SIXTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL SESSION INAUGURATED

The sixty-eighth annual session of St. Augustine's College was officially inaugurated with opening services in the chapel yesterday morning. Bishop Edwin A. Penick, the principal speaker, was presented by Rev. Edgar H. Goold, the president of the College.

In an address that held the attention of old and new students alike Bishop Penick pointed out that the aim of Christian education was the development of all the worthy aspects of the individual, physically, mentally and spiritually. "Christian education has as its purpose not the development of athletes, but athletes plus; not the development of scholars, but scholars plus," the Bishop said. Speaking of the intellectual side of college life, he said that the aim of the church school should not be the inculcation of sectarian propaganda, but rather the promotion of the search for truth, wherever it might lead. In closing, the Bishop stressed the value and utility of the ideals and traditions of Christian educational institutions.

Among the visitors present who spoke words of greeting were: Dr. Milton A. Barber, rector of Christ Church, and Rev. Theodore Partrick, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, both members of our Board of Trustees; and Rev. George A. Fisher, rector of St. Ambrose's Church.

President Goold announced that a larger proportion of the students than usual had arrived in time for the opening exercises.

BISHOP TUTTLE SCHOOL

With eleven Juniors enrolled this year, the Tuttle School continues to widen its sphere of usefulness. We think we are doing our part to meet the new demand for more trained social workers. All the graduates of last year are already employed.

This semester our field work training facilities have been enlarged, and for the first semester, four regular lecturers have been brought in for one course each. Rev. Joseph F. Fletcher is conducting a course in Social Philosophy. Mr. Fletcher is chaplain of St. Mary's School, and has had wide experience in social investigation. Mr. William Randolph Johnson, Director of Negro Welfare in the North Carolina Department of Public Welfare, is giving a course in Community Organization. Mrs. Lilian Brinton, for some time engaged in social work and research in North Carolina, is teaching case work, and Mr. C. D. Halliburton of the College faculty, child welfare. Miss Eugénie Dorecé, B.S., Cheyney, is the new full-time staff member. Miss Dorecé is house manager and instructor in Institutional Management.

THE COMMUNITY CENTER

On November 16th, the Choral Club of the College, under the direction of Prof. L. T. Caldwell, presented the musical drama "Jephthah," previously staged with great success as a feature of Commencement Week. This revival was for the benefit of the Tuttle Community Center. The results both artistically and financially were gratifying. We reprint from the program note:

"This entertainment is for the benefit of the Tuttle Community Center, which is just around the corner from where you are sitting, at 310 North Tarboro Road. It was established by the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Hunter, for the sake of the neighborhood and for the training value to the Tuttle School.

The aim of the Center is to turn the leisure time of children and of adults into wholesome play and creative activity. The sixteen clubs are planned for all ages, carrying out the principles of recreation and personal development in handcraft, music, dramatics, athletics and social recreation.

There is development of the love of the beautiful, and of appreciation for all useful and gracious things, courtesy and service. Interests are roused and directed. Understanding is strengthened of the privileges as well as the responsibilities of life in the home, the church, the school and the community.

October's attendance on playground and at clubs was nearly 2,000. Does this seem a worthy project to help the Tuttle School to carry on?"

Twenty-two states and thirty dioceses from Massachusetts to Colorado and from Michigan to Texas, are represented in this year's student body. There are also students from Canada, the British West Indies, and the Virgin Islands. More young men than young women are enrolled in the College Department.
