Business

The Division of Business is highlighting some new features this semester. Two such features are "B"-Day and the Bristol-Meyers Lecture Series.

Dr. Mable Jones-Matthews, chair of the division, explained that "B"-Day is Professional Dress Day in the Division of Business and is observed every Thursday. This day has been set aside to promote professional development, develop "Esprit de Corp" among the students, faculty, and staff, and dress for the corporate, governmental, and educational environments.

Various Division of Business organizations will also sponsor "AFTER - HOURS" monthly (every third Thursday, 5:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.). This is designed to help students, faculty and staff develop their communications and social skills for the workplace.

Bristol - Myers Lecture Series

Based on an arrangement between Bristol - Myers Products, a division of Bristol - Myers Squibb Company, and Saint Augustines College, a the lecture series for the 1993 - 94 academic year has been scheduled. The primary purpose of the series is to bring executives from Bristol - Myers Products to the campus to interact with faculty, staff and, most importantly, the students on key emerging issues, as well as the needs and requirements of industry.

Enhancing Self Image, Advertising, Presentation Skills, Inter-personal Awareness, and a second session on Corporate Ethics. In addition to the sessions for the students, a session entitled Total Ouality Management and a session entitled Problem Solving will also be scheduled for staff and faculty respectively.

While all of the student sessions are being held in the Division of Business, the lecture series is open to students across the campus. The division is coordinating with representatives form each division to ensure that all students are so informed. Students who are interested in attending these sessions, are asked to contact Mr. L.E. Ward, Executive in Residence, to reserve a seat.

Humanities

Dr. Sevealyn Smith, Chair of the Humanities Division, is very excited about the division's activities this semester.

The Department of English has just opened a Writing Center, which is designed to help students improve their writing skills.

The Foreign Language Club, of the Foreign Language Department, has a busy program. It meets once a month, and some of its scheduled activities include a Foreign Language Awareness Day, a Foreign Language Film Festival, and a Christmas Party. The club also plans to attend the International Festival of Raleigh on October 2. The department's first newsletter was put out on Septem- advisor relationships and stuber 24.

The Art Department's Art Club is planning a trip to the SAS Institute, as well as an art show and expo, at which they hope to sell their artwork and crafts. They also plan a field trip to the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Social Sciences

The acting chair of the Division of Social Sciences, Dr. John Little, and his faculty are working to generate a lot more student interest in the division as a whole. They are trying to increase student involvement and participation in the activities of the Social Science Club, as well as promote closer student - dent-faculty involvement in extracurricular activities.

Other things the division is looking at long-range are: increasing the number of majors within the five disciplines of the division; increasing the number of permanent faculty within the division, with the support of the administration; and increasing the number of faculty in the division with terminal degrees. They also intend to establish divisional standards for accepting students changing their major.

Dr. Little would like the faculty to be well versed in the NCATE process for Teacher Education Accreditation. "This means we want to encourage faculty professional improvement through both internal and external activities," says Dr. Little.

Lt. Col. Wickie Lyons, head of the ROTC Unit, says the unit have gotten off to a good start. All of the cadets are exhibiting enthusiasm as well interest in the program.

On September 2, the Falcon Battalion conducted the change of command in which Shaw University also participated. William Davis, a senior ROTC student, was promoted to cadet lieutenant colonel and assumed the position of cadet commander.

There are nine seniors this year in the battalion, which had its first fall field training exercise at Camp Butner on September 24 - 26.

Cadet William Davis recited the Cadets Creed at a retirement dinner for General Julius Johnson, who is the outgoing 1st region ROTC commander.

Col. Thomas Causey, who is the incoming 5th brigade commander, and who oversees the Southeastern region of the U S, visited the unit earlier in the semester.

St. Aug's is the first historically black college's ROTC he has visited. He met Dr. Prezell Robinson, president of the college, and also saw the Enhanced Skills Program.

Col. Causey indicated he was very pleased with the support of Dr. Robinson and the overall performance of the unit. He also cited Dr. Louis White as having an outstanding Enhanced Skills Program, which is one of the best, if not the best program, he had seen.

The teams to represent St. Aug at Ranger Challenge, which is ROTC varsity sports, are currently training in preparation for the brigade competition, which is to be held November 5 - 7 at Fort Jackson in South Carolina.

The Competition is comprised of eighth events, which includes the army physical fitness test, land navigation/ orienteering, one/rope bridge, grenade assault course, patrolling tactics test, ten kilometer road march with a rucksack, and basic rifle marksmanship.

St. Augustine's Falcon Battalion will compete with twenty - three other schools, including Duke, Citadel, Campbell, UNC - Chapel Hill, USC - Columbia, A&T, and SC State. The team is hoping to place again in the top five finishes. Last year, the Falcon Battalion won two of the eight events.

Education

The Division of Education has an exciting and busy semester planned ahead for its faculty, staff, and students.

Comprising nearly onethird of the student population at St. Augustine's College, the division encompasses the Department of Education which includes Psychology, the Teacher Education Program, and the Department of Physical Education. The Teacher Education Program includes nine areas of specialty. The majors in the Teacher Education Program are: Biology Education, Vocational Business Education, Elementary Education, English Education, Math Education, Music Education, Social Studies Education, Physical Education, and Special Education (Exceptional Learning Disabilities).

Initial meetings have been held for several of the division's programs thus far this semester. The Teacher Education Program Majors meeting was attended by over eighty students and faculty members. Dr. Beverly Downing, the Acting Chair of the Division, shared her vision for the Department and informed the attendees of the status of the Teacher Education Program. Students were provided with the opportunity for input and questions. The meeting was informative and motivational.

Other clubs within the department that have met are: The Physical Education Majors Club, The Psychology Club, and The Education Club -Student National Education Association (SNEA).

In addition, fifteen student majors that are interested in an Teacher Education, attended the 1993 Fall SNEA Conference, held September 17. They participated in sessions that included Cultural Diversity, Managing Conflict in The Classroom, First Year Teaching and Experiences and School Violence.

Upcoming events for the Division will be provided in the
