GREETINGS From President Dean

As some begin college life and others resume their studies here, all will seek to achieve a new stature; you will judge yourself by new standards, and in many cases, will dedicate your talents to new ends. To be a college man or a college woman carries with it obligations with respect to speech, thought, conduct, and purpose, — obligations which you cannot escape. Your presence indicates that you are answering, along with over 4 million other college and university students, a call to a lifelong search for truth, a lifelong love for learning, a lifelong concern for ideas and ideals. Regardless of the duration of your stay, you are now a part of Saint Augustine's. From this day forward, Saint Augustine's will be identified with you, and you with Saint Augustine's. The College will be judged by you, and it will be praised or blamed by what you do. This institution has linked its future with yours, and has conferred upon you a privilege and honor that we hope will prove to be among your dearest possessions.

What you, our future leaders and followers, become may prove to be the crucial counterbalance of the forces of irresponsibility, disintegration and chaos. We hope to help you develop a responsible intelligence, an intelligence that will allow reason to govern instinct. Instinct was perfectly in order for man's survival in a primitive culture, but it is entirely out of place in our highly developed and complex society of today. Yours, therefore, is surely a heavy, but not burdensome responsibility.

There can be no worthwhile achievement without the self-confidence that only faith can give to an individual. It would seem that no man would be able to endure the relentless demands of ordinary life if he did not have confidence that life has meaning and purpose and that what he does here on this earth has a significance that transcends his individual life.

JAMES A. BOYER
President

October, 1964

As we begin our 98th school year here at Saint Augustine's College, I wish to greet you and to wish for all of you — freshmen, new students and alumni, a successful year in every way.

Saint Augustine's College has come a long way since its founding 98 years ago. The extent to which it will be able to continue the kind of dynamic progress and academic excellence in the future rests in no small way with the manner in which students and alumni rally to the cause of this institution. Many things help to make an institution. The most outstanding being, I believe, its alumni and students — their aspirations and achievements.

As we launch the 1964-65 school year, it is the hope that every graduate and former student will remember that it was this institution that provided the opportunity to move forward. Also, it is the desire that the freshmen and new students who matriculated for the first time here this year will keep ever before them the idea that hard work, a disciplined mind, and good character go hand in hand in the fulfillment of their dreams and aspirations. It is to this end that alumni and students are asked to contribute their full measure of devotion: manifestation of loyalty to their institution, hard work, courage and diligence in all their efforts so that Saint Augustine's will increasingly become the truly great institution we all know it is capable.

As new opportunities open for our graduates the challenge to use all is to put forth a special effort so that we can measure up to the occasion as the poet Lowell said: "New occasions teach new duties, Time makes ancient good uncouth; They must upward still and onward, Who would keep abreast of truth."

To freshmen and new students, I hope this will be one of the most exciting and rewarding years of your life. To alumni, I hope this year will enable you to think more seriously about supporting in a positive way your Alma Mater — Saint Augustine's College.

Executive Dean of the College

National Teacher Exam

PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY — College seniors preparing to teach school may take the National Teachers Examinations on four different test dates each year instead of one, Educational Testing Service announced today.

New dates set for the testing of prospective teachers are: December 12, 1964; and March 20, July 17, and October 2, 1965. The tests will be given at more than 550 locations in the 50 states, ETS said.

Scores on the National Teachers Examinations are used by many large school districts for employment of new teachers and by several States for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations.

Lists of school systems which use the examination results are distributed to colleges by ETS, a nonprofit, educational organization which prepares and administers the examinations.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations, which measure the professional and general preparation of teachers, and one of 13 Teaching Area Examinations (formerly called Optional Examinations) which measure mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

Communication Center

Because every individual as a worker, a citizen, and a voter participates in many activities which call for a knowledge and an understanding of communications, a communications center is important to the college curriculum. Each student who avails himself of the offerings of the center must realize that no phase of the communications curriculum stands apart as an entity within itself; but it contains other courses which integrate with other courses and share in the responsibility of developing the student to his fullest potential, which society demands.

STUDENT OUTCOMES: It is hoped that the students who enroll in the courses of the center will grow in self-discovery. The

MISS LUGENIA ROCHELLE
Miss Rochelle Is Miss St. Aug.

By JUANA LOPEZ

Miss Lugenia Rochelle, a French major with a minor in English, reigns as Miss Saint Augustine's College for the academic year, 1964-65.

"Je ne le crois pas" is the French equivalent expressed by Miss "St. Aug." after the contest was over last May. She had not believed that she had won.

Miss Lugenia Rochelle was born and reared in Maple Hill, N. C. She is the oldest of eight children. Ever since her freshman year at Saint Augustine's College, the students have found her to be a friendly, charming, and versatile person. According to an informal survey, she has always been a very humane person with a rather pleasant disposition.

Immediately following graduation, she plans to teach French for two years after which she plans to pursue her master's, probably in Canada. Her aspiration is to be an English-French translator.

Among our queen's hobbies are doing modern dances, listening to jazz, and collecting antique jewelry. In her spare time she reads. She is the president of the Modern Dance Club, a member of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, and a Sunday School teacher. Before Miss Saint Augustine's graduates, she would like to know everybody on
