

For everyone alike!

We ask no more—We're not amiss
'Tis ours by law—by right.

Arise, resound your voices
And march united by
A vast and mighty vanguard
Demanding liberty
Relinquish not this mission
But forcefully demand
A fair and equal treatment
For all in every land

—— Charles Atkins

THE WILL TO SERVE

The soul that climbs above
The petty things of life;
The soul that move in love
To soothe the pains of strife;
This is the soul in man created
To save his mind from sin and hatred.
The soul that lends a helping hand
To those in sorrow and distress;
The soul within the heart of man
That lays his troubled mind to rest;
This is the soul, the Master made
And in the breast of man has laid.
So think no mind so mean in state
To be beyond the aid of man.
And think no wound so wide and great
As to withhold your helping hand.
For deep within the soul there lies
A will to serve, true and high.
