

"SO WHAT?"

Several members of the student body, especially the girls, would like to ask Bishop boys exactly why they want to bury the college's first baseball game in an "Insignificant corner"? How can an insignificant score hurt a team or school's morale or spirit? The University of Virginia set a record this year, a record for the highest number of consecutive losses in football games, namely 28 in a row. One thing is probably most certain, the spirit of Virginia's student body is still as great and strong as ever. It doesn't take a winning team to make a school have pride. It takes a team that is trying and that, the Bishops are doing, even if the weather isn't cooperating. A close look at this year's schedule will reveal that Wesleyan is playing a rough one even for a school that has been organized and playing ball for seasons before. So what if the score was one-sided. If it had been 24-23, the outcome would have looked the same. As it is now, you, the boys, have a goal to work toward, just as the girls have a goal, winning a game of ping pong fairly. Of course, we don't have to boast about losing, but there is no reason to hide the fact that we have a team that is playing and working as the Wesleyan Bishops.

All students who are going home for the Easter holidays are asked to see Miss Lois Collins for orientation in recruiting students to Wesleyan next year.

CAMPUS PRIDE

We all can remember when we drove up to the college the first morning of school. We were greeted in front with brush scattered all under the trees; we had to climb over piles of dirt to get to the back steps. The more we saw of the building and campus, the fainter our dreams of a movie-type campus became.

The students of 1961-'62 will receive quite a different first impression next fall. The land in front of the Administration Building has been landscaped, and magnolia trees, holly bushes, and boxwoods are now being planted. We have a carpet of green under the pines where undergrowth once lay. When they drive around to the back, they will park their cars in a special student parking lot and will see no stray piles of dirt.

I'm sure we all want to see our campus grow more beautiful as the year passes. We, as students, can help a great deal by refraining from throwing litter anywhere on campus. If we do as fine a job of keeping the inside clean as we have done on the outside, we will have a campus deserving of the name "Wesleyan".
