

SITUATION: The Salty Dog Rag was the hit of our Freshman Dance September 16. Its widespread popularity was a pleasant surprise.

Question: Do you think the Salty Dog Rag will become a tradition here at Wesleyan?

BRUCE RAMPE—I think the Salty Dog Rag should become a Wesleyan tradition for two reasons: (1) the students got together and taught one another this dance and (2) all the Wesleyan students seem to enjoy dancing the Salty Dog Rag.

RICHARD MARTIN—I think the Salty Dog Rag should be made N. C. Wesleyan's school dance song because everyone on campus seems to enjoy it.

CHERRY GORHAM—Personally, I loved the dance, but it's kind of hard to set up traditions. If we can convey our enthusiasm to the next freshman class and so on we may have started a Wesleyan tradition.

PARMIE MOORE—As the first classes at Wesleyan, what we do will set the tradition. I think that the Salty Dog Rag will become a traditional dance. It seems to be a symbol of the Wesleyan spirit and attitude.

Field Day Competition . . .

lotte Smith.

Seeking revenge, the nine sophomore girls pounded the ball back across the net to win two out of three volleyball games. They were Lillie Mae Delamar, Brenda Rose, Margaret Walters, Betty Anderson, Joan Lamberth, Gera-Lu Shervette, Wanda Exum, Judy Garriss, Grace Schwartz. The first-time losers were the following freshman girls: Nancy Peebles, Faye Ellington, Melissa Huizing, Rita Lindley, Rosemary MacDonald, Winnie Stein, Marie Fisher, Parmie Moore.

Tennis Matches

The tennis matches were mixed doubles. Susan Black and Ervin Cullipher defeated Terry Singer and Bruce Rampe to give the Sophomores the first advantage in the tennis doubles. Gera-Lu Shervette and Louis Womble, also sophomores, won out over Mary C. Hodgkin and Chet Arthur, freshmen, to give the sophomores a lead. Marie Fisher and Charles Gurly, freshmen, brought defeat to Bill Creekmore and partner, Margaret Walters, to give the freshmen one of the three tennis matches.

The freshman girls broke an almost tie with a 5 to 4 score in the softball event. The stars on the freshman team were Faye Elling-

Orientation Followed By 'Jack Haar' Talent Show

Thursday night at 7:45 p. m. the tension from the orientation testing and the problems of unpacking floated out the window when Wesleyan's Miss Shakespeare, Wanda Exum, draped in a red bedspread, put the entire audience in stitches.

Directors in Hollywood could take a few tips from that handsome John Alden with the Yankee accent. Wesleyan is fortunate to have such a man of distinction.

Although Ervin Cullipher, the announcer, was a bit corny, his sales talk was superb. Following the show, everyone bought a large bottle of "Nothing."

The master of ceremonies, Jack (Van Massey) Haar, was very composed considering Zsa Zsa (Brenda Robinson) was in her usual "I love you, Dah-ling" mood.

By tradition, Wesleyan girls are well-dressed and are very conscientious concerning "decorum forum."

Zsa Zsa brought three of her best models from Paris which were certainly appreciated. Sighs of envy filled the air when Jimmy Wheeler entered the room in her-his--after-five frock.

Bill Garlow captured the hearts with his poised and graceful walk. The entire audience was enthralled when Albert Boone appeared in a most unusual cocktail frock. Zsa Zsa brought a real treat in high design.

Alice Kovarco sang "Fascination" and Irish Howard read a selection from "Our Town" by Thornton Wilder. These two fine performances were just two more reasons for the sophomores wearing the beanies (instead of the freshmen).

Most unfortunately, Teresa Singer had an embarrassing moment during the "Itsy Bitsy Mouse," but that happens to the best of us.

The hat is being passed around among the freshmen to buy Ed Schultz, the assistant director, a dictionary; however, with deepest regrets, Ed, "applause" may not be in it.

The newspaper has received several letters from females who wanted to know the names of those good-looking cameramen. The purpose of the paper is to inform; therefore, girls, their names are David Caison and Jerry Miller.

Dickie Moore, known in choral as "Frog," and Evelyn Harris, known in musical circles as "Twist-ton, Marie Fisher, Parmie Moore, Louise Kepley, Bonner Spence, Vickie Taylor, Faye Vester, Mary Jo Barkley, Charlotte Smith.

er," were in charge of the sound effects.

Phil-Bill Garlow and Dickie-Don Moore did a wonderful job with "Wake Up Little Suzy."

Ervin Cullipher, Hugh Hounds, and Lillie Mae Delamar demonstrated a new step that is sure to sweep the nation to the tune of "Michael."

Jack Haar, your talent show was superb!

Meet Dr. Hailey

DR. JAMES R. HAILEY

Meet Dr. James R. Hailey, one of the favorite faculty members on campus during orientation week.

Dr. Hailey is a native of Leaksville-Spray, North Carolina, graduated from Elon College with honors in 1950, earned the B. D. degree at Duke Divinity School in 1960 and received his Ph. D. degree at Duke University in the summer of 1961. Before entering graduate study he served Methodist churches in Orange and Person Counties.

An active Rotarian and Mason, Dr. Hailey is also a member of the Pi Gamma Mu, learned society, Kappa Psi Nu, and Sigma Alpha Chi. Prior to his entry into the ministry he was a jeweler and watchmaker for eight years. He served in the U. S. Army Ground Forces during World War II as staff sergeant.

Dr. Hailey worked for a period as Field Secretary at Elon College. He served as a graduate instructor in graduate school. He has extensive experience working with youth groups and councils and serves as resident men's counselor and Director of Student life at Wesleyan College.

Dr. Hailey's wife, Mrs. Nellie Veach Hailey, is resident nurse at Wesleyan College. Prior to coming to Wesleyan she served as the head nurse at the Methodist Retirement Home in Durham.
