor Rachel Pittman, who has led in the planning of the special programs, Congressman Jones will emphasize legislation proposed for 1976 which will affect farmers and farm-related industry.

On Nov. 10, Dr. W. D. Toussaint, head of the department of economics and business, North Carolina State University, will speak on "Economic Forecasts for Crops and Livestock in Northeastern North Carolina." Mrs. Pittman said this will help those in agriculture to make plans for the next crop season.

Norflect Sugg, vice-president and head of the marketing department of Planters National Bank, will serve as moderator for a panel discussion of "Sources of Agricultural Credit" on Nov. 17.

Panel members are James Kearney, county supervisor, Bertie County, who will represent Farmers Home Administration; Howard Perkinson, assistant vice-president and office manager, Carolina Production Credit Assoc., Ahoskie, who will represent Production Credit Assoc.; Jimmie L. Rowe, president, Federal Land Bank, Ahoskie; Ben Mann, executive director, Northampton County, who will serve as the expert on Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; and Overton S. Suiter, Jr., vice-president and city executive, Planters National Bank, Ahoskie, who will speak on commercial banks.

The final program Nov. 24 will feature Dean J. E. Legates of the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences, North Carolina State University, who will speak on "Future of Agriculture in Northeastern North Carolina."

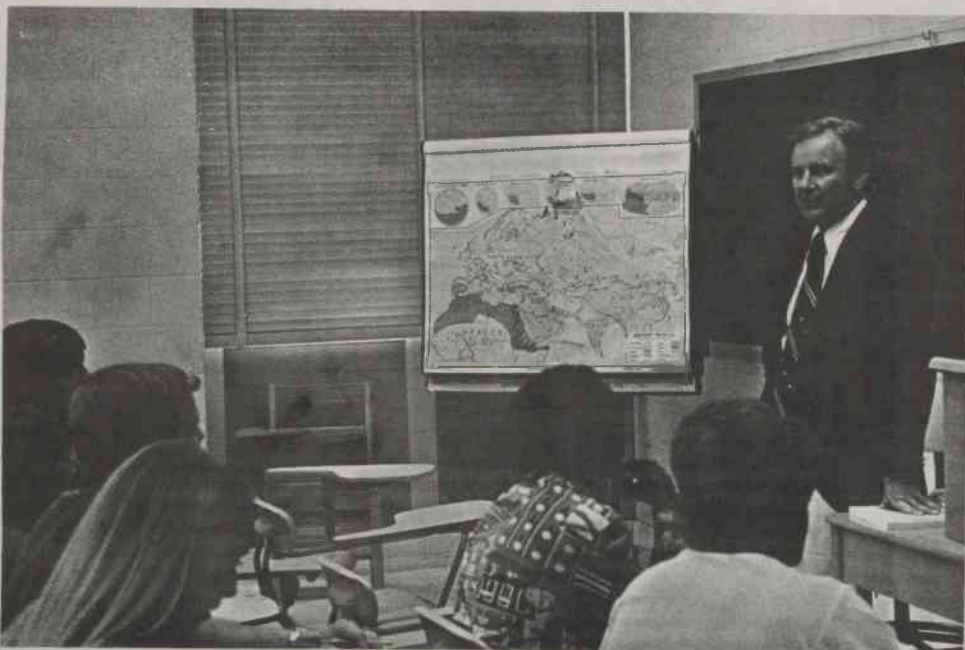

Mrs. Pittman said Dean Legates will go beyond next year to report on future directions in agriculture. He will speak of technical advances expected from research and experimentation in the field.

Mrs. Pittman extended a special invitation to all farmers in the area, those involved in agri-business, and others interested in the subject to attend the programs.

"Agriculture is such an important part of our life in this area," Mrs. Pittman explained. "It's indeed fitting and proper that we salute this industry that is so valuable to the growth and well-being of this area and each one of us living here," she added.

She said the sponsors were fortunate in obtaining the services of such qualified, able men in the field of agriculture." She said they will provide "many practical helps in the field of agriculture that will make attendance a must for all who are interested in what lies ahead in the immediate future as well as for the next decade.

of McLean, Va., Michael Sipe of Macon, N.C., Harry Baird of Petersburg, Va., Curtis Randolph Koger, Jr. of Norfolk, Va., James Lawrence of Suffolk, Va., and Myron Whittenburg of Hendersonville, N.C.

Loggins and Messina Appear in Concert

By JOHNNY PARKER

For those of you who were cruising through Hampton, Va. Friday night, October 3, 1975, maybe you were able to fork up $5.00 to see Fleetwood Mac and Loggins and Messina in concert.

Fleetwood Mac appeared on stage first. They gave a very inspiring set by playing songs off their new album, "Heroes are Hard to Find," and "Bare Trees." Their performance was good but wasn't quite as tight as they should have been. The highlight of their act, I thought was "Spare Me A Little" with Christie McNie on vocals.

Loggins and Messina followed Fleetwood Mac on stage and broke into an acoustical set by playing "Danny's Song", "House at Pooh Corner", and others. This was really good but they rushed through them too quickly by not playing the songs all the way through. It seemed as though these songs were preliminaries to the actual concert. The electrical set was more than enough to make up for the rushed through acoustic set. They played songs like "Changes" and "Growing" off their MOTHERLODE album.

During these songs Messina gave some spectacular solos using his Fender Telecaster. Loggins' vocals were almost flawless. They and their backup band were very tight. Special note should be given to the fiddle player who gave brilliant solos. The highlight of the concert was "Angry Eyes" the last encore which lasted at least ten minutes.

Cafeteria Minutes

October 10, 1975

Mr. Sutton welcomed the student members and expressed a desire to have some freshmen students on the committee. He stated this committee was the means of communication with the students to solve problems and improve situations in the cafeteria. The management of the cafeteria by Mark Four was explained to the members.

The student members present are to be commended for their mature thinking and over all presentation of situations they desire changing or questioning way things were handled in a given way.

Robert Walker had made a survey before coming to the meeting. This was presented and discussed. Suggestions were as follows:

1. Too many starchy foods
2. Not enough eggs
3. Larger serving of orange juice

6. Donuts are soggy (Humidity problems)
7. Hamburger steaks not too tasty.
8. Serve more ice cream
9. Attitude of cooks undesirable — Need training
10. Would like to see the peanut butter & jelly for sandwiches available again.
11. Salad open — flies in cafeteria
12. Soiled silver and dishes

Student members commented about a better quality of food being served this year in comparison with last year. Mr. Sutton explained with the budget as set up last year, we were not prepared for the rapid escalation of food prices. The cafeteria lost money last academic year. Corners had to be cut. He also stated there is a bigger food budget this year and if the students will cooperate, there will be quantity and quality passed on to the students. For example, the happy surprise of steaks last week.

The peanut butter and jelly sandwiches could be used again if the students would not take the food back to their rooms in large portions. There is consideration of using canned orange juice so a larger serving may be obtained. A quick line will be opened after mid-term for breakfast. This will be sweet rolls, donuts, or other finger foods.

A donut machine is being considered for use in the cafeteria. Since the hamburgers used are of a thin variety, it was decided to rotate serving the thicker ones on one occasion and the thin one on another since two thin ones were usually on each plate. Individual containers of ice cream will be served soon. With the weather becoming cool soup will be added to the menu soon.

There seemed to be agreement by the committee that we have some good cooks and workers. Also noted was a grouchy person going through the line usually provokes a grouchy answer.

Different methods of preparing certain foods were suggested and met with approval.

More supervision of the dish-washing, particularly the soaking of the silver prior to washing was suggested.
